

Contents

List of Abbreviations	xv
1 Introduction	1
Part One International Organisations as International Legal Actors	9
2 The Nature of International Organisations	11
2.1 Preliminary Remarks	12
2.2 Formal Aspects	13
2.2.1 Definition	13
2.2.2 Classification	22
2.3 Material aspects	24
2.3.1 Functionality	25
2.3.2 Centralisation	27
2.3.3 Transparency	29
3 Conceptions of a New Legal Actor	35
3.1 The State	35
3.2 The Rise of International Organisations: The Nineteenth Century	39
3.2.1 Institutions	39
3.2.2 Legal Images	44
3.3 The League of Nations Era	48
3.3.1 Institutions	48
3.3.2 Legal Images	54
4 The United Nations Era	65
4.1 Institutions	65
4.2 Legal Images	67
4.2.1 The international Organisation as a Legal Person	68
Legal Personality in International Law	68
Legal Personality in Relation to International Organisations	71
4.2.2 Legal Personality of International Organisations: Attribution and Effects	78
4.2.3 Legal Personality of International Organisations: Foundation	83
4.2.4 Objective Legal Personality	88
4.2.5 Capacities and Competences	90
Concluding Remarks to Part One	95

Part Two International Organisations and Treaty Practice	99
5 International Organisations as a Forum for Treaty-making	101
5.1 Centralisation in United Nations Practice	102
5.2 Centralisation in Technical Organisations	107
6 Constitutive Treaties of International Organisations	113
6.1 Treaty or Constitution?	113
6.2 The Law of Treaties Applied to Constitutive Instruments	116
7 Treaty-Making by International Organisations	125
7.1 IGO Treaties in Practice	125
7.1.1 A Quantitative Perspective	125
7.1.2 A Qualitative Perspective	128
7.2 IGO Treaties in Doctrine	132
7.2.1 The Status of IGO Agreements	132
7.2.2 The Treaty-making Powers of International Organisations	134
Concluding Remarks to Part Two	139
Part Three International Organisations and the Conventional Law of Treaties	141
8 Towards a Codified Law of Treaties for International Organisations	143
8.1 Preparatory Work by the International Law Commission	144
8.1.1 IGO Treaty-making Capacity: 1950–1952	145
8.1.2 ‘Organisations of States’: 1953–1954	150
8.1.3 A General Law of Treaties Code: 1955–1960	152
8.1.4 Involving the Law of the Organisation: 1961–1966	155
Definition	158
Capacity	158
Other Provisions	160
8.1.5 The Final ILC Draft Articles	162
8.2 Reception of the ILC Draft and the 1968–1969 Vienna Conference	165
8.2.1 Comments of Governments and International Organisations and Discussion in the Sixth Committee	165
8.2.2 The Vienna Conference (1968–1969)	168
8.3 International Organisations in the First Stage of the Codification Process	173
9 The 1986 Vienna Convention: Preliminary Questions and Procedural Aspects	181
9.1 Questions of Methodology	182
9.1.1 Drafting Methodology	182
9.1.2 Form	185
9.2 The Procedural Position of International Organisations	186

9.2.1 The Participation of International Organisations in the Diplomatic Conference	186
Participants	187
Status	189
9.2.2 Final Clauses of the Second Vienna Convention	190
Becoming Bound to the Convention	190
Entry into Force of the Convention	191
9.3 Diplomatic Fortune of the Convention	192
9.4 Conclusion: The Status of Organisations in Method and Procedure	193
10 The 1986 Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties Between States and International Organizations or Between International Organizations	197
10.1 Issues of Doctrine	200
10.1.1 The Classification of Treaties by Party	200
10.1.2 Treaty-Making Capacity	203
10.1.3 Expressing the Juridical Will	205
Consent, Assent and Acquiescence	206
Reservations	210
10.1.4 Member States and Third States	212
The Drafting History of Article 36bis	213
Issues of Article 36bis	219
10.1.5 'Internal Law'	225
Invoking the Rules of the Organisation	226
Reserving the Rules of the Organisation	229
10.1.6 Terminology	230
10.2 Issues of Practice	233
10.2.1 Territory	233
10.2.2 Dispute Settlement	234
10.2.3 Descriptive Force	235
10.3 Issues of Principle	237
10.3.1 The International Organisation as a Moral Person	237
10.3.2 The International Community of States	242
Concluding Remarks to Part Three	245
General Conclusions	249
11 The Invisible Continent: Concluding Remarks	251
11.1 Propositions on the Institutional Veil	253
Organisations are Semi-closed	253
Organisations are Semi-open	254
The Inherent Transparency of Organisations	255
The One-dimensional Character of International Law	256
Organisations as Independent Actors	257
The Legal Order Overrides the Setup of the Subject	258

11.2 The Institutional Veil in the Conventional Law of Treaties	260
11.3 The Institutional Veil and International Responsibility	262
11.4 The Institutional Veil in General International Law	267
International Organisations and International Law	267
The Nature of International Law	268
Other Legal Subjects	269
11.5 The Positivist Perspective on the Institutional Veil	269
Annexes	273
Annex I. Table of comparison: Articles 1986 Convention and Articles 1969 Convention	274
1986 Convention Articles	274
Annex II. Table of comparison: Articles 1986 Convention and draft Articles 1982	274
1986 Convention Articles	274
Annex III. Articles of the 1969 Convention marked as 'problematic' for the purpose of the 1986 Vienna Conference	275
Annex IV. Some parallel provisions of the 1986 Convention and the 1969 Convention	277
Select Bibliography of Authors	283
Index	305

<http://www.pbookshop.com>