

Contents

Preface	v
Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	xiii
PART I The Uniqueness of Zero-Sum Markets	1
CHAPTER 1 Basics of Zero-Sum Markets	3
CHAPTER 2 Who Is the Market?	13
CHAPTER 3 The Four Components of Market Structure	23
CHAPTER 4 The Illusion of Technical Analysis	33
CHAPTER 5 The Psychology of Initiating and Liquidating a Position	41
PART II The Theory of Time Compression	49
CHAPTER 6 The Development of the Theory	51
CHAPTER 7 Time Compression and Technical Analysis	59
CHAPTER 8 Forced Liquidation and Order Flow	67
	iii

CHAPTER 9	How Leverage Increases the Potential for Forced Liquidation	75
CHAPTER 10	How Traders Lose Perspective	81
PART III	Exploiting Multiple Time Frames	89
CHAPTER 11	Basics of Multiple Time Frames	91
CHAPTER 12	Three Market Potentials: Uptrend, Downtrend, and Range	105
CHAPTER 13	The 12 Choices in Executing Trades	113
CHAPTER 14	Thinking in Probabilities	119
CHAPTER 15	Using Multiple Time Frames	127
PART IV	The Five Basic Market Structures	137
CHAPTER 16	Topping Market	141
CHAPTER 17	Bottoming Market	151
CHAPTER 18	Secure Uptrend and Downtrend	163
CHAPTER 19	Secure Range	171
CHAPTER 20	Conclusion	183
	About the Author	185
	Index	187