

Contents

List of Tables	ix
List of Figures	xi
Preface	xiii
1 Introduction	1
What you will find in this chapter	1
1.1 What is innovation anyway?	3
1.2 What happens when you don't futureproof	8
1.3 Five things that innovation is not	10
1.4 150 years of innovation in banks	15
1.5 The innovation downside	22
1.6 An overview of the futureproofing process	23
1.7 Where to go now	29
2 Innovation Theories and Models	31
What you will find in this chapter	31
2.1 The innovation adoption decision process	32
2.2 Personal innovativeness	38
2.3 Innovation from the perspective of the market	41
2.4 Characteristics of innovations	45
2.5 Innovation from the perspective of the firm	50
2.6 Case Study: The internal adoption of social media	57
2.7 Theory of disruption	59
2.8 Case Study: PayPal's continuing disruption of the payments market	63
2.9 Thoughts before going further	65
3 Innovating in Banks	67
What you will find in this chapter	67
3.1 The innovation pentagram in banks	67
3.2 The Five Capability Model of a successful innovation function	75
3.3 Case Study: Innovation at Bank of America	85

3.4	Building out the futureproofing process	89
3.5	Technology, business, and innovation	93
3.6	Autonomic innovation	102
3.7	Case Study: ChangeEverything, a project by Vancity in Canada	104
3.8	The banking innovation challenge	106
4	Futurecasting	107
	What you will find in this chapter	107
4.1	The purpose of futurecasting	108
4.2	An overview of futurecasting	111
4.3	What futurecasts should innovators be doing?	112
4.4	An example	114
4.5	Constructing the futurecast with scenario planning methods	119
4.6	Prediction methods	125
4.7	Case Study: AMP's Innovation Festival	131
4.8	Some final words about futurecasting	133
5	Managing Ideation	135
	What you will find in this chapter	135
5.1	An overview of the ideation phase	136
5.2	Campaign and create	137
5.3	Collect, catalogue, and compare	140
5.4	Scoring	143
5.5	Customer insight	153
5.6	Customer co-creation	155
5.7	Case Study: Royal Bank of Canada's Next Great Innovator Challenge	156
5.8	Concluding remarks	157
6	The Innovation Phase	159
	What you will find in this chapter	159
6.1	Should we? Can we? When?	160
6.2	The innovation portfolio	163
6.3	What happens next?	171
6.4	Tools for 'Should we?'	173
6.5	Tools for 'Can we?'	176
6.6	Tools for 'When?'	182
6.7	Selling innovations	185
6.8	Case Study: Bank of America and the Centre for Future Banking	188
6.9	Wrapping up the innovation phase	191
7	Execution	193
	What you will find in this chapter	193
7.1	Ways to manage execution	194
7.2	Building the new thing	198
7.3	The launch	208
7.4	Operations post-launch	213
7.5	Signals for futurecasting	222

7.6	Case Study: Innovation Market	223
7.7	The end of futureproofing	225
8	Leading Innovation Teams	227
	What you will find in this chapter	227
8.1	Leadership styles	228
8.2	Things the leaders should do	235
8.3	Signs of a bad innovation leader	240
8.4	What next?	244
9	The Innovation Team	247
	What you will find in this chapter	247
9.1	The changing shape of the innovation workforce	247
9.2	Creators, embellishers, perfectors, and implementers	253
9.3	Team working	256
9.4	When innovators go bad	261
9.5	A last word about innovation teams	265
10	Processes and Controls	267
	What you will find in this chapter	267
10.1	Oversight	268
10.2	Metrics	271
10.3	Rewards and recognition	275
10.4	Innovation and the organisation	277
10.5	Funding innovation	280
10.6	The visible face of innovation	283
10.7	And finally . . .	284
11	Making Futureproofing Work in Your Institution	285
	What you will find in this chapter	285
11.1	Case Study: Civic banking at Caja Navarra	285
11.2	Starting your innovation programme	287
11.3	Making ideation work	290
11.4	The innovation stage	294
11.5	Execution	297
11.6	Doing futurecasting	300
11.7	Innovation leaders and teams	302
	Some Final Words	305
	References	307
	Index	311

<http://www.pbookshop.com>