
Contents

Acknowledgements	v
Introduction	1
Magna Carta – Individual Liberties and the Rule of Law	3
Parliament versus Crown	6
1 1688 – Glorious Revolution; Enduring Settlement: Sovereignty, Liberty and the Constitution	11
I. Setting the Scene – A Strange ‘Revolution’	11
II. Sovereignty under the 1688 Settlement	16
III. Liberty under the 1688 Settlement	22
IV. Conclusion	29
2 1707 – Union between England and Scotland: Unitary State and Limited Parliament	31
I. The Background to Union; Corruption, Poverty and Fear of Invasion	31
II. The Terms of Union and their Legacy	37
III. Conclusion	51
3 1721 – The First Prime Minister? Executive Power and Its Journey from Monarch to Prime Minister	53
I. Walpole as the First Prime Minister?	53
II. The Power Shift from Monarch to Prime Minister	59
III. Conclusion	63
4 1832 – The Great Reform Act: A First Step towards Democratic Representation?	65
I. The Reform Act 1832	65
II. The Passage of the Act	70
III. Towards Democracy?	76
IV. Conclusion	82

5	1911 – The Parliament Act: Guaranteeing the Legislative Superiority of the House of Commons	83
	I. Background: The People’s Budget	84
	II. Reform of the House of Lords	89
	III. The House of Lords under the Constitution	98
	IV. Conclusion	109
6	1953 – The European Convention on Human Rights: an External Influence Within the Constitution	111
	I. The International Protection of Human Rights	111
	II. Drafting the ECHR	116
	III. The ECHR and the British Constitution	123
	IV. Subsequent Developments	129
	V. Conclusion	135
7	1972 – The European Communities Act: European Legal Supremacy under the UK Constitution	137
	I. 1957–72: The EC before UK Entry	137
	II. UK Entry to the European Communities	141
	III. The 1975 Referendum: Providing Democratic Legitimacy?	145
	IV. Establishing European Legal Supremacy	149
	V. The Parliamentary Sovereignty Debate	154
	VI. National Sovereignty	160
	VII. Conclusion	164
8	1998 – Devolution to Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland: Decentralising the Union State	167
	I. The Background to 1998 Devolution	167
	II. 1998 Devolution	174
	III. Constitutional Issues in the Three Devolution Schemes	182
	IV. Conclusion	194
	Conclusion: The Evolving Constitution	195
	I. The Substance of the Constitution	195
	II. The Form of the Constitution	199
	Bibliography	203
	Index	213