

Index

A

Abramson, M. A., 53, 228, 235, 268
Agranoff, R., 36
Allison, G. T., 221
Anthony, R. N., 239
Antigovernment rhetoric, and debates over size of government, 38
Appropriations committees, program monitoring of, 303
Atkin, C., 293
Attitude, as resource to ensure successful programs, 342
Austin, N., 271, 272
Avery, G., 171, 187

B

Bacon, K., 268
Barnard, C. I., 69, 113, 269
Bartlett, J., 14, 43
Battaglio, R. P., Jr., 47
Baumgartner, F. R., 192
Beam, G., 86
Behn, R., 264, 271
Bellante, D., 50
Benchmarking: benefits and costs,
 154–155; creating staff buy-in for, 166–167; definitions of, 152–153; and innovative contracting practices, 184;
 measurement problems and creativity limits in, 154–155; as results-based management tool, 153; roots of, 153;
 seven-step protocol for, 153–154
Bennis, W., 268
Bernstein, N., 22
Borins, S., 140
Bosman, J., 13
Bowes, L., 54
Bowman, J. S., 48, 71, 86, 281

Brand, R., 86, 149, 220
Broder, J. M., 11
Brown, R. D., 280
Brown, T. L., 34, 176
Bruder, K. A., 152, 153
Brudney, J. L., 305
Brull, S., 61
Budget process: conservative nature of,
 235; and cost-effectiveness of public programs, 226–227; creative techniques used in, 238–239; culture and norms of, 232–234; data for justifying expenditures, 235; and fees for services, 240; and incentive pay for citizen satisfaction, 228; innovation tools used in, 240; and innovative management, 226–230; as instrument for influencing and organization, 225;
 and managers' control over resources,
 230–238; and new sources of revenue, 240–241; open checkbook style in,
 228; performance-based, 227, 228,
 229; and public sector innovation, 229–230; resources aligned with policy goals in, 240; staff selection and evaluation in, 230–232; in state and local governments, 227; tasks in, 225–226; typical ploys in,
 239. See also Resource acquisition Budget requests: and budget organization and format, 235–236; detailed instructions and formats for, 234; standard justifications for, 234; and target-based budgeting, 234–235 Budget reviews: mediation of conflict in, 233–234; norm of consensus in, 234; pattern of budget cutting and defense in, 233; and reviewer's need to cut, 233

Bureaucratic language, incomprehensibility of, 28
 Burman, A., 12, 14, 172
 Burns, J. M., 268
 Bush, George W., performance management initiative of, 11

C

- Campbell, G., 173
 Campbell, K. K., 296
 Caputo, D. A., 318
 Carter, S. L., 290, 297
 Champy, J., 144, 146
 Chandler, A. D., 262
 Chase, G., 271, 310
 Chetkovich, C., 48, 53
 Citiwide Accountability Program (CapState) of New York City, 12
 Citizens: community service dependence of, 315; and demographics in community organization, 314; explaining complicated issues to, 316–317; generation of political opposition from, 313–314; and problems of responding to active citizens, 315–316; and public's right to know and right to be heard, 312
 Civil service: merit system in, 46; protection from arbitrary or politically motivated dismissal, 50; rules against patronage hiring in, 50
 Civil service reforms, 46; focused on accountability, 46; need for, 47; radical, at state-level, 47; as reaction to public management crisis, 8; and risk-averse employees, 50–51
 Civil service tenure: and attempts to fire staff members, 82–83; and protection of employee rights, 81–82
 Clemens, E. G., 172
 Coates, P., 199
 Coggburn, J. D., 47, 48, 61
 Cohen, S., 24, 47, 60, 61, 86, 103, 116, 138, 140, 149, 171, 172, 173, 174, 176, 185, 187, 205, 220, 256, 283
 Cole, R. L., 318
 Communication in network setting: basic communication skills and tools needed in, 104; building trust and informal relationships in, 104–105
 Communication tools, and employee input, 30
 Communication with stakeholders: debate on critical public problems/issues in, 289; and duty to keep the public informed, 287; face-to-face, 289; public hearings and forums for, 288; on public service improvements, 288; and resources at hand, 287–291; using Internet technology, 288–289
 Community relations: with community groups, 313; planning and managing, 318–319
 Condrey, S. E., 47
 Conservative political movement, and public management crisis, 7–8
 Contino, R. A., 52
 Contract management: advertising for contractors in, 177–178; analyzing whether and what to contract, 175–176; assessing bid quality and contractor capabilities in, 178–179; and communication skills for dealing with vendors, 181; and contractor accomplishments, 182–183; and contract's purpose, 181; creative practices in, 184; employing formal contract mechanisms in, 185; ensuring ethical practices in, 182; establishing performance measures for, 177; finding qualified contractors for, 178; government purchasing procedures in, 179; incentives and disincentives deployed in, 181; obtaining and deploying skills needed to manage in, 183–186; process of letting and drafting contracts, 176, 177; and process of managing contractors, 180; and requests for proposals (RFPs), 177, 180; skills needed in, 175–183; and understanding of business being contracted, 180
 Contracting to private and nonprofit organizations: accountability issues in, 172; analyses of, 171–172; as cost-cutting action, 61–62; critical and operational problems in, 172; “hollowing out” concerns in, 171, 172; of internal managerial functions, 61; and long-term impact on government operations and society, 187; and management tasks requiring new skills, 174; and mismanagement of recent federal contracts, 172; performance measurement as critical component

- of, 173–174; problems created by, 174–175; and productive government-contractor relations, 66; prohibitions and restrictions on use of, 61; rationale for, 183; strategy planning process for, 168; and trust relationship between government and contractor, 185–186. See also Federal mission contracting
- Cooper, P. J., 50, 82, 171, 187
- Crow, M., 303
- Cushman, J., 27
- ## D
- Danziger, J. N., 71
- Decentralizing decision making, empowerment through, 30
- Decision-making information, 189–224; aggressive pursuit of, 200, 201; assessing need for, 193–195; associated with control, 190; basic types of, 195; causes of distortion and bias in, 191–193; controlling and improving outward flow of, 222–224; cost analysis in, 216; and critical information availability, 205–206; decision to withhold, 223; development and filtering of, 192, 193; development of good flow in, 204; development of management strategy for, 215–216; establishment of standard processes for receiving bad news, 202; and external interests, 198–199; and factors influencing information received, 191–193; identifying information for marketing or defending organizational tasks, 197–200; inevitability of leaks in, 222–223; influencing flow of, 200–203; and information flow enhanced through technology, 206–210; limits of, 221–222; managing release of, 223–224; and national disaster responses, 205–206; need for effective processing and structuring of, 189; organizations designed to assess, 214–215; and organizations' tendency to sanitize information, 202; organizing flow for circulation within your organization, 203–214; and performance management policies, 189; prioritizing information needs of, 216; and prioritizing of urgent messages, 223–224; procedures for screening and filtering, 202–203; and professional and social network development, 200–201; and projection of information needs, 195–200; and regular reporting, 216–219; role of, 191; and standard operating procedures, 204–205; and strategy development for presenting problems, 198; and “thinking small” about information needs, 196–197; time problems in, 189–190
- Deming, W. E., 86
- Denhardt, J. V., 268
- Denhardt, R. B., 141
- Department of Education, created in response to interest group pressure, 110
- Department of Energy: contractors as surrogate staff in, 63–64; organizational structure of, 111
- Downs, A., 191, 192
- Drucker, P., 43, 44, 70, 73
- Dubrin, A. J., 82
- Dunkle, D. E., 71
- ## E
- Economic growth, and preservation of U.S. traditional values, 39
- Eggers, W. D., 104
- Eimicke, W., 24, 47, 60, 61, 62, 86, 103, 138, 140, 171, 172, 173, 174, 176, 185, 187, 205, 256, 283
- Electronic mail: cautions for using, 105; professional use of, 209–210
- Elling, R. C., 47, 48
- Emmett, M. A., 303
- Employee performance: determining when to encourage or force an employee to leave, 79–81; identifying and addressing inadequacy in, 77–78; and inadequate management, 78; and organization fit, 79, 80, 81, 82; process of clarifying expectations for, 78; process of judging, 52; and rehabilitation efforts, 79, 81, 82
- Entrepreneurial risk taking, 15–16, 34, 328–333; as appropriate public sector value, 332; as calculated and part of realistic organizational strategy,

- 329, 339, 333; learning from and tolerating failure in, 332; and need to defy organizational complacency, 330–333; organizational capability and, 86; in reinvention of government initiative, 8–9; resource provision for, 332
- Entrepreneurship in public sector, 34, 54; characteristics of, 73; compared to private entrepreneurship, 42–43; creating an environment for, 73–74; defining project success in, 264–266; and gap between public demands and government capability, 40; and group cohesion and teamwork, 74–75; information management and strategy in, 191, 193; as professional value, 331–333; and resource diversion to projects of, 265–266; and successful innovation, 43–44
- Environmental Protection Agency: geographically-based structure of, 111–112; Superfund toxic waste cleanup program contracts, 169
- Ethics: and acting with compassion and empathy, 284; and justice under the law, 283; and personal responsibility for decisions, 285; in serving the public interest, 283; universal standards of, 282; and violations of public trust, 279; and work assignments, 279–281
- Experimentation, traditional tools for encouraging, 333
- F
- Fazlollah, M., 67
- Federal agencies: Performance Assessment Rating Tool (PART) for, 11; whistleblower protection in, 50. See also specific agency
- Federal General Accounting Office, 12
- Federal hazardous waste cleanup: challenging and reward experiences in, 326–327; contracting for, 169
- Federal Inspector General Office, 12
- Federal mission contracting: advantages and disadvantages of, 64–65; contractors as surrogate staff members in, 63; description of, 63–64
- Federal Response to Hurricane Katrina, The*, 206
- Fesler, J. W., 303
- Financial control systems: and control structure match with responsibility structure, 246; funding authorization of, 247; and monitoring of organization's activities by tracking resource use, 247–248; and over-obligation of funds and distortion of organizational behavior and decisions, 249–250; recording and reporting functions of, 247; used to influence and distort organizational behavior, 248–250. See also Budget process
- Firing: and civil service protections, 81–82, 83; formal process of, 82–83; and process for asking employee to leave, 79–81
- Fischer, R. J., 152, 154
- Fisher, R., 93, 102, 312
- Follett, M. P., 30
- Folz, D. H., 154
- Forsyth, D. W., 11
- Frank, H., 225, 229
- Franklin, A. L., 264
- Frederickson, D. G., 219
- Fredrickson, H. G., 219, 283, 284
- Franklin, P., 31
- Functions of the Executive, The*, 69
- G
- Gaebler, T., 8, 30, 34, 42
- Gaouette, N., 172
- Getting to Yes*, 102
- Gibson, C., 108, 109
- Giuliano, J., 52
- Global economy, as reflection of economic reality, 39
- Goldsmith, S., 61, 104
- Golembiewski, R. T., 264
- Goodwill Industries of Tulsa, employee empowerment model in, 30–31
- Gordon, V., 172
- Gortner, H. F., 111
- Governing bodies: program monitoring of, 303; ways to impress and deal with, 307–308; working relationships with, 308
- Government: Americans' love-hate relationship with, 25; crisis of confidence in, 1–18; debates over size of, 38; and examples of private sector successes, 3–4; success stories of, 4–5

- Government activism: broad consensus for, 37–40; and preservation of status quo, 41; society's need for, 37–38
- Government Performance and Results Act, 235; requirement for five-year plans in, 218–219
- Government performance improvement, and inefficiencies driven by government rules, 14
- Government spending, increase in over last three decades, 38–39
- Government Websites, citizen reaction to, 289–290
- Governmental Accounting Standards Board, 219, 227
- Gray, E. M., 152, 153
- Green, M., 169, 170, 172
- Greenhouse, S., 37
- Greve, C., 171
- Gulick, L. H., 108
- ## H
- Hadden, S. G., 190
- Hammer, M., 144, 146
- Harris, M., 140, 206
- Harrison, T., 171
- Hays, S., 46, 48, 51, 59, 61
- Hebert, F. T., 305
- Heeks, R., 210
- Heikkila, T. A., 12, 321, 322
- Heiman, M. K., 320
- Heinrich, C. J., 173
- Henneberger, M., 11
- Herzberg, F., 70
- Herzlinger, R. E., 239
- Hetherington, M. J., 2
- Hiring in public sector: and appointments based on patronage or nepotism, 51; and civil service rules and reforms, 45–46, 58–59; contracting impacts on, 65; and privatization programs, 62; procedural variations in, 58–59; and relations with personnel office, 59; salary as obstacle to, 48; steps and requirements in, 46–47; and strategies promoting competition for public sector functions, 62; for temporary positions at line and operation levels, 60–61. See also Recruitment
- Hirsch, W. Z., 171
- Hirschman, A., 282
- Hitchner, S. B., Jr., 228
- Hitchner, T. R., 228
- Ho, A. T-K., 199
- Hodge, G. A., 171
- Hofer, C. N., 141, 255
- Horan, J., 205
- Horn, M. J., 14
- Hu, W., 150
- Hurricane Katrina, and SOPs developed for responses to disasters, 205–206
- Hutchinson, P., 62, 140, 141, 142, 227, 258
- Huxham, C., 104
- ## I
- Ibsen, H., 279
- Incentive system: development of, 69–70; and discouragement of passivity, 74; used to retain key manager and staff members, 69–70
- Indianapolis city government: labor-government relationship in, 72; massive municipal reorganization project in, 114–115
- Information Needs Matrix, guide for developing, 193–194, 195
- Information technologies: balancing high-tech with low-tech approaches, 212–213; communication tools in, 207–210; considerations for using, 211–212; for decision support and information systems, 210–211; enhancement of information flow through, 210–211; and information breakdown, 213–214; and messages requiring face-to-face contact, 210; as sources of information flow, 207–210; SOPs needed to deal with failures of, 207
- Ingraham, P. W., 12, 49
- Innovation and Entrepreneurship*, 43–44
- Innovation initiatives: benchmarking's usefulness in, 167–168; consultants employed in, 170; factors in success of, 139; importance of leaders and champions in, 169–170; strategic planning for, 166
- Innovation tools: analyses of, 140–143; choice of, 170; comparison of, 164–165, tab 6.1; craft approach to using, 140; distinguished from standard management tools, 139; focused on creative responses to changing situations, 139; organizational setting for adoption of, 138. See also specific tool

Innovative management: delegation of authority to subordinates in, 122–124; failure due to oversold and misapplied techniques in, 139; role of budgets in, 226–230

Interest groups: informal contacts with, 309–310; as information channel and source of innovative policy proposals, 304; tactics used to attract attention, 309

Interest-based bargaining, 312

Internal Revenue Service's electronic filing system, 260–261

Internet and E-government: as communication tool of choice, 288–289; lack of dialogue and public debate in, 289

Iowa's Department of Management, incentives to retain employees during budget negotiations, 72–73

Isett, K. R., 12, 104, 321, 322

J

Jamieson, J., 296

JC Penney, public-private partnership of, 37

Johnston, J. M., 140, 172

Jones, B. D., 192

Jones, L. R., 169, 170

Jordan-Evans, S., 69, 70, 71

K

Kamarck, E. C., 140

Kamensky, J. M., 228, 235

Kammerman, S. B., 61

Katzenbach, J., 155, 158

Kaufman, H., 135, 189, 218

Kaye, B., 69, 70, 71

Kellough, J. E., 71

Kelman, S., 12, 14, 172, 292, 295

Kennedy School "Innovations in American Government" Award, 72

Kettl, D., 31, 163, 174, 185

Kim, S., 71, 258

King, J. L., 71

Kleeman, R., 81, 82

Kneedler, A. E., 12

Knott, J., 14, 46

Koenig, M., 144

Kraemer, K. L., 71

L

Labor organizing, at state and local levels versus federal levels, 35

Lane, F. S., 53, 310

Leadership: needed to ensure successful programs, 342; styles, and adaptation to new situations, 268. See also Public managers/management

Lee, M., 69, 287, 290, 292, 293, 295, 296

Legislative branch: agency oversight and review sessions of, 310; and preparations for public hearings, 310–311; and special working relationships, 310

Leveraging private sector action: and competition in public function performance, 162–163; and contracting with private firms to run public services, 161; distinct requirements for, 162; and facilitation of organizational differentiation, and focus, 163; and political buy-in or approval, 161; popular alternatives for, 160–162; principal costs of, 163; and public program innovation, 160–163; standard "make or buy" decision in, 161

Levin, M. A., 103

Lewis, C. W., 283, 284

Light, P. C., 11, 48, 140, 172, 303

Lindblom, C. E., 261

Linden, R., 146

Link, A., 50

Linsky, M., 292, 296, 297, 298

Lippman, W., 283

Local governments: budgetary processes linked to program performance objectives in, 227; and civil service rules, 50; creation of Office of Inspector General in, 13; engagement of citizens for assessing performance information, 199; job losses due to outsourcing key city services, 62–63, 72; pay-for-performance policies in, 71; and performance management policies and programs in, 11–12, 219; statistics on employees of, 34–35

Locke, J., 283

M

Management control: definition of, 121–122; and delegation of authority

- to subordinates, 122–124; and encouragement of staff initiatives, 122
- Management style, questions for defining, 94–95
- “Managing by wandering around,” advocacy of, 271–272
- Mansfield, R., 61
- Mansnerus, L., 319
- Martin, L., 61, 62, 63
- Marvel, H. P., 173
- Marvel, M. K., 173
- Maynard-Moody, S., 46
- McCarthy, E., 173
- McDavid, J. C., 171
- McGrath, J., 46
- McGuire, M., 36, 104
- Media relations: activist approach to, 292–302; and clearance through central press office, 302; and coverage of public service campaigns, 293–294; and cultivation of informal professional relationships, 300; and development of mutually beneficial relationship, 298; importance of honesty in, 298; incomplete presentation of facts in, 296; as marketing tool for public management, 300; as matter of organizational survival, 281; and media distortions, 296–297; and media’s political role, 295–296; and meeting requirements for information submissions, 301–302; methods for dealing with, 291–294; and miscommunications, 297; open and accessible policy in, 292; policy issues as political agenda items in, 294–295; and shifts in news content, 295; and skewed or unprofessional Internet stories, 296; standard operating procedures in, 290–291; strategy for dealing with unfair or misinformed reporting, 300; tips on typical stories about government covered in, 290; as way to communicate with your customers, 291
- Melamid, E., 173
- Melkers, J., 227
- Mercer, J., 141, 255
- Michaels, J. E., 292
- Mikesell, J. L., 233, 234, 237
- Milbrath, L. W., 315
- Miller, G., 14, 46, 105
- Milstein, M., 37
- Milward, B., 104, 163, 171
- Milz, M., 73
- Mintzberg, H., 266
- Mission statement, as basis for recruitment talk, 67–68
- Moore, M. H., 147, 148, 225, 300, 303
- Mosher, D. C., 46
- Moynihan, D. P., 12, 34, 144, 219
- ## N
- Nanus, B., 268
- National Center for Public Productivity, 199
- National Performance Review, 49, 142, 219; concept and basic principles of, 9–10; mixed results of, 10–11; personnel reforms of, 46
- Network relationships, mechanisms for conflict resolution in, 105
- New York City’s Department of Parks & Recreation: negative public image of, 1–2; recognition of employee teams in, 75
- Newman, D. L., 280
- Nie, N., 315
- Nigro, L. G., 71
- Novak, W., 334
- Numerical performance targets, problem with, 220–221
- ## O
- Oakerson, R. J., 36, 67
- Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management (OCRWM), and contracting out, 63–64
- Office of Management and Budget (OMB), roles of, 303–304
- O’Looney, J. A., 172, 185
- O’Malley, M., 12, 264
- O’Neill, T. P., 334
- Operational objectives, definition and example of, 125–126
- Operational program planning: and adaptation to increase value, 124; calculated risks in, 128; describing and analyzing activities for, 126–127; detailed project planning for, 127; determining objectives and management indicators for, 125–126;

- identifying costs of, 129; and launching difficulties, 129; limits of, 128–131; and modification of project milestones, 128–129; as necessary component of effective financial management, 129; opposition to, 135; and organizations' reporting system, 129–130; project tracking and analysis in, 127–128, 129; steps and techniques in, 125
- Organization capability: critical assessment of, 338; and measurement of current level of performance, 262; and organization's ability to perform new tasks, 263; and projection of what might be accomplished, 262–263; and staff's individual attitudes and preferences, 263–264
- Organization revitalization techniques, 86–87
- Organization structure: degree and quality of staff interaction influenced by, 107; developed to provide change-taking capacity, 332; dual purpose of, 108; emphasizing accomplishment of principal policies and programs, 109; external environment as factor in, 110; formal hierarchy in, 108; and frequent reorganizations, 110; internal social structure and decisions about, 109–110; as management tool, 110–111; and organizational goals, 112; and organizational needs, 108–110; and task differentiation and coordination, 111
- Organization's communication strategy, as manager resource, 290. See also Conversation with stakeholders
- Orlebeke, B., 173
- Osborne, D., 8, 30, 34, 42, 62, 140, 141, 142, 227, 228, 229, 258
- Outside organizations: cultivating support for your mission from, 307–310; dealing with conflicts involving, 311–312; distinct mission of, 305; importance and influence of, 302–305, 307, 308; public policy authority of, 303
- Outsourcing: job losses and layoffs resulting from, 62–63; and “make or buy” decisions, 62
- Overhead agencies: esoteric rules and operating procedures of, 308–309; focus on economy and efficiency in, 306; influence and powers of, 303–304, 308; interests and desires of, 306–307
- ## P
- Paarlberg, L. E., 270
- Palumbo, D., 46
- Panet, P., 173
- Papers on the Science of Administration*, 108
- Parker, J. F., 25
- Partnerships with private organizations, innovative government programs resulting from, 160
- Perez Salazar, M., 103, 283
- Performance Assessment Rating Tool (PART), 11
- Performance evaluations, 36; for dealing with incompetent staff, 80, 81; facilitation of staff transfers through, 81
- Performance management movement: challenges of, 11–17; and new positions devoted to performance measurement in, 12–13; and reform efforts focused on government oversight mechanisms, 12
- Perry, J. L., 270
- Personnel offices, process orientation in, 306
- Peters, T. J., 8, 42, 271, 272
- Pew Research Center, 2, 5, 6
- Plastrik, P., 228, 229
- Politics of the Budgetary Process, The*, 236–237
- Ponzi, L., 144
- Potoski, M., 34, 171, 176, 187
- Private sector regulations, public's response to, 5–6
- Privatization: examples of, 160–161; as matter of expediency, 169; strategy planning process for, 168
- Program design: and capacity to deliver, 341; as critical variable affecting success, 341
- Program success, external factors contributing to, 340
- Project control system, and failure to adapt to change, 129–130
- Project tracking: formal management role of, 130–131; in operation program planning, 127–128, 129

- Provan, K. G., 104, 171
- Public hearings and forums, 317–318;
public information disseminated through, 288
- Public management: compared to private sector management, 23; crisis in, 1–17;
defining, 19–44; and essential precepts of organizations, 29; extreme formality (red tape) in, 19; importance of making employees matter in, 29–33;
inadequacy manifested through rudeness in, 32; media scrutiny of, 2, 5; problems measuring success in, 23;
public's negative perceptions and mistrust of, 1–3; three methods for ensuring accountability in, 14–15
- Public manager functions: and development of organization's distinctive competence, 271; for distribution of incentives, 269, 271–272; for infusing organization with value, 270; resource attainment as, 269; structuring and mediating internal conflicts in, 272–273
- Public managers: and attacks on levels of government productivity, 23–24;
and caution leading to inertia,
26–28; and civil service regulations,
50; and contemporary public administration fluidity, 36; creation of ambiguity by, 28–29; creative incentives used by, 29–32; and creative recruitment, 54; effective, characteristics of,
33; and elected leaders' interests,
20–21; explanation for nonperformance of, 24–25; and full engagement in budget process, 230–231;
and incentive system development, 69–70; key tasks of, 254; new knowledge and technology for training of, 16–17; and opportunities to define goals and strategies, 141; passivity of in face of obstacles, 25; public image and stereotypes of, 19–20, 21; and public's negative view of government, 24; and reward for image in lieu of performance, 28–29; and risk taking to ensure performance, 43; and self-fulfilling psychology of failure, 22–24; self-image of, 21–22; and standard operating procedures for dealing with the media, 290–291; style, questions for defining, 94–95; venues for creativity and alternative approaches for, 36
- Public meetings: general purposes of, 317; and public hearings, 317–318
- Public programs and services: competitive delivery of, 31; evaluation of success of, 265; implementation of lengthy processes in, 25–26; multi-sector strategy for problem solving in, 65; success measured according to outcomes in, 227; use of partnerships and networks in, 36
- Public sector: causes and diagnosis of failure in, 337–338; complex modern problems in, 37–41; difficulty of measuring outcomes in, 219; historical examples of successes in, 334–335;
imaginative revenue devices adopted by officials in, 40; mythology of failure in, 335–337
- Public sector employment: competition for quality employees in, 49; ethical dimension of, 254; influences for choosing, 49; problem of firing workers in, 49; recruitment for, 40–41; salaries and benefits in, 48; surviving
in, 323–342
- Public service careers: and belief in organization mission, 325; benefits and rewards of, 325–328; and contributions to the common good, 328; costs of, 324–325; ethical dimension of, 254; influences on choice of, 49;
and opportunities created by salary limits, 325; opportunities for creative problem solving in, 328; and sense of mission, 273–274, 326–327
- Public service, declining ethos of, 6
- Public-private partnerships, innovative problem solving in, 36
- ## Q
- Quality management: benefits and costs, 151–152; defined, 148–149; elements of, 150–151; example of, 149–150; fundamental concepts of, 149; in private sector, 149
- ## R
- Radin, B. A., 219
- Rainey, H. G., 108

- Recruitment process: active and participatory searches in, 55–56; application process in, 56; and competitiveness among sectors, 53–54; criteria for judging applicants in, 56–57; direct and indirect approaches to, 56; and position fit, 57; process for finding good people in, 51–57; and professional networking, 56; and staff needs assessment, 51–52; standard federal process in, 53
- Reengineering: benefits and costs of, 146–148; common steps in, 145; and constraints on radical redesign, 148; as cover for large-scale downsizings, 147, 148; defined, 143–144; emphasis on holism and seamlessness in, 147; guiding principles for, 146; as high-cost and high-risk strategy, 147–148; as internally focused approach to innovation, 144; organizational changes resulting from, 144; as prelude to massive downsizing, 167; and public concerns leading to process modification, 145; and quality management approaches, 167; as radical restructuring, 166; team established for, 144; as top-down strategy, 144–145, 166
- Reeves, T. Z., 59, 21
- Regular reporting: major limitations of, 217; misreporting and falsification of data in, 218; necessity of, 216–217; need for focus on outcomes versus outputs in, 218–219; periodic reviews of management indicators used in, 219–220; requirements, and staff behavior, 217
- Reinvention initiative: core concept of, 8; and federal-level reforms, 9–11; proponents of, 9
- Reorganization: assessing real costs of, 120; as attractive management option, 112–113; basic uses of, 113; costs and trade-offs of, 117–119; decision, 119–121; and development of informal organizations, 113–114; and dysfunctional organizational behavior, 114; to emphasize goals and missions, 115–116; limited factors and trade-offs in, 262–263; logical structuring of functions in, 119; as management reform, 121; mandates for, 110; nonmanagement political and symbolic functions of, 110; as overrated device for stimulating efficiency, 115; projecting impacts of, 118; as reward for excellent performers, 116–117; secret development of, 118–119; seeking advice on, 120; as strategy, 120; in transition period, 110
- Resource acquisition: clientele support for, 237; contingent strategies in, 236–237; estimation and projection of resource needs in, 241–245; and firm understanding of organization's budget, 230; internal budget politics and, 237–238; justification of funding requests in, 234–236; need for budget staff's help with detail and documentation of, 230; of new organizations and issues, 244–245; political factors influencing, 237–238; professional reputation and, 238
- Resource allocation and distribution: and estimate of costs, 241; as incentives to complete priority tasks, 241; used to influence organization's activities, 243–246
- Resource monitoring: financial control systems for, 246–248; and gaming of control systems, 248–250
- Retention of employees: and competition with other agencies, 75; and concessions to retain key staff members, 76; and encouragement of entrepreneurial behavior, 73–74; and granting of prestigious awards, 75; and knowing when to help people leave, 76; and management of inadequate employees you cannot fire, 83–85; and management of knowledge workers, 70; and motivating factors in decision to stay, 70–71; and paying attention to staff needs, 76; and rules for accessing incentives and punishments, 68; state and local initiatives for, 72–73; and turnover viewed as opportunity, 77; using incentives for, 68–73, 74–75; using nonmonetary rewards, 70–72
- Reveal, E. C., 271, 310
- Rice, R., 293
- Riordon, W., 182
- Roberts, N. C., 12, 321
- Romzek, B. S., 140, 172

Roosevelt, Franklin, 43, 331
 Rubin, B., 72
 Rubin, I., 233, 235
 Rubin, R., 72

S

- Salamon, L., 61
 Sanger, M. B., 103
 Savas, E. S., 61
 Schattschneider, E. E., 336
 Schendel, D. E., 141, 255
 Schneider, M., 140, 170
 Scholtes, P. R., 86
 Scientific principles of administration, efforts to development, 108
 Sclar, E., 61, 171
 Scott, J. K., 289, 290
 Seidman, H., 192
 Selden, S., 49
 Selden, S. C., 71
 Selznick, P., 113, 114, 268, 269, 271
 September 11, 2001 attack; importance of information flow during, 205
 Shangraw, R. F., Jr., 303
 Shenkar, O., 37
 Simon, H., 108, 192
 Skjei, S., 190
 Smith, D., 155, 158
 Sowa, J., 51
 Special interest groups: importance of regular meetings with, 306; influence and powers of, 303
 Staffing: and effective management, 85–86; mechanisms for announcing need for, 55; and methods for borrowing people, 66–67; selling organization and mission in, 67–68. See also specific methods
 Stanbury, W. T., 171
 Standard operating procedures (SOPs): creation of new procedures in, 330; and critical information availability, 205; developing and implementing, 204–205; and information flow, 204–205
 Stanton, S. A., 144, 146
 State government: budgetary processes linked to program performance objectives in, 227; initiative balancing demands of work and family in, 72–73; new employee recruitment in, 53–54; pay-for-performance policies in, 71; performance budget requirements in, 227; performance management policies and standards in, 219; statistics on employees of, 34–35
 Steers, R. M., 69
 Steinbruner, J. D., 221
 Strategic mapping process, 258
 Strategic planning: basic steps and implementation of, 142–143; benefits and costs of, 143; as facilitation tool, 140–143; and incremental organizational change, 143; participants in, 141; as platform for altering/refocusing goals, 140–141; and political opposition, 143; and standard program planning, 140–141
 Strategic projects, diverting resources to, 265–266
 Strategy: for attracting resources, 257; for collective enterprise of turning organization around, 273–275; to combat organization ossification, 273–275; and continuous assessment of feasibility plan, 262; defining, 255; development and implementation of, 258–262; importance of, 254–255, 257–258; and pilot programs, 260; programmatic, benefits of adopting, 257; in routine program planning, 255; setting realistic goals for, 266–267; simultaneous long-term and short-term perspective in, 259–260; for smaller-scale demonstration projects, 261; and staff understanding of roles and responsibilities, 258; team approach to, 258; as tool imposing order on chaos, 257; vision for producing outcomes and enhancing public satisfaction, 257–258
 Strategy formulation, 255–257; collective staff perceptions and knowledge as input to, 264; defining success and sequestering resources for, 264–266; employees' involvement in planning process for, 264; incremental, 263
 Strategy implementation: and alignment of organizational values with normative values of employees, 270; role of leadership in, 268–273; and strategy focused on “real work,” 266–268
 Sutherland, J. W., 255
 Swiss, J. E., 12, 153
 Sylvia, R., 46

T

- Task assignments: allowing staff's voice in, 132; assessment of organizational capability and performance in, 133–134; ensuring fairness and reasonableness in, 131–132; issue of fit in, 131; specific instructions in, 134–135; techniques for tracking, 135
- Task forces, unproductive workers assigned to, 84–85
- Team management: and annual contracts, 157; benefits and costs of, 157–160; bias toward individual performance in, 158–159; crafted for specific project or goal, 156; and definitions of teams, 155; description and focus of, 155, 156; factors and rules for success in, 157; history and successful use of, 155–156; and organization's performance evaluation and compensation, 159; project teams as primary mechanism for innovation in, 155, 156; and reorganization, 160; requirements to achieve sustainable improvement in, 168; types of, 156
- Texas at-will employment policy, studies of, 47–48
- Thomas, J. C., 322
- Thompson, E., 169, 170, 248
- Thompson, T. L., 47, 48
- Time-limited reassignment, for unproductive workers, 84
- Tipermas, M., 116
- Total Quality Management (TQM), 149
- Trebilock, M. J., 173
- Trust relationships, and managerial leadership by example, 105
- Tschirhart, M., 293
- Turner, A., 206
- U
- Unhappy and unproductive workers: and common sources of discontent, 102; strategies to contain influence of, 83–85
- Unions: and concept of principled negotiation, 102; understanding organizational role of, 100–102
- Ury, W., 93, 102, 312

- U.S. Bureau of the Census, 35
- U.S. House Committee on Government Reform, 35
- U.S. Postal Service: alliance with Federal Express, 36–37; Internet's impact on, 26–27

V

- Van Slyke, D. M., 171, 172, 187
- Vangen, S., 104
- Verba, S., 315
- Voice mail, professional use of, 207–208

W

- Walters, J., 48, 79, 81, 82, 86
- Washington state government, cooperative performance evaluations in, 86
- Waterman, R., 8, 42
- Weber, M., 108
- Weintraub, A., 27
- Weisbrod, B., 61, 65
- Weiss, J. A., 293
- West, J. P., 48
- West, D. M., 289, 290
- Wheeland, C., 169
- Whistleblower Protection Act, legislation to amend, 15
- Whitney, S., 46, 48
- Wildavsky, A., 237
- Williamson, O., 176
- Willoughby, K., 227
- Wilson, J. Q., 14, 283
- Wolf, J. S., 53
- Work assignments: ethical considerations in, 279–281, 282; evaluating and determining priority of, 275–277; manager's reactions to, 275; strategy for getting out of bad assignments and hopeless situations, 277–278
- Work Experience Program of New York City, hiring of welfare recipients in, 60–61
- Worker production, Hawthorne effect and, 103
- Working relationship formation, 89–106; advantages of informal communication in, 100; ascertaining and adjusting to your boss's style, 94–95; and common sources of staff unhappiness, 102; and communications with staff,

- 99–100; dealing with conflict in, 93; determination of demands to satisfy, 90; and disagreements with your boss, 97–98; filtering and prioritizing of demands in, 90; and incentives for staff motivation, 48–49; and individual-level communication strategies, 89; and interdependence in organizations, 92–93; and learning to listen to coworkers, 91–92; and maintenance of staff morale, 98–100, 102–103; and mutual dependence in management-staff relationships, 90–91; and nature of bureaucratic power, 92; and preserving your boss's time, 95–96; rules for communicating with your boss, 97; skills to master in, 89; suggestions for meeting with your boss, 95–96; and teaching without lecturing, 103–104; tension between task and relationship in, 90; and understanding that interpersonal relationships are critical, 92–93; with unions, 100–102
- Wright, B. E., 71
- Wulczyn, F., 173

<http://www.pbookshop.com>