

Index

Page references followed by e indicate an exhibit; followed by fig indicate an illustrated figure.

A

ABB Stotz-Kontakt case study:
background information on, 84, 143–144; on GoBeyond! Learning and Development unit, 144, 148–160*e*; Hugo Extra (monthly newsletter) coverage of, 161–162; infusing new leadership and restructuring, 146–148; learning team as strategic force for change in, 162–164; origins and growth of, 144–145; transformational changes during, 161–162; turmoil requiring change, 145–146

Action Card, 312–313*e*

Actional learning, 33–34

Advisors: external partnerships with, 67–68; functions of, 67

Aerospatial Matra, 258

Aérospatiale, 261

Alcatel, 260

Allen, N., 210–214, 228

American Educational Research Association (AERA), 228

AMICAALL (Alliance of Mayors' Initiative against HIV/AIDS in Africa), 241

Analytical learning, 29–30

Appel, F., 299, 300

B

Babson College, 124

Badenwerk AG, 166

Bank Austria, 95

BASF case study: background information on, 85–86, 185–187; on BASF business model, 199*e*; BASF's CIM (Customer Interaction Models), 193–197*e*; BASF's Customer Orientation Strategy Statement, 189*e*; challenges and lessons learned during, 204–205; customer-centric business model of, 190, 199*e*–205; perspectives campaign of, 185, 190–208; Synapse (online social network) development during, 203

BASF perspectives project: BASF's 2015 strategy implemented using, 185, 190–208; Blue Ocean philosophy approach taken by, 191–192; bottom up change during, 199–201; CIM (Customer Interaction Models) used during,

- BASF perspectives project
 (continued)
 193–197*e*; Cross Divisional Impact Groups initiated by, 202–203; future of, 205–206; Impact Groups role as change agents during, 200; launching of, 190–191; using learning to transcend value chain, 206–208; maintaining momentum of change during, 201–203; PKC (perspective Key Concepts) workshops during, 200–201, 202; team use of Pathfinder method, 198–199; the value curve and implications for, 192–193*e*
- BASF's 2015 strategy: customer centricity pillar of, 190, 199*e*–205; four cornerstones of, 187*e*–189; perspectives project role in implementing, 185, 190–208
- BASF's CIM (Customer Interaction Models):
 defining six, 193–197; value propositions of, 197*e*
- Beijing University, 285–287
- Bergen, T., 310
- BiMBA program (Novartis China Learning Center), 285–287
- Blue Ocean philosophy, 191–192
- Blue Ocean Strategy* (Kim and Mauborgne), 192
- Borensztein, H., 259, 261, 265, 268, 269, 271, 272, 273, 276, 277
- Botti, J., 267
- Brown Boveri, 145
- Brown, J. S., 13
- Burgess, T., 210–214, 228
- Business needs: learning content determined by, 58–59*fig*; learning experiences informing activities and, 59*fig*–60
- Business schools, 63–64
- C
- Campbell, J., 237
- Case studies: 1. UniCredit, 83, 91–116; 2. Siemens, 84, 117–142; 3. ABB Stotz-Kontakt, 84, 143–164; 4. EnBW, 85, 165–184; 5. BASF, 85–86, 185–208; 6. U.S. Army, 86, 209–228; 7. PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC), 86–87, 231–255; 8. EA OS, 87, 257–277; 9. Novartis, 88, 279–295; 10. Deutsche Post DHL, 88, 297–319; overview of, 89*e*
- Chief executive officers (CEOs):
 entrepreneurial environment created by, 54; learning imperative as important of agenda of, 1; linking strategic management with learning architecture, 82
- Chief financial officers (CFOs), 54
- Chief learning officers (CLOs):
 increasing organizational use of, 1; reconfiguring corporate learning role of, 57–58; value of learning agenda of, 41
- China: “Chinese paradox” shortage in, 283; guanxi (networks of influence) used in, 283. See also Novartis China
- China Center for Economic Research (CCER), 286

- Ciba-Geigy, 280
- Claassen, U., 169
- Coaches: external partnerships with, 67–68; functions of, 67
- Command-and-control model, 16, 17
- Community of practice, 214–215
- CompanyComand (online forum) [U.S. Army]: 3C model used by, 219*e*–221; Battle Command Knowledge System program of, 226; becoming a community of practice, 214–215; further enhancements of, 225–228; gaining formal acceptance by U.S. Army, 215–217; iLink feature of, 226; “Leader to Leader” (L2L) initiative of, 217–218; origins of, 213–214; as revolutionizing leadership learning, 218–225*e*
- Competitive advantage: core competencies of, 14–15; Novartis leadership learning as, 88, 279–295
- Context: learning as dependent on, 24–25; role of boundaries to demarcate, 26–28
- Contrucciones Aeronauticas (CASA), 258
- Coopers & Lybrand, 231
- Core competences, competitive advantage of, 14–15
- Corporate Business Academy (CBA). See EADS Corporate Business Academy (CBA)
- Corporate learning: business practice conceptualization of, 2; challenge of, 18–20; as context dependent, 24–25; convergence of strategy and, 71–82; creating “designed spaces of irritation” heart of, 25–26, 76; dimensions of, 28–35 fig; domains of, 35–40, 76; examining the nature of, 23–28; expanding the paradigm of, 23 fig; external partners for, 60–69; five forces driving, 10–18; importance of incorporating, 5–6; ongoing marginalization of, 1; organizational architect functions of, 20; unstructured, 58. See also Learning
- Corporate learning domains: key external service providers in, 62 fig–63; organizational excellence, 36–37, 39 fig; people excellence, 35–36, 39 fig; 122; strategic excellence, 38–39 fig
- Corporate learning drivers: ascent of knowledge-based organizations as, 12–14; competence-based strategic management as, 14–15; emergence of globally networked organizations as, 17–18; growing importance of periphery as, 15–16; massive disruption as, 10–12
- Corporate learning paradigm: external partners for the, 60–69; internal reconfiguration of, 57–60; transforming the, 55 fig–56
- Corporate Management Course (CMC) [Siemens], 126–131*e*, 134–140
- Corporate responsibility, 33
- Corporate venturing, 54

- Credito Italiano, 94
- Customer service: Deutsche's First Choice approach to, 88, 297–319; importance and challenges of, 297–298
- Customer visit programs, 52–53
- Customers: BASF's 2015 strategy on, 187e–189; BASF's CIM (Customer Interaction Models) for, 193–197e; BASF's Customer Orientation Strategy Statement on, 189e; BASF's customer-centric business model on, 190, 199e–205; BASF's perspective project on multiple market, 85–86, 189–208; Deutsche's First Choice focus initiative on, 88, 297–319. See also Value curve
- Customized learning: business processes linked to, 48fig–50; business system impact of, 50fig–51; description of, 43–45
- D
- DaimlerChrysler Aerospace (DASA), 258
- DASA, 261
- Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), 226
- Déjà vu* experience, 223
- Delmoitiez, J., 201, 207
- Descartes, R., 22
- “Designed spaces of irritation,” 25–26, 76
- “Destroy your own business,” 54–55
- Deutsche DP First Choice phases: 1: identifying and monitoring improvement areas, 305–306; 2: generating improvement initiatives, 306; 3: evaluating improvement initiatives, 306; 4: implementing Six Sigma DMAIC cycle, 306–307e; 5: controlling impact, sharing knowledge, and reiterating First Choice, 307–308
- Deutsche Post DHL case study: background information on, 88, 297–298; on Express Division, 300–301; First Choice customer focus initiative during, 298–319; STAR program, 300
- Deutsche Post DHL, First Choice: designing the architecture of, 302–303e; employee engagement framework of, 308–314; First Choice booklet on, 298, 315; future outlook for, 316–317; history of, 300–302; introduction to, 298–300; Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) developed by, 304; managing scale of the, 314–315; measuring results of, 316; phases of, 305e–308; piloting, 308; process excellence framework of, 303–305; value as strategic learning intervention, 317–318
- Dialogue Map Compact (First Choice), 309
- Different perspectives: boundaries to demarcate context through, 26–28; learning facilitated by, 25–26; social fabric created through, 26
- DMAIC cycle, 303, 307e, 314

“DNA” (company):

CompanyCommand success facilitated by Army, 228; core competencies as part of, 14; educational solutions embedded in, 65

Dormann, J., 145

Duke University, 124

E

EADS case study: background information on, 87, 257–258; challenges of managing experts during, 274–275; Corporate Business Academy (CBA) program of, 259–267; creating unified entity goal of, 258–259; EADS Hall of Fame initiative during, 273–274; Executive Technical Committee (ETC) of, 267; facilitating networking by experts, 271–273; “Knowledge Management Day” (2007) held during, 272; on Leadership Development and Learning (LDL) establishment, 277; learning as strategic force during, 275–277; LVMH (Learning of Vivendi and Moët-Hennessey Louis Vuitton), 259; recognizing that experts need “people” training, 269–271; “too many experts” dilemma facing, 267–269

EADS Corporate Business Academy (CBA): assessing expert practices, 260–261; building flexibility into experts career path, 265–266*e*; creating expert ladder, 263–265; dilemma of having “too many” experts, 267–269; establishing definition of “expert,” 263; experts appointment process established by, 266–267; facilitating networking by experts, 271–273; launching the experts corporatwide policy, 262*e*–263; origins of, 259–260

Edison, T., 121

Elias Mutale Training Center for Sustainable Development, 241–242

Emotional learning, 30

Employee engagement: Action Card used for, 312–313*e*; dialogue maps used for, 309–310, DP DHL First Choice approach to, 308–314; Manager’s toolkit for, 310–312, 313*e*; Meeting Toolkit for, 310

Empowering the periphery, 15–16

EnBW Academy: birth of the, 168; “bottom-up” process of values development by, 171–181*fig*; cultural transformation process undertaken by, 169–171; first baby steps taken by, 169

EnBW case study: background information on, 85, 165–166; EnBW Academy of, 168–181; EnBW’s ten corporate values, 176*e*; EnBW’s transformation during, 181–183; as example of learning as a strategic force, 183; post-merger turmoil during, 166–167; Values Commission of, 175–176; values development timeline at, 181*e*

EnBW Leadership Day, 169
 EnBW values campaign: phase 1: employee identification of potential values, 172–174; phase 2: letting the values naturally disseminate, 174; phase 3: selecting the final values, 175–176*e*; phase 4: implementing the values, 176–179; phase 5: living the values, 179; phase 6: individual internalization of values, 179–181; plan undertaken for, 171–172; “Value Scouts” program, 177–178; Values Commission’s role in, 175–176; values development timeline, 181*e*
 Energie-Versorgung Schwaben AG, 166
 Ethical learning, 32–33
 Experts: dilemma over having “too many,” 267–269; EADS approach to managing technical, 259–260; EADS’s assessment of practices by, 260–261; EADS’s corporatewide policy on, 262*e*–267, 271–277; recognizing need for “people” training for, 269–271. See also Leadership
 External partners: business schools as, 63–64; coaches and trusted advisors as, 67–68; corporate learning and role of, 60–63; general management consulting firms as, 66–67; matrix for extended learning, 62*fig*; organizational development and change consulting firms as, 65–66; training firms as, 65

F

FastCompany magazine, 228
 Fauna and Flora International, 242
 Federal Express, 301
 Feldmann, J., 200, 205
Financial Times, 119–120, 281
First Choice initiative. See Deutsche Post DHL First Choice
 Fit₄2010 program (Siemens), 140
Fortune’s American’s Most Admired Companies list, 186

G

General management consulting firms, 66–67
 Globally networked organizations: developing network players of, 18; emergence of, 17–18; global citizenship responsibility of, 33; Novartis emergence as, 280–295; PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC) leadership as, 236; Siemens’ development as, 121–122
GoBeyond! (ABB Group): ABB Stotz intervention by, 152–160; description of, 144; “Fit for Future (or 3F)” project of, 156, 157; objectives/outcome of first management workshop by, 156, 157*e*; objectives/outcome of Fit for Future kick-off workshop by, 159*e*; origins of the, 148–152; seven change services offered by, 160*e*
GoBeyond! interventions: 1. build foundation for strategic repositioning, 153–156; 2. kicking off the change program, 156–158; 3. set up “pathfinders,” 158–160

Gram Vikas, 243
Guanxi (networks of influence), 283

H

Hamel, G., 14
Harvard Business School, 44, 64
Hensgen, A., 272–273, 274, 277
Hero’s journey: Joseph Campbell’s paradigm of the,
237; PricewaterhouseCoopers
Ulysses program application of, 231–254
Hewitt Associates, 291
Horstmann, M., 118–119, 123,
125–126, 132–133, 136, 141, 142
Hugo Extra (ABB newsletter), 161–162
Human resource (HR), learning and development function of,
1, 21
HypoVereinsbank Group (HVB),
94–95

I

iLink (CompanyCommand online forum), 226
IMD, 64
Industry transformation: learning architectures impact on,
50*fig*–51; learning as engine for, 47–48; linking learning and business processes for, 48*fig*–50.
See also Organizational change
Informal learning networks:
empowering people to decide
information relevance,
219*e*–221; introducing CompanyCommand approach to, 218–219

Information: people controlling access to knowledge and, 221–222; as residing in both
organization and people, 222–225*e*; 3 Cs principle and relevance of, 219*e*–221. See also Knowledge
INSEAD, 44, 64, 142, 202
Internet bubble burst (2000), 11–12

J

Jaffé, A., 191, 197, 201, 204, 205, 208
Jin, J., 286

K

Kim, W. Ch., 191
Kleinfeld, K., 118, 119–120, 122, 132, 134, 140
Knowledge: aligning formal and informal, 222–225*e*; efficient dissemination of, 13; need for relevant, 13; people controlling access to, 221–222;
unlearning obsolete, 13. See also Information
Knowledge management:
empowering the periphery
challenge of, 15–16; issues related to, 13–14
Knowledge-based organizations:
aligning formal/informal knowledge domains in, 222–225*fig*; ascent of, 12–14

L

“Leader Development in Dynamic and Hazardous Environments: Company Commander Learning in Combat” (Allen), 228

Leadership: Joseph

Campbell's paradigm of hero's journey and, 237;
PricewaterhouseCoopers Ulysses program developing, 231–254; Siemens Leadership Excellence approach to, 118–120, 125–142; UniCredit UniManagement Executive Learning Center for, 92–93, 95–105; U.S. Army's informal learning network for, 210–228.
See also Experts

Lean methodology, 303, 314

Learning: definitions of, 28; dimensions of, 28–35 fig; levels of, 42–51; nature of, 23–28; See-Do-Teach principle of, 137–138; storytelling approach to, 243–244; U.S. Army networks for informal, 86, 209–228. See also Corporate learning

Learning architectures: ABB

GoBeyond! Learning and Development unit, 144, 148–160 e; BASF perspectives project, 185, 190–208; created to enable learning, 226–228; Deutsche Post DHL First Choice, 238–319; EADS Corporate Business Academy (CBA), 259–267; EnBW Academy, 168–181; impact on business system by, 50 fig–51; linking strategic management with, 82; Novartis China Learning Center, 80, 284–293; PricewaterhouseCoopers Ulysses program, 231–254; Siemens Leadership Excellence, 138 e–139 e; tools and interventions of comprehensive, 51 fig–55; transforming corporate learning paradigm of, 55 fig–56; UniManagement Executive Learning Center, 92–93, 95–105; U.S. Army's information leadership learning network, 86, 209–228. See also Learning interventions; Training

Learning dimensions: actional learning, 33–34; analytical learning, 29–30; emotional learning, 30; ethical learning, 32–33; listed, 35 fig; political learning, 31–32; social learning, 30–31; topical learning, 28–29

Learning expeditions, 52

Learning interventions: corporate venturing, 54; customer visit programs, 52–53; “destroy your own business,” 54–55; learning expeditions, 52; overview of, 51 fig–52; popcorn stands, 53; value chain optimization, 53.
See also Learning architectures

Learning levels: business processes linked with, 48 fig–50; business system impact of, 50 fig–51; customized learning, 43–45; driving organizational change, 45–46; driving strategic business initiatives, 46–47; learning as engine for industry transformation, 47–48; standardized learning, 42–43

Learning nature: as context dependent, 23–24; learning creates social fabric, 26;

relevant learning happens
by encountering difference, 25–26; role of boundaries to demarcate context, 26–28

Level 1 (standardized learning),
42–43, 48*fig*–51

Level 2 (customized learning),
43–45, 48*fig*–51

Level 3 (learning as driver of change), 45–46, 48*fig*–51

Level 4 (learning driving strategic initiatives), 46–47, 48*fig*–51

Level 5 (learning for industry transformation), 47–51

Li, F., 288, 289–290, 292, 294, 295

Li, J., 287, 289

London Business School, 44

Löscher, P., 140

Louvain School of Management
(FUCaM), 202

Lucent, 260

LVMH (Learning of Vivendi
and Moët-Hennessy Louis Vuitton) [EADS], 259

M

Manager's toolkit (First Choice),
310–312, 313*e*

Manager's Toolkit Poster (First Choice), 313*e*

Mannheim Business School, 202

Massive disruption era, 10–12

Mauborgne, R., 191

Meeting Toolkit (First Choice), 310

Mergers and acquisitions (M&A):
Ciba-Geigy and Sandoz, 280; corporate learning role in supporting, 37; EADS's set of, 258; of Price Waterhouse with Coopers & Lybrand, 231, 235.
See also Organizational culture

MG Taylor, 93

N

Nature of learning. See Corporate learning nature

Network players, 18

NGOs (nongovernmental organizations): AMICAALL (Alliance of Mayors' Initiative against HIV/AIDS in Africa), 241; Elias Mutale Training Center for Sustainable Development, 241–242; Fauna
and Flora International,
242; Gram Vikas, 243;
PricewaterhouseCoopers
Ulysses program partnership with, 231, 238–243; RESPECT, 242–243; Save the Children
and YMCEP, 243; Ulysses program learning impact on the, 250; UNOPS (United Nations Office for Project Services), 241. See also Organizations

Novartis Business Academy
(Russia), 293

Novartis case study: background
information on, 88, 279–280;
Novartis China Learning Center established during, 280, 284–295; Novartis
emergence as global leader, 280–282

Novartis China: description and challenges faced by, 282–284;
Novartis China Learning
Center established for, 280,
284–295. See also China

Novartis China Learning Center:
BiMBA program of, 285–287;
description of, 80; global replication of success by, 293;
impact on Novartis by,

Novartis China Learning Center
(continued)
 291–293; launching the, 284–285; localizing success of global programs by, 288–290;
 success factors for the, 292;
 taking locals global through the, 290–291
 Novo Nordisk, 293

O

Odyssey (Homer), 232–233
 Organizational architect, 20
 Organizational change: ABB Stotz-Kontakt's corporate learning for, 84, 143–164; BASF perspectives project for customer centricity, 85–86, 185–208; business processes linked to learning and,
 48*fig*–50; business system impact of learning and,
 50*fig*–51; EADS's technological expertise management for, 87, 257–277; EnBW case study on successful, 85, 165–183;
 learning as driver of, 45–46;
 Novartis leadership learning
 as strategic, 88, 279–295;
 PricewaterhouseCoopers
 executive hero's journey to,
 86–87, 231–255; Siemens'
 executive leadership learning for, 84, 117–142; UniCredit's innovative learning for, 83, 91–116; U.S. Army's informal leadership learning network for, 86, 209–228. See also Industry transformation
 Organizational culture:
 command-and-control, 16, 17;
 EADS approach to creating unified, 87, 257–277; EnBW case study on transformation of, 85, 165–183. See also Mergers and acquisitions

 (M&A); Values development
 Organizational development
 (OD) consulting, 65–66
 Organizational excellence,
 36–37, 39*fig*
 Organizations: ascent of knowledge-based, 12–14;
 command-and-control model
 of, 16, 17; core competences of, 14–15; creating entrepreneurial environment in,
 54; globally networked, 17–18, 33, 121–122, 236, 280–281;
 knowledge-based, 12–14,
 222–225*e*; as value-oriented community, 251–253*e*. See also NCOs (nongovernmental organizations)

P

Paffenholz, H.-P., 148–149, 153
 Pathfinder method (BASF),
 198–199
 People excellence, 35–36, 39*fig*, 122
 “People” training, 269–271
 Pfizer, 293
 Pierer, H. von, 122, 125
 Political learning, 31–32
 “Popcorn stands,” 53
 Prahalad, C. K., 14
 PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC)
 case study: background
 information on, 86–87,
 231–232; creating value-oriented community during,
 251–253*e*; Ulysses program of,
 231–254

- PricewaterhouseCoopers Ulysses program: Aha! moment breakthrough of the, 237–238; creating value-oriented community through, 251–253*e*; designing the, 238–244; four foundational elements of, 235–237; multistakeholder significance of the, 245–251; NGOs (nongovernmental organizations) partnership with, 231, 238–243; Odyssey story of Ulysses basis of, 232–233; origins of the, 231–232, 234; time frame of, 244*e*; transformational self-discovery journey focus of, 233–234
- Profumo, A., 94
- R
- Reagan, R., 11
- Red Cross, 216
- Remenyi, F., 146–147, 160, 164
- RESPECT (Recovery, Employment and Stability Program for Ex-Combatants and Communities), 242–243
- Roehrig, M., 149–152, 154, 159, 164
- S
- Sandoz, 280
- Save the Children, 243
- Schneider, R., 234, 235, 236, 237–238, 248, 254–255
- Schumpeter, J., 11
- See-Do-Teach principle, 137–138
- September 11th, 2001, 12
- Siemens case study: background information on, 84; Fit₄ 2010 program, 140; historical context of, 121–123; history of leadership learning at Siemens, 123–125; leadership learning as strategic force during, 141–142; rationale for the leadership learning initiative during, 123; Siemens Leadership Excellence (SLE) program during, 118–120, 125–142
- Siemens Leadership Excellence (SLE): Corporate Management Course (CMC) of the, 126–131*e*, 134–140; design principles followed by the, 137–138, 140; designing concepts, components, and connections of, 125–131*e*; four threads of the, 127–128*e*; the launching of, 132–133; learning architecture of, 138*e*–139*e*; ongoing value through a crisis, 140–141; origins of, 118–120; rationale for initiative of the, 123
- Siemens Management Consulting (SMC), 119, 122, 124–125
- Siemens U.S., 122
- Siemens, W. von, 121
- Simioni, A., 93, 95, 99–101, 103, 105, 110–117
- Six Sigma, 303, 306–307*e*, 514
- Social learning, 30–31
- South American Business Forum (2008), 203
- Standard Dialogue Map (First Choice), 309–310
- Standardized learning level: business processes linked to, 48*fig*–50; business system impact of, 50*fig*–51; description of, 42–43
- Stanford Business School, 64
- STAR program (DP DHL), 300
- Stephan, V., 149, 151–152

Stockholm School of Economics, 293

Storytelling, 243–244

Strategic business initiatives:
 business processes linked to, 48*fig*–50; business system impact of, 50*fig*–51; learning as driver of, 46–47

Strategic excellence, 38–39*fig*

Strategic process: convergence of learning and, 71–73; dynamic of the, 74*fig*; linking learning architecture with, 82; strategy execution subprocess of, 74, 79–80, 81*fig*–82; strategy formulation subprocess of, 74, 77–79, 81*fig*–82; strategy generation subprocess of, 73–74, 75–77, 81*fig*–82

Strategy execution: description of, 74, 79–80; rationale for, 81*fig*–82

Strategy formulation: description of, 74, 77–79; rationale for, 81*fig*–82

Strategy generation: description of, 73–74, 75–77; rationale for, 81*fig*–82

Synapse (online social network), 203

T

Taylor, M., 96

Terrasse, I., 272

Thatcher, M., 11

Thomas, J. M., 259–260

3 Cs principle, 219*e*–221

360-degree feedback reviews, 138, 140

Topical learning, 28–29

Training: “people,” 269–271; school-based approach to, 1. See also Learning architectures

Training Firms, 65

U

Ulysses program. See PricewaterhouseCoopers Ulysses program

UniCredit case study:
 background information on, 83, 91–92; different learning styles accommodated during, 105–111; learning philosophy used during, 100–102; learning team and learning events during, 111–113; origins and rise of, 94–95; strategic value of learning at, 115–116; UniManagement Executive Learning Center of, 92–93, 95–105; UniQuest Program of, 113–115

UniManagement Executive Learning Center:
 conversation, doing, quiet, and group activities rooms at the, 106; creation of the, 95–96; description of, 92–93; design details creating energy, dialogue, and interactivity at the, 103–105; different learning styles accommodated at the, 105–111; learning philosophy of the, 100–102; learning team and events held at the, 111–113; physical description of, 96–100; UniQuest Program of the, 113–115

United Parcel Service, 301

Unlearning obsolete knowledge, 13
 UNOPS (United Nations Office for Project Services), 241
 U.S. Army case study:
 background information on, 86, 209–210;
 CompanyCommand online forum during, 212–228;
 origins of informal leadership learning network in, 210–212

V

Value chain: BASF perspectives approach to transcending the, 206–208; optimization of, 53; technical experts found throughout, 269

Value curve: BASF perspectives approach to the, 192–193; BASF's CIM (Customer Interaction Model) propositions for, 197*e*; BASF's reinvention of the, 193*e*. See also Customers

“Value Scouts” program (EnBW), 177–178

Value-oriented community, 251–253*e*

Values development: EnBW experience with, 172–181*e*; PwC Ulysses program creating, 251–253*e*

Values development phases:
 1: employee identified potential values, 172–174;
 2: letting values naturally disseminate, 174; 3: selecting the final values, 175–176; 4: implementing the values, 176–179; 5: living the values, 179; 6: individual internalization of values, 179–181. See also

Organizational culture

Vasella, D., 281

Venture capital (VC) unit, 54

Vu Jade experience, 223

W

Waltmann, F., 281, 282, 284, 285, 289, 292, 293, 294, 295

Weick, K., 223

Weuger, E., 214

Winklbauer, H., 299, 302, 309, 318–319

Woyde-Köhler, D., 168, 170, 177, 184

X

Xerox's PARC, 13

Y

YMBEP (Yunnan Minority Basic Education Project), 243

Z

Zumwinkel, K., 302

<http://www.pbookshop.com>

<http://www.pbookshop.com>

<http://www.pbookshop.com>

<http://www.pbookshop.com>

<http://www.pbookshop.com>