

Contents

Series Editor's Preface	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
List of Abbreviations	xiv
Table of Cases	xv
Table of Legislation	xxi
Introduction	xxvii
1. Children and Socio-economic Rights	1
Introduction	1
Of Definitions and Other Things	1
The Emergence and Reframing of Children as Socio-economic Rights-Holders	7
Children: A Special Case?	13
Socio-economic Rights: A Question of Definition and the Challenge of 'Nature'	21
Children's Socio-economic Rights: The Role of International Law	32
Turning to the 'Least Powerful Branch': Points of Entry and the Scope of Judicial Activity	38
Conclusion	42
2. Children and Democracy	43
Introduction	43
Democracy: A Term in Search of a Definition.....	44
Setting the Scene: The Child as 'Democratic Citizen'	46
Representation of Children in Democracy.....	49
Representation of Children by Elected Representatives.....	50
Representation of Children by Parents.....	56
Parents Representing Their Own Children's Interests.....	56
Parents Representing Children's Interests Generally	61
Representation of Children by Adults Generally	64
Ensuring Virtual Representation Through Sympathy or Empathy ..	69
Other Means of Bringing Children's Interests to Bear in Democracy	71
Child Lobby Groups	73
Ombudspersons	75
The Role of Children's Participation Rights.....	77
Other Reasons for Children's Inability to Exert Indirect Influence on Democratic Decision-making Processes.....	83
A Brief Note on Failure of Representation	88
Conclusion	92

3. Exploring the ‘Counter-Majoritarian Objection’	93
Introduction	93
The Counter-Majoritarian Difficulty: A Brief Account.....	94
Children’s Socio-economic Rights, the Majoritarian Premise and the Desirability that the Legislature Should Have the Final Word	98
Children, Democracy and ‘The Core of the Case Against Judicial Review’	101
Disagreement, Majority Voting, Equal Respect and Children’s Socio-economic Rights	103
Where Representatives Fail to Represent.....	112
Children and the ‘Tyranny of the Majority’	118
Enter Ely	120
Ely’s Theory of Representation Reinforcing Judicial Review and Children: A Step Too Far?.....	125
Conclusion	131
4. A Question of Balance? The Separation of Powers, Constitutional Supremacy and Children’s Socio-economic Rights	134
Introduction	134
The Separation of Powers Doctrine and the Judicial Enforcement of Children’s Socio-economic Rights: Some Initial Observations	136
The Separation of Powers and the Judicial Function under the Irish and South African Constitutions.....	140
The Context for Judicial Action: The TD and TAC Cases	153
Giving Effect to Children’s Socio-economic Rights: Part of the Traditional Judicial Function?	155
The Nature of Socio-economic Rights: Alleged Implications for the Separation of Powers	156
The Challenge of Remedies?	160
Ensuring the Vindication of Children’s Socio-economic Rights: Justifying an Infringement of the Separation of Powers?	162
Ireland, South Africa and Children’s Socio-economic Rights: A Study in Contrasts?	163
Ireland, South Africa: A Tale of Two Approaches to Remedies	172
The Irish and the South African Courts: Striking a Different Balance?	176
Enforcing Children’s Socio-economic Rights: Part of the Courts’ Duty under the Separation of Powers?	180
Children In Democracy, the Court’s Role as Guardian of the Constitution and its Approach to the Separation of Powers.....	182
Conclusion	185

5. The Issue of Efficacy	187
Introduction	187
Evaluating Efficacy	188
Courts and Socio-economic Rights: A Case of Institutional Incapacity?	191
An Information Deficit?	193
A Lack of Expertise, Qualifications or Experience?	197
The Issue of Polycentricity	200
Socio-economic Rights and ‘Limited’ Judicial Remedies	204
The Challenge of Implementation	207
Ensuring Enforcement: Other Key Factors	212
The Role of Social Movements	213
The Role of ‘Popular Legitimacy’	215
Conclusion	218
6. Using the Courts to Advance Children’s Socio-economic Rights: Proceed with Caution?	220
Introduction	220
Employing the Law to Bring About the Enforcement of Children’s Socio-economic Rights: The Drawbacks	221
Representation and Agenda-Setting	221
The Partial Nature of Legal Solutions	232
Courts: Part of the Problem?	234
Of Straitjackets and Obligation Limitations: Judicial Enforcement as ‘Blocking’ the Vindication of Children’s Socio-economic Rights?	241
Judicial Enforcement of Children’s Socio-economic Rights: Serving Some Children While Disadvantaging Others?	244
Conclusion	255
7. Conclusions	257
Select Bibliography	260
Index	285