

Contents

Foreword, by Philip Kotler	v
Introduction: Numbers and Their Meaning:
Kansas City, Missouri	ix
The Enduring Impact of the Great Recession         on Our Values and on Consumerism
1 The New American Frontier:
Detroit, Michigan	1
“Indestructible Spirit”—The Values of Optimism,         Resiliency, and Opportunity
2 Don’t Fence Me In: Dallas, Texas	28
“Retooling”—The Values of Self-Reliance, Faith,     and Betterment
3 The Badge of Awesomeness:
Boston, Massachusetts	53
“Liquid Life”—The Values of Nimbleness,         Adaptability, and Thrift
4 An Army of Davids: Tampa, Florida	78
“Cooperative Consumerism”—The Values of     Community, Collaboration, and Respect

5	Block Party Capitalism: Brooklyn, New York	103
	“From Materialism to What’s Material”—The Values of Character, Authenticity, and Performance
6	The Quality of the Lion: Las Vegas, Nevada	128
	Reinventing Business Models and Corporate Culture to Rebuild Trust
7	The Citizen Corporation: Dearborn, Michigan	157
	How Large Institutions Are Becoming Truly Public Companies
8	Innovation Nation: San Francisco, California	182
	America as an Emerging Market for Values-Led Ideas
	Coda: The Takeaway: Los Angeles, California	205
	Ten Ways the Modern Enterprise (and Individual) Can Thrive in the Post-Crisis Age
	Suggested Reading	227
	Acknowledgments	229
	Notes	231
	About the Authors	241
	Index	243