

Contents

Table of Cases	xiii
Table of Legislation	xix
1 Consent in the Law: A Preliminary Examination	1
I Introduction	1
II What is there to Understand about Consent?	4
(i) The Function of Consent	5
(ii) The Conditions for Giving a Valid Consent	7
(iii) The Capacity (and Competence) to Consent	12
(iv) Does it Matter Who Gives Consent (including by proxy) and to Whom it is Given?	14
(v) The Necessity, Sufficiency, and Justifying Limits of Consent	15
(vi) The Signalling of Consent	19
(vii) The Scope and Interpretation of Consent	22
(viii) Withdrawal of Consent	23
(ix) Refusal of Consent	25
III Mapping the Ethics of Consent	27
(i) A Utilitarian Approach and Consent	27
(ii) A Rights-led Approach (under a Will Theory of Rights) and Consent	29
(iii) A Duty-led Approach and Consent	31
IV The Purpose and Plan of the Book	32
Coda	34

Contents

PART ONE: A GEWIRTHIAN APPROACH TO CONSENT IN THE LAW

2 The Principle of Generic Consistency: Its Justification and Application	39
I Introduction	39
II The PGC	39
III Why Employ the PGC?	41
(i) The Dialectically Necessary Argument	41
(ii) An Alternative Presentation of this Argument	43
(iii) Deriving Acceptance of the PGC from the Acceptance of Morality	44
(iv) The Dialectically Contingent Argument from the Acceptance of Human Rights	46
(v) The Dialectically Contingent Argument from Impartial Rationality	50
IV Applying the PGC	51
(i) Empirical Specification of the Generic Conditions	51
(ii) Judging Agency (Precaution under a Categorical Imperative)	52
(iii) Direct and Indirect Applications	55
3 The Functions of Consent in the Law	59
I Introduction	59
II Consent as a Procedural Justification	61
III Hohfeldian Analysis and Consent	64
(i) A has a Right; B has a Duty	65
(ii) A has a Privilege; B has a No-right	66
(iii) A has a Power; B has a Liability	69
(a) Powers with a Right/Duty Baseline	70
(b) Powers with a Privilege/No-right Baseline	71
(iv) A has an Immunity; B has a Disability	74

Contents

IV	The Consent Proviso	74
	(i) A has a Right; B has a Duty	75
	(ii) A has a Privilege; B has a No-right	76
	(iii) A has a Power; B has a Liability	79
	(iv) A has an Immunity; B has a Disability	80
	(v) Summary	80
V	The Functions of Consent in the Law: A Working Model	81
	(i) Changes Internal to a Relationship	81
	(ii) Changes that Create a Legal Relationship	82
	(iii) A Working Model of the Functions of Consent in the Law	83
VI	The Consent Proviso and the Gewirthian Will Theory of Rights	85
VII	The Agenda for Discussion	88

PART TWO: CONSENT IN THE LAW I:
QUESTIONS OF ADEQUACY

4	Subjects of Consent. Questions of Capacity and Competence	93
I	Introduction	93
II	Identifying Subjects of Consent	98
	(i) The Ideal-typical Subject of Consent	98
	(ii) Subjects of Consent Viewed under the Precautionary Principle	101
	(a) Protection under Precaution	101
	(b) Beneficiaries of Precaution	104
	(c) Intermittent Agents	108
	(d) Task Competence	110
	(iii) When does one Become a Subject of Consent? The Question of Age Limits	111 vii

Contents

III	Dealing with Non-ideal-typical Subjects of Consent	114
	(i) Substituted Judgement: the Case of Jerry Strunk	114
	(ii) Best Interests	117
	(iii) Proxies	119
	(iv) Dealing with the Dead	121
	(v) Justifying Actions Without Consent	123
IV	Conclusion	123
5	The Conditions of (Valid) Consent I: Unforced and Informed Choice	125
I	Introduction	125
II	A Gewirthian Approach to the Conditions of Consent	127
III	Consent: The Pivotal Conditions	130
	(i) Unforced Choice	131
	(a) What Counts as External Force?	133
	(b) Unforced Choice, Involuntary Action, and Acting against one's Will	138
	(c) Limited Choice	143
	(ii) Knowledge and Understanding	145
IV	Conclusion	153
6	The Conditions of Consent II: Duress, Undue Influence, and Disclosure	155
I	Introduction	155
II	Free Choice, Economic Duress, and Undue Influence	156
	(i) Duress	159
	(ii) Undue Influence	165
III	Informed Consent and Disclosure	170
IV	Conclusion	183

Contents

7 Questions of Signalling and Scope, Withdrawal, and Refusal	187
I Introduction	187
II The Signalling of Consent	188
(i) The Subjective Test	190
(ii) Signalling in Person	197
(iii) Distinct and Definite Signalling	199
(iv) Unequivocal Signal	205
(v) Ex Ante	207
(vi) The Timing of Consent and the Proviso re Delay	208
(a) Where a Change of Mind is Permitted	209
(b) Where a Change of Mind is not Permitted	211
(vii) Taking Stock	212
III The Scope and Interpretation of Consent	212
IV Withdrawal and Refusal of Consent	221
(i) Withdrawal of Consent	221
(a) Withdrawal in relation to an Agreed Change of Position	222
(b) Withdrawal in relation to the Consensual Creation of a New Relationship	223
(ii) Refusal	225
V Conclusion	226
PART THREE: CONSENT IN THE LAW II: QUESTIONS OF NECESSITY AND SUFFICIENCY
8 The Necessity, Sufficiency, and Relevance of Consent I: Private Wrong and Private Empowerment	231
I Introduction	231
II Private Wrong: The Necessity and Sufficiency of Consent: Some Groundwork	232

Contents

II Private Wrong: The Necessity and Sufficiency of Consent as a Relevant Justificatory Condition	237
(i) Viewing Consent from a Gewirthian Perspective	240
(ii) One Aspect of the Fallacy of Necessity: Without Consent there is a Wrong	242
(iii) Commercial Exploitation Without Consent	243
(iv) Defences to Private Wrong and a Second Aspect of the Fallacy of Necessity	252
(v) The Sufficiency of Consent	256
IV Private Empowerment: The Necessity and Sufficiency of Consent as a Relevant Justificatory Condition	257
(i) The Necessity of Consent	259
(ii) The Sufficiency of Consent	264
V Conclusion	267
9 The Necessity, Sufficiency, and Relevance of Consent II: Public Wrong	269
I Introduction	269
II Public Wrong and the Sufficiency of Consent	270
(i) Autonomy-limitation I: The Regulation of Assisted Suicide and Homosexuality	272
(a) Assisted Suicide	273
(b) Homosexuality	285
(ii) Autonomy-limitation II: The Regulation of Access to Reproductive Technologies	291
(iii) Taking Stock	297
III Non-consensual Justifications and Excuses	297
IV Conclusion	303

Contents

PART FOUR: CONSENT AS THE BASIS OF LEGAL
(POLITICAL) AUTHORITY AND OBLIGATION

10	Consent and the Stability and Authority of Law	307
I	Introduction	307
II	Law's Claim to Authority	311
III	The Internal Problem of Authority	316
IV	The External Problem of Authority	323
V	Conclusion	330
11	Consent as Procedural Justification: Concluding Remarks	333
I	Introduction	333
II	Methodology	334
III	The Functions of Consent	335
IV	From a Simple Community of Rights to a Legal Community of Rights	338
V	Who can Consent?	342
VI	Disentangling the Requirements of an Adequate Consent	343
	(i) Signalling	343
	(ii) Unforced Choice	345
	(iii) Informed Choice	347
	(iv) Interpretation	349
	(v) Taking Stock	350
VII	Relative Autonomy	351
VIII	The Justificatory Power and Province of Consent	355
	(i) The Fallacy of Necessity	355
	(ii) The Fallacy of Sufficiency	356

Contents

IX	Legitimation and Legitimacy	357
X	'Governance by Consent' and the Authority of the Law	359
XI	Law and Consent in the Global Order after 9/11	361
	Index	365

<http://www.pbookshop.com>