

Contents

Preface	xi
Overview of the Book	xiv
Related Publications	xvii
Acknowledgments	xix
CHAPTER 1
Introduction to Market-Driven Economics	1
Theory and Reality	2
Primary and Secondary Markets	3
Frictionless versus Nonfrictionless Markets	5
How Well Do Markets Function?	6
A Market Is an Ecology	10
Basic Microeconomic Concepts	11
Frictionless Markets, the Gulf Stream, and a Day at the Races	20
Chapter Summary	21
Questions to Think About	23
TraderEx Simulation: Let's Look at a Market	24
CHAPTER 2
The Consumer Choice Model: What Would You Really Like to Do?	27
The Consumer Choice Model and the $X, Y$ Trade-Off	28
The Consumer Choice Model and the Current Consumption, Future Consumption Trade-Off	35
The Consumer Choice Model and the Risk-Return Trade-Off	43
Comparative Statics	64
Chapter Summary	73
Let's Consider an Application: Philanthropy	76

TraderEx Simulation: What Are Your Attitudes Toward Risk?	78
CHAPTER 3
Demand Meets Supply	81
Should Have, Would Have, and Did: The Decisions of a Representative Consumer	82
The Demand Curve for X	84
The Sensitivity of the Demand for X to the Price of X, the Price of Y, and Income	86
From Individual Demand Curves to Market Demand Curves	96
The Demand to Hold Shares of a Risky Asset	99
The Investor's Demand Curve for the Risky Asset	100
Equilibrium in the Market for X	102
Equilibrium in the Market for Shares of the Risky Asset	109
Market Equilibrium	112
Stocks, Cakes, and Substitutability	116
Chapter Summary	122
Let's Consider an Application: Bandwagon and Snob Effects	124
TraderEx Simulation: Call Market Trading	127
CHAPTER 4
Microeconomic Analysis Goes to Market	131
Short-Run Demand and Supply for Product X	133
Adjustment Costs	136
Liquidity	142
Market Structure	148
The Gains from Trading	164
Strategic Order Placement	170
The Big Picture	176
Chapter Summary	178
Let's Consider an Application: Why Bid-Ask Spreads Exist in Securities Markets	180
TraderEx Simulation: What Are Your Attitudes Toward Trading Costs?	184
CHAPTER 5
Supply and the Costs of Production	187
The Production Function for X	188

Cost Curves	193
Determining the Best Profit Output	206
Supply	208
Application to a Dealer Firm	215
From General Principles to the Details of a Specific Market	230
Chapter Summary	231
Let's Consider an Application: The Optimal Schooling
Behavior of Fish	234
TraderEx Simulation: What Is It Like to Be a Securities Dealer?	237
CHAPTER 6
Sources and Nature of Competition	241
Perfect Competition	242
Monopoly	249
Imperfect Competition: Monopolistic Competition	260
Imperfect Competition: Oligopoly	263
How Competition Plays Out in the Equity Markets	270
Importance of Price as a Competitive Variable	281
Chapter Summary	282
Let's Consider an Application: Why Firms Extend Trade Credit	287
TraderEx Simulation: Intermarket Competition in the Exchange Space	289
CHAPTER 7
Market Efficiency	293
Allocation Efficiency	295
Market Failure	298
Information and Expectations	305
Info about Information	307
Four Dimensions of Informational Efficiency	311
A Test of Market Efficiency	322
Price Discovery Efficiency	325
The Big Picture on Financial Market Efficiency	330
Markets at Risk: The Financial Turmoil of 2007–2009	333
The Greater Generality of the Frictions Problem	341
Chapter Summary	343
Let's Consider an Application: How Are Equilibrium Prices Discovered in a Competitive Market?	347
TraderEx Simulation: Finding an Equilibrium Value	351

CHAPTER 8

Public Policy and the Interplay between Competition, Technology, and Regulation	353
Governance Structure and Self-Regulation	355
Technology, Automation, and the NASDAQ Stock Market	360
The Evolving Regulatory Focus	368
Governmental Regulatory Intervention	373
Regulation of the U.S. Equity Markets	375
Caveats for Public Policy	397
Chapter Summary	401
Questions to Think About	406
TraderEx Simulation: Economic Effects of an Order Protection Rule	410
Glossary	413
About the Author	429
Index	431

<http://www.pbookshop.com>