

Contents

Introduction	1
1 The Corporation and Its Employees	7
Introduction to the Corporate Governance Debate	7
The Corporation and Its Employees	9
Real Lives: Too Much Work and No Work	10
2 Firm Theories and Employees as Stakeholders	17
Management and Employees	17
Firm Theories and Management Accountability	17
Capital Markets Theory: Connections Between Ownership and Control	20
Questioning the Control Structure	22
Conclusion on Firm Theories	23
Transatlantic Comparisons	25
3 The European Experience: Policy	27
Introduction	27
Legal Foundations of the Social Policy	28
Competitiveness and Social Protection	32
Europe in a Global Context	34
Conclusion	35
4 The European Experience: Legislation	37
The Proprietorial Interest Model	37
The Management-Labour Consultative Model	48
The Trade Union Model	53
5 US Models for Improved Governance	59
Employee Share Ownership	59
Institutional Shareownership	65
The Multi-Fiduciary Approach	69
6 The Theoretical Debate	77
Introduction	77
Corporate Law Scholars and the Real World	78
Ownership	80
Stakeholding and Ownership	83

x Contents

Corporate Function: 'Total Wealth Creation'	83
Corporate Function: Labour as Cost	85
Corporate Function: The Communitarian View	89
7 The Ethical Corporation	93
Trust	94
The Role of Ethics	97
The Use of the Multi-Fiduciary Approach to Accommodate the Ethical Corporation	100
The Corporation as Public Actor	102
8 Comparative Ownership Structures	105
Introduction	105
Ownership Structures relevant to Stakeholding in the Anglo-American and European Corporation.	108
The Market for Corporate Control: A European Perspective	114
Advantages of Institutional Monitoring	115
The Common Law World meets Europe: The United Kingdom and Ireland	119
9 Corporate Governance and Responsibility	123
Introduction	123
The Same Question: Different Answers	125
Different Forms of Capitalism	130
What do Shareholders or Residual Claimants Really Want?	131
Future Strategies	133
10 The Global Corporation: Does Governance Matter?	137
Global Competitiveness	138
The Global Economy and the Worker	140
The Global Future	144
Conclusion	145
Bibliography	147
Index	159