

Contents

Preface		xxiii
Acknowledgments		xxv
CHAPTER 1	Beginning at the Beginning: The Context for Everything Else	1
	Why the Larger Context Matters	1
	Philosophical Framework	2
	This I Believe	3
	Building Community	3
	Building Community Redux	7
	Effective Organizations	8
	Key Components of Effective Organizations	8
	Effective Fund Development	9
	In Conclusion	10
INTERMEZZO #1	Why?	11
CHAPTER 2	The Red Pants Factor: A Story about the Power of Questioning	13
	Finding Your Own “Red Pants Factor”	15
	A Postscript from Black Dress	15
INTERMEZZO #2	What Do All the Words Mean?	17
CHAPTER 3	Key Components of Effective Organizations: Part of the Larger Context for This Work	19
	Adopt an Organizational Development Approach	19
	Limitations of Technical Fundraising	20
	Turning You into an Organizational Development Specialist	21
	What the Organizational Development Specialist Needs to Know	22
	Build a Culture of Philanthropy	23
	Concept of Corporate Culture	23
	Culture of Philanthropy	24
	Meaningful Questions	25
	Personal and Organizational Commitment to Conversation and Questioning, Learning and Change	27
	Learning Organization Theory	27

XIV CONTENTS

	Systems Thinking, the Cornerstone of Learning Organizations	28
	Conversation at Work	29
	This Is Hard Work	33
	Value of Research—Your Own and That of Others	33
	Collecting Data from Your Organization	35
	Translating Data into Useful Information	35
	Qualified Opinions Only, Please!	36
	A Curious Conundrum	36
	Corollary of the Curious Conundrum	37
	In Conclusion	38
CHAPTER 4	What Relationships Are and Why We Have Them: The Art of Human Interaction	41
	Relationships Are Everything	41
	A Radical Notion	43
	Relationships Require Choice	43
	Types of Relationships in the Nonprofit/NGO Sector	44
	Your Philanthropic Relationships: How Your Organization Relates to Its Donors of Time and Money	44
	Relationships with Other Organizations: How Your Organization Relates to Other Community Organizations	44
	Relationships within Your Organization: How the Various Parts of Your Organization Relate	45
	Advocacy and Public Policy Relationships: How Your Organization Promotes Public Policy that Fosters Healthy Communities	45
	Relationships Are Definitely Not Transactions	46
	Do Donors Really Want Relationships?	47
	Watch a Good Relationship Builder	48
	Key Concepts in Relationship Building	48
	Sincerity	49
	Closeness and Boundaries	50
	Diversity and Cultural Competence	51
	Values	53
	Dynamism and Change	54
	In Conclusion	54
	Appendix 4A Values and Mission of the Equity Action Fund at The Rhode Island Foundation	59
CHAPTER 5	Five Rather Deadly Sins: Warnings about Relationships and Solicitation	61
	Sin #1: Separating Fund Development from Philanthropy	61
	Sin #2: Treating Giving as a Financial Transaction Rather than an Emotional Act	62
	Are You Treating Your Donors like Automatic Teller Machines?	63
	Sin #3: Trespassing on Personal and Professional relationships. Please Promise that You Won't!	64

	How Do Your Board Members Feel? But Lots of Organizations Do This and We Need the Money!	65 65
	Sin #4: Universalizing Your Own Passion. Instead, Find Theirs—or Leave Them Alone and Move On!	66
	Sin #5: Asking Prematurely More Visibility Does Not Produce More Gifts Ensuring Visibility with Your Prospects and Donors Don't Solicit Unless You Know that The Person Knows Your Organization	67 67 69 69
	Not Sins but Certainly Worries Are You Worried about Donor Fatigue? Are You Worried about All That Competition for the Same Donors?	70 70 71
	In Conclusion	72
INTERMEZZO #3	Direct Mail and Relationship Building	73
CHAPTER 6	Eight Steps to Develop and Nurture Relationships: It's What I'm Buying that Counts	75
	Developing Your Relationship-Building Program	77
	Steps in Relationship Building	77
	Step #1: Identify the Predisposed	78
	Step #2: Get to Know the Predisposed	78
	Step #3: Understand Their Interests and Disinterests, Their Emotions, and Their Motivations and Aspirations	78 79
	Step #4: Identify What You Have in Common and Define the Mutually Beneficial Exchange	80
	Step #5: Nurture the Relationship to Develop Commitment	80
	Step #6: Evaluate Interest and Readiness for the Request	81
	Step #7: Ask and Thank	83
	Step # 8: Monitor Progress and Measure Results	85
	In Conclusion	85
	Appendix 6A Evaluating Prospect Interest, Readiness, and Capacity and Designing the Ask	86
CHAPTER 7	Identify the Predisposed: Finding New Prospects for Your Organization	89
	Who Are the Predisposed?	89
	Introducing the Concept	89
	But What If They Are Reluctant?	90
	Fund Development Professionals Help Organizations Identify the Predisposed	91
	Collect and Analyze Public Lists	91
	Listen to Your Friends and Colleagues	92
	Host Cultivation Gatherings	93
	Creating Opportunities for People to Self-Identify as Predisposed	94

	How the Women's Fund Uses These Four Steps	95
	Building Relationships (and Identifying the Predisposed)
	at the Apple Store	97
	In Conclusion	98
	Appendix 7A Learning about People Through Conversation	99
CHAPTER 8	Understanding the Fundamentals of Marketing and Communications: The Right Message to the Right Person at the Right Time	103
	Communications: For Many, It's All They Know of You	103
	Fund Development Is a Type of Marketing, and Uses the Same Methods	104
	It's Not What You're Selling, It's What They're Buying	107
	Targeting: How You Find Needles in a Haystack	109
	Segmentation: How You Increase Penetration Of A Target Market	112
	Frequency and Reach	113
	What Is Branding?	116
	In Conclusion	118
CHAPTER 9	Emotions: The Decision Makers	119
	Introduction	119
	Orbitofrontal Damage and Its Implications for Fundraisers	120
	Emotional Triggers: An Introduction	121
	Up to 135 Triggers to Choose From	122
	Emotional Twinsets: Raise the Problem, Be the Solution	125
	In Conclusion	128
	Appendix 9A W. Gerrod Parrott's List of Emotions	130
CHAPTER 10	Relationship Building: Details about Steps #3 and #5: Getting to Know You	133
	Step #3 in the Relationship-Building Process	133
	Getting Started	134
	Keep Going!	136
	What Kind of Information Do You Want to Know?	136
	A Few Strategies for Getting to Know Your Donors and Prospects	137
	A Reminder about Step #4	140
	Step #5: Nurture the Relationship to Development
	Commitment	140
	Role of Customer Service	140
	Some Preliminary Thoughts about Cultivation	141
	Creating Opportunities for Connection	143
	Ways of Making Emotions Tangible and Expressing Feelings	144
	Cultivation as a Community-Building Process	144
	Ideas for Nurturing Relationships	145
	Using Incentives to Nurture Relationships	151
	Using an Individual to Cultivate a Particular

	Relationship	151
	Debrief after Cultivation	152
	In Conclusion	152
	Appendix 10A Building Relationships with Your Constitutents	154
	Appendix 10B Member Survey of the Audubon Society of Rhode Island	162
	Appendix 10C E-Mail Survey from the Audubon Society of Rhode Island	168
	Appendix 10D Women’s Fund of Rhode Island Marking Milestones Brochure	170
CHAPTER 11	Creating Your Relationship-Building Plan: Write It Down	173
	Good Process Produces the Best Results	174
	Plan Practicalities	174
	A Different Approach	175
	In Conclusion	176
CHAPTER 12	Planning Donor Communications: Staying in Touch	177
	Introduction	177
	Writing a Plan	178
	Building an Annual Donor/Media Communications Calendar on the Schwartz Plan	179
	In Conclusion	185
CHAPTER 13	Characteristics of Effective Communications: How the Sausage Gets Made	187
	Action is the Objective. Reading Is Optional	187
	An Honest-to-Goodness Secret to Success: Write a Creative Brief First	189
	There’s an Onslaught, and You’re Part of the Problem	190
	You’re Selling Feelings, Especially Hope	190
	You’re Selling a Feeling of Importance, Too	190
	Interest Me (or Else)	191
	How to Interest Donors and Prospects: The Big Four	193
	How to Interest Anyone: Four Chances to Win	195
	Self-Interest: Why Greed Is Good (For Your Organization)	198
	Make Offers	199
	Passing the “You” Test	200
	Don’t Talk So Much about What You Do. Talk about Why It Matters	201
	Have Themes	201
	You’ve Heard of “Values Voters”? Meet “Values Givers”	202
	In Conclusion	203
INTERMEZZO #4	What’s the Role of a Fundraiser?	205

CHAPTER 14	Are You Really Donor-Centered? Are Your Donors Truly Loyal? Why Building a Better Mousetrap Doesn't Work Unless Your Donors Are Mice	207
	Some Facts about Donor Retention	208
	Donor-Centrism: The New Old Thing	209
	Acquisition Is Easy. Retention Is Tough	209
	"Donor-Centric" Is Another Way of Saying "Building Trust"	210
	Why Donor-Centered ? Shouldn't Mission Be at the Center?	211
	Simple Demands of Donor-Centricity	212
	Donor Loyalty and Donor-Centrism: Inextricably Linked	212
	What Is Loyalty?	214
	Passive Loyalty	214
	Active Loyalty	215
	Lifetime Value	216
	Are Donors Loyal to Your Organization or to the Cause You Represent?	216
	Current Donors Come First	217
	Helping Your Donors Dream	218
	It's Relationship Building, It's Not Education	218
	Engaging Donors with a Targeted Gift	220
	Acquiring a New Donor	221
	You're Invading Their Privacy	222
	Many Nonprofits Cannot Afford Bulk Direct Mail Acquisition Anyway	222
	Create an Exclusive Program to Bond with First-Time Donors	223
	Your Organization Can Speak Out—But Does It?	225
	In Conclusion	226
CHAPTER 15	Telling a Story: Then What Happened?	229
	Why Tell Stories?	229
	What Is a Story?	230
	Fundraising Stories Report Results, without Lingering on Your Inner Workings	231
	Anecdotes versus Statistics: Which Are Better?	232
	Handling the Trophy Statistic	234
	Use Statistics like a Spear	235
	Have Themes, Then Tell Stories that Illustrate Those Themes	235
	What Makes a Story Work? Sensory Detail	237
	In Conclusion	239
CHAPTER 16	Communications and Social Styles: Did You See What I Mean?	241
	Everything but the Words	241
	What Does "Social Style" Mean?	243
	Assertiveness and Responsiveness Come First	243

	Assertiveness: Measuring How Others See You as You Try to Influence Their Thoughts and Actions	244
	Responsiveness: Measuring How Others See You as You Express Your Feelings	244
	What's Your Social Style?	246
	Are You Comfortable? Are Others?	247
	Are You Versatile?	248
	A Few Caveats	248
	In Conclusion	249
CHAPTER 17	Conversation Nurtures Relationships: Asking Questions to Learn More	251
	A Quick Aside: Questions Related to Solicitation Purpose of This Conversation	252
	Honoring Conversation	253
	Active Listening	254
	Listening . . . Sort Of	254
	Observing	255
	Genuine Inquisitiveness	256
	Starting a Conversation: Why Talking about the Weather Is Good	256
	What Is Important to Those in Your Relationships? Here's a Framework That Might Help You Discern What's Important	257
	Your Donors and Your Mission	260
	Ask Your Donors Why	260
	Ask Questions about Your Organization Specifically	261
	Ask Questions about Your Cause	261
	Ask About Their Giving Habits	262
	Find Out Their Values and Beliefs	262
	Conversation with Donors at the Rhode Island Foundation	263
	In Conclusion	265
CHAPTER 18	The Case for Support: Why Should Anyone Give You Money?	267
	Introduction	267
	Preliminary Steps	268
	A Good Case Is, at Heart, an Inspiring Tale	268
	What Kinds of Information to Collect? A Checklist	271
	Building a Case in a Single Meeting	276
	Why Does Your Organization Do What It Does?	277
	What Have You Accomplished?	277
	Why Is Your Organization the Best Organization to Do This Work?	277
	What Do You Do?	278
	How Do You Hold Yourself Accountable?	278
	Who Are Your Target Audiences?	278
	Which Emotional Triggers Would Move Your Target Audience(s) to Act?	279
	Going from A to B: Answering Three Basic Questions	279

Why Us?	280
Why Now?	280
Why You?	280
Types of Case Statements	280
Internal Case	280
Feasibility, Planning, or Draft Case	285
Public Case	285
In Conclusion	287
Appendix 18A Thoughts about Creating a Case for Support	289
Appendix 18B Housatonic Youth Service Bureau: (Established by Six Concerned Communities in 1991)	294
Appendix 18C Volunteers in Providence Schools: Case Statement for Operations	297
Appendix 18D Audubon Society of RI: Internal Case for Donor Support	302
Appendix 18E Talking Points: HousingWorks RI 2006	313
CHAPTER 19
The Donor Newsletter: How You Cultivate (i.e., Retain) Donors	321
Introduction	321
What the Research Says about Donor Newsletters	322
What Do Donors Want from Your Newsletter?	323
Seven Common Flaws that Undermine Donor Newsletters: A Checklist	326
Flaw #1: Doesn't Deliver News that Donors Care About	326
Flaw #2: Doesn't Put the Donor Center Stage	327
Flaw #3: Isn't Very Friendly	327
Flaw #4: Skimps on Emotional Triggers	328
Flaw #5: Doesn't Tell Stories	328
Flaw #6: Expects People to Read in Depth	328
Flaw #7: Doesn't Have Real Headlines	328
The Flaw You Fix First: Headlines	329
How to Find the Story Behind the Headline	330
Electrons or Paper? High-Performance E-Mailed Newsletters	332
Your E-Newsletter's Subject Line Makes All the Difference	335
Electrons and Paper: Other Advantages of E-Newsletters	336
E-Newsletters Must Be Opt-in (A Good Idea for Everything, Really)	338
Fast, Easy, Still on Paper: The "Newsyletter"	339
Simplicity Itself: A Proven Formula for a Donor Newsyletter	340
In Conclusion	341
Appendix 19A Boys & Girls Club of Pawtucket Newsletter	342
Appendix 19B Example 1: Women's Fund of Rhode Island Newsyletter	346
Appendix 19C Example 2: Women's Fund of Rhode Island Newsyletter	348

CHAPTER 20	The Web Site Home Page: Click. Search. Do. Read? Not So Much	351
	Why Web Sites Are Completely Different	351
	Is Your Home Page Ready for Newcomers?	352
	Getting Off on the Right Foot: The Importance of a Tagline	353
	What Must Be on the Home Page, Krug Says	354
	In Conclusion	355
CHAPTER 21	Tips for Writing: Think First. Write Later	357
	Introduction	357
	Your Fifth-Grade Teacher Was Right: Outline	358
	An Easy Way to Outline: Ask Yourself Questions First	358
	Know the Point of Your Story and Start There	361
	Write about Benefits, Not Features	362
	Write Less	363
	Write for Speedy Reading	364
	Beginning with a History Lesson, and Other Common Flaws	366
	In Conclusion	368
CHAPTER 22	Readability: Visual Aspects of Good Communications	369
	Welcome, Browsers!	369
	How We Look	371
	From Gutenberg to Wheelton	371
	Anatomy of a Failed Annual Report	373
	In Conclusion	376
CHAPTER 23	Monitoring Progress and Measuring Results: How Effective Are Your Communications?	377
	“Is It Working?” How to Measure Your Results	377
	Measuring the Unmeasurable	381
	Get Your Thoughts in Order Before You Begin to Write: A Checklist	382
	Evaluating Your Donor Newsletter: Eight Tests	384
	Measuring the Effectiveness of Public Relations	388
	Standards for E-Mail Solicitations	389
	In Conclusion	390
CHAPTER 24	Monitoring Progress and Measuring Results: How Good Is Your Relationship-Building Program?	393
	Why Evaluation Matters	395
	Deciding What to Measure	396
	Measuring Performance and Evaluating Results	397
	A Practical Example	398
	A Suggestion for Measuring Some of Your Qualitative Results	399
	Analyzing and Interpreting Evaluation Results	400
	Communicating Evaluation Results	401
	Possible Performance Measures for Relationship Building	401
	From the Prospect/Donor Perspective	402

XXII CONTENTS

	What You Do to Nurture Relationships	403
	Charitable Giving Measures that Reflect Donor Loyalty	404
	Monitoring Progress	404
	In Conclusion	405
INTERMEZZO #5	You and Your Organization: Sprinting into the Future	407
CHAPTER 25	Coda: Philanthropy's Moral Dilemma	409
	Politics of Power in Philanthropy	410
	Moral Dilemma Facing Philanthropy	410
	Power, the Silent Haunting	411
	Privilege, the Driving Nature of Power	411
	Understanding the Two Types of Philanthropy	412
	Tradition Dominates	415
	Have You Noticed: The Less Social Justice We Have, the More Philanthropy We Need?	416
	We Are Complicit	416
	Philanthropy as a Democraticizing Act	418
	Attacking the Moral Dilemma	418
	In Conclusion	420
	Appendix 25A Questions about Privilege and Power	422
APPENDICES
	A. Joyaux's Concept of Enabling Functions, Skills, and Attitudes	425
	B. Basic Principles of Fund Development	427
	Resources	431
	Index	435