

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
Prelude: playing with brands	xi
CHAPTER ONE: GETTING THE BEST FROM THIS BOOK	1
Brand redefined	6
How dreams and visions produce hard results	9
When dreams lose their magic	12
Discover the genius behind your brand	15
CHAPTER TWO: NIGHTMARES AND DREAMS: THE NEW WORLD OF BRANDS	29
Welcome to the era of warp-speed change	34
Changing everything at Internet speed	37
Globalisation, fair trade and ethical business	39
An unstoppable chain reaction	40
Brands in the dock	41
The democratisation of power and influence	43
Brands that run riot	45
The evolving role of brands	50
Putting corporate values on the line	56

Contents

Seeing is believing: opening the doors of perception	58
Dysfunctional brand management: the search for a cure	62
CHAPTER THREE: ENDURING MYTHS, NEW CHALLENGES AND REALITIES	67
Myth One: Brands are just about differentiation in the marketplace	69
Myth Two: What you see is all you get	69
Myth Three: Brands only concern the marketing department	70
Myth Four: Customers are the only brand consumers that count	71
Myth Five: External research will tell you all you need to know about your brand	72
Myth Six: You can bury the bad news	72
Myth Seven: With the internationalisation of markets, it is easy for brands to act globally	74
Challenge One: Do you confuse new product development and innovation with brand extension?	76
Challenge Two: Do you think that you are the real owner of your brand?	76
Challenge Three: Is your brand development two paces behind the competition?	78

Contents

Challenge Four: Do you still believe you have a unique selling point?	78
The new rules of brand engagement	80
Rule One: Brands are too important to be left to the brand manager	82
Rule Two: Brands need to be reviewed and renewed	83
Rule Three: The leader is the brand	84
Rule Four: Brand reputation may not be easily quantifiable, but it is a major asset	88
Rule Five: Your brand should be one of the most important drivers of performance at every level of the business	90
Rule Six: Get in touch with the genius of the brand to discover its transformational power	91
Get in touch with the current status of your brand	93
CHAPTER FOUR: HOW THE BRAND DREAM PROCESS TOOK SHAPE	95
Unravelling the brand enigma	99
Principle One: If you stay on the surface you will never understand what lies underneath	100
Principle Two: Location, location, location – never underestimate the magical power of place to energise or demotivate the creative process	103

Contents

Principle Three: Use all your faculties, not just your intellect, to see things in new ways	104
Principle Four: Conventional methods produce conventional results. Trust your intuition to lead you where you need to go	113
Principle Five: If you are not enjoying yourself and thinking intuitively, then you are not going to be creative	116
Principle Six: Once you change the way you feel about the whole brand experience, you can change the way the brand behaves	118
The personal dividend	119
Stories with a point	121
CHAPTER FIVE: FITTING THE PIECES TOGETHER: THE BRAND DREAM MODEL	123
An inclusive process for everyone from CEO to floor sweeper	131
Raising the curtain on the brand dream event	133
Rediscovering the legacy and traditions of the brand	134
The play's the thing	135
Brand behaviour and the personal connection	137
Phase Four: The dream and the guiding principle for brand development	139
A process that embeds the brand in the organisational psyche	143

CHAPTER SIX: TAKING THE BRAND DREAM MEDICINE	145
Polishing up a brand's diamond qualities	150
Building a multicultural consensus around a brand	155
First impressions of the brand dream model	157
Understanding brand chemistry of the brand	161
CHAPTER SEVEN: DECONSTRUCTING BRANDS: A NEW WAY OF SUSSING OUT THE COMPETITION	167
I had a dream . . .	171
Nike: best is never good enough	172
Virgin: the people's fearless champion	182
Lost and found: how Marks & Spencer rediscovered what made it great	188
Ryanair: come f . . . ly with me	195
What Google did next . . .	202
Tough choices at the BBC	210
Oxfam: BINGO with an awesome prize	217
Try it yourself	225
CHAPTER EIGHT: ENGAGING STAFF IN THE EMPLOYER BRAND	227
The rise of employer branding	230
CHAPTER NINE: WEB THREATS AND OPPORTUNITIES	255
Power to the people	257

Contents

CHAPTER TEN: AN INSPIRATIONAL APPROACH TO INNOVATION	283
The blocks to effective innovation	287
The innovation tunnel: a trip into the unknown	299
Getting into the spirit of innovation	302
Why consumer boot camps turn up better answers	305
CHAPTER ELEVEN: RENEWING THE DREAM	309
Index	315

<http://www.pbookshop.com>