

Contents

Table of Figures	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Disclaimer	xv
List of Acronyms	xvii
Table of Cases	xxi
Table of Legislation	xxiii
Introduction	1
I. The Starting Point: Growing Trade in Digitally-Delivered Content Products	2
II. The Research Question	7
III. Research Approach and Structure of the Study	8
IV. Contribution of this Research	11
V. Research Context	12
Part One: The WTO Negotiation Context	13
1 The WTO's Work Relating to Digitally-Delivered Content Products	15
1.1 WTO Work Programme on Electronic Commerce	16
1.1.1 Phase One: Geneva Ministerial Conference—Seattle Ministerial Conference	16
1.1.2 Phase Two: Seattle Ministerial Conference—Doha Ministerial Conference	19
1.1.3 Phase Three: Doha Ministerial Conference—Preparations for Cancún Ministerial Conference	22
1.1.4 Phase Four: Preparations for the Cancún Ministerial Conference and the General Council Decision of July 2004	23
1.2 Doha Development Agenda	24
1.2.1 Non-Agricultural Market Access Negotiations (NAMA)	26
1.2.2 Trade in Service Negotiations	27
1.3 Conclusion	31
Part Two: Requirements for Free Trade in Digitally-Delivered Content Products	33
2 Unresolved Horizontal WTO E-Commerce Questions	35
2.1 The WTO Duty-free Moratorium on Electronic Transmissions	37
2.2 The Customs Valuation of Digital Content	43
2.3 Unresolved Questions of Classification	48
2.3.1 Digitally-Delivered Content Products: Goods (GATT), Services (GATS) or Intellectual Property (TRIPS)?	51
2.3.2 If under GATS: Which Service Trade Commitments Apply?	62

viii Contents

3	Essential Improvements of WTO Trade Commitments	81
3.1	Goods: NAMA Negotiations and the Information Technology Agreement	81
3.2	Services: The GATS Negotiations	84
3.2.1	Stock-Taking of GATS Commitments for the Cross-Border Delivery of Services	84
3.2.2	Computer and Related Services	90
3.2.3	Value-Added Telecommunication Services	91
3.2.4	Audiovisual Services	92
3.2.5	Entertainment Services	98
	Conclusion to Part Two	98
	Part Three: Internal US and EC Negotiation Parameters	101
4	US Negotiation Parameters: Internal Measures and Trade Jurisdiction	103
4.1	Internal Dimension: US Freedom of Speech and Laissez-Faire Approach	104
4.1.1	Quasi-Inexistence of US Audiovisual Policy and an Export-Oriented US Content Industry	104
4.1.2	New US Policies for the Digital Age	107
4.2	External Dimension: The US Trade Policy Jurisdiction Relating to Digital Content	112
4.2.1	Fundamentals of the US Trade Policy Jurisdiction	113
4.2.2	From Stalemate Concerning Renewed Fast-Track Legislation to the 'Trade Act of 2002'	115
4.2.3	The Trade Act of 2002: A Mandate for Free Trade in Digital content	117
4.2.4	'Competitive Liberalisation' of Trade in Digital Content	126
4.3	Conclusion	128
5	EC Negotiation Parameters: Internal Measures and Trade Jurisdiction	129
5.1	Internal Dimension: Expanding Audiovisual and Information Society Policies	130
5.1.1	Evolving Mandate of the EC as Regards Culture and Content	131
5.1.2	Evolving Scope of EC Content Policies: Update of Traditional and Creation of New Content Measures	133
5.1.3	Link Between the Evolving Content and Information Society Policies and the EC's Negotiation Flexibility in the WTO	143

5.2 External Dimension: The EC's Common Commercial Policy Powers Relating to Digital Content	145
5.2.1 The Cultural and Audiovisual Service Carve-Out in the EC's Negotiation Mandate for the Doha Round: The First 'Safety Lock'	146
5.2.2 The Cultural and Audiovisual Service Carve-Out from the EC's Common Commercial Policy: Further 'Safety Locks'	147
5.3 Conclusion	163
Part Four: Outcomes of the Doha Round and US-driven Preferential Trade Negotiations	165
6 Digital Trade Achievements of the Doha Development Agenda: Slow or Absent Progress	167
6.1 Unresolved Horizontal E-Commerce Questions: No Solutions Forthcoming in the Doha Negotiations	168
6.1.1 Assessment of Work Leading to the Cancun Ministerial: Adoption of a Minimalist Stance	169
6.1.2 Assessment of the Situation after the Cancun Ministerial and the Council Decision of July 2004: Lack of Progress on All Fronts	170
6.1.3 Implications of the WTC Rulings Concerning the GATS US Internet Gambling Case	174
6.2 Essential Market Access: Slow Progress of the WTO's Doha Negotiations	176
6.2.1 NAMA and the information Technology Agreement: Still Working on Negotiation Modalities	177
6.2.2 Service Negotiations: Ambitious Negotiation Proposals but Modest GATS Offers and Resistance to Liberalise Content Services	180
6.3 Parallel Negotiations on a UNESCO Convention on the Diversity of Cultural Expressions	195
6.3.1 Scope and Objective of the UNESCO Convention on Cultural Diversity	195
6.3.2 Possible Implications of the UNESCO Convention on the Specified WTO Negotiation Requirements for Digital Trade	197
6.4 Conclusion	199
7 Digital Trade Achievements of Parallel US Bilateral and Regional Trade Negotiations: Mixed Results	201
7.1 Towards Liberal Digital Trade Laws: US-Chile and US-Singapore FTAs Break New Ground	202

x Contents

7.1.1 Successful Conclusion of E-Commerce Chapters with a Focus on Digital Content Products	204
7.1.2 Cross-Border Trade in Services Chapters: Liberalisation due to Negative List Approach but Remaining Audiovisual Limitations	213
7.2 Assessment of the Bilateral US Trade Agreements: Half-Way House or Remarkable Step Forward?	219
7.2.1 Does the US Digital Trade Template Constitute a Stumbling Block for the WTO?	221
7.2.2 Regional or Global Consensus via US-Driven Preferential Trade Agreements?	224
7.3 Conclusion	227
8 Conclusion	229
Annex	233
A.1.1 HS Codes for Physical Carrier Media	233
A.1.2 GATS Market Access and National Treatment Commitments	234
A.1.3 Correspondence between GATS Services Classification List and the Provisional CPC	235
A.1.4 Central Product Classification 1.1, Version 2002	237
A.2.1 Decision on the Valuation of Carrier Media Bearing Software for Data Processing Equipment	240
Relevant Provisions of the Trade Act of 2002	240
A.4.1 Congressional Oversight Committee and Consultation Requirements	240
A.4.2 Comparison of the Negotiation Objectives of the Trade Act of 1974, the OCTA of 1988 and the Trade Act of 2002	243
A.4.3 Comparison of the Procedural Requirements of the Trade Act of 1974, the OCTA of 1988 and the Trade Act of 2002	245
Relevant Provisions of the Treaties of the European Communities	249
A.5.1 The Evolution of the EC's Common Commercial Policy Competence in the Treaties	249
A.5.2 Culture in the Treaties of the European Communities	252
A.5.3 Acronyms used for Treaties of the EC/EU	253
A.6.1 GATS Negotiations Proposals	254
A.7.1 US Free Trade Agreements on Digitally-Delivered Content Products	257
Bibliography	265
Index	289