

Contents

Foreword	xi
1 Technology Companies, Services and Networks	1
Introduction	1
The growth of the service sector	1
The different types of service	4
Services in technology or engineering sectors: A neglected category?	6
Engineering and service	6
Common characteristics and issues among service businesses in technology sectors	8
Is this really a distinct market or category?	19
Summary	21
2 Marketing Services	23
Introduction	23
One more time: What is marketing?	23
Different manifestations of marketing	24
The evolution of marketing in an organisation	27
Marketing services	32
Marketing in technology sectors	45
Summary	46
3 Gaining Strategic Insight into Service Markets	47
Introduction	47
Why market understanding is essential	47
Important market dynamics to understand	48
Means of gaining an objective market perspective	59
Opportunity analysis	64
Summary	65
4 Internal Perspectives and their Strategic Impact	67
Introduction	67
Strategic context	67

Strategic intent: The need for clarity of purpose	68
Methods of determining strategic focus	77
Brand equity as a source of strategic advantage	84
Customer equity	85
Portfolio strategy	85
'Go to market' capability	86
How does the company develop strategy?	87
Summary	88
5 Creating and Positioning a Service Brand	89
Introduction	89
What brands are and the effect they have	89
The basics of brand strategy	91
Corporate branding: The brand strategy for service companies	100
Practicalities: How to create a brand where none exists	104
Practicalities: Repositioning and brand extension strategies as a means of entering service markets	107
A note on political will and leadership vision	113
Summary	113
6 Innovation and New Service Design	115
Introduction	115
Service vision	115
Common mistakes in service design	117
The role of innovation and service development	120
Innovation in service businesses	122
Value propositions	133
Differentiation and how to achieve it	139
Categorisation and its implications for new service design	140
Practicalities	142
Summary	145
7 Selling Services	147
Introduction	147
How people buy	147
The sales strategies of technological service companies	152
Creating a 'service' sales force	158
Generic sales structures applicable to services	161
The practicalities: Managing the sales process	164
Summary	170
8 Marketing and Selling Services to Major Customers	171
Introduction	171
Prioritising customer accounts	171
Major customer sales strategies: Account management	173
Partnership selling: Major account management in consultancies	178
Cultural variations and their effect on account management	180

	Contents	ix
Account planning		181
Service quality for major accounts		192
Summary		193
9 Communicating with Service Markets		195
Introduction		195
Effective communications strategy		195
Aspects of communications strategy		197
Communications techniques particularly important to service companies		203
Managing the creative execution		209
Media planning		210
Practicalities and management basics		216
Communications during a crisis		221
Summary		222
10 Service Quality		223
Introduction		223
The importance of service quality		223
Service quality and customer care: A recent history		224
Terminology and perceived wisdom		226
Analysis		235
Service strategy		239
Planning service quality		240
Service recovery		242
Satisfaction measurement		246
Summary		247
11 Service on the World Stage		249
Introduction		249
The challenge of working across borders		249
International strategic considerations		250
International market analysis and perspective		257
International brand strategy		258
International marketing communication issues		259
International sales and account management strategy		260
International service design		260
Different international strategic choices		261
Summary		263
Appendix Marketing Tools and Techniques		265
References		307
Index		311

<http://www.pbookshop.com>