

Summary Contents

| | |
|--|------|
| List of Contributors | xiii |
| Introduction | 1 |
| Simon Chesterman & Angelina Fisher | |
| PART I: ACCOUNTABILITY GAPS | |
| 1. The privatization of violence | 11 |
| Michael Likosky | |
| 2. The responsibility of states | 25 |
| Olivier De Schutter | |
| 3. Accountability to whom? | 46 |
| Angelina Fisher | |
| PART II: LESSONS FROM OTHER SECTORS | |
| 4. The privatization continuum | 71 |
| Daphne Barak-Erez | |
| 5. Private prisons and the democratic deficit | 86 |
| Alfred C Aman, Jr | |
| 6. Regulatory choices in the privatization of infrastructure | 107 |
| Mariana Mota Prado | |
| 7. Human rights and self-regulation in the apparel industry | 133 |
| Rebecca DeWinter-Schmitt | |
| PART III: LIMITS | |
| 8. Police informants | 159 |
| Jacqueline Ross | |
| 9. Intelligence services | 184 |
| Simon Chesterman | |
| 10. Peacekeeping | 205 |
| Chia Lehnhardt | |
| 11. Conclusion: Private security, public order | 222 |
| Simon Chesterman & Angelina Fisher | |
| Index | 227 |

<http://www.pbookshop.com>

Contents

| | |
|-----------------------------|------|
| List of Contributors | xiii |
| Introduction | 1 |

PART I: ACCOUNTABILITY GAPS

| | |
|---|----|
| 1. The privatization of violence | 11 |
| The trajectory of privatization | 13 |
| Early privatizations: From colonial chartered companies to railroads | 13 |
| Privatization, the Second World War and after | 15 |
| Producing violence through public-private partnerships in civilian context | 18 |
| Privatized violence and pipelines: Camisea | 19 |
| Privatizing security: Dual-use technologies | 20 |
| Conclusion: Accountability, privatization, and violence | 23 |
| 2. The responsibility of states | 25 |
| Attribution to the state | 28 |
| Complete dependence | 29 |
| Empowered by law | 31 |
| Acting on instructions, or under direction or control | 32 |
| Due diligence | 33 |
| The extraterritorial obligation to protect human rights | 34 |
| Discharging the obligation to protect by exercising extraterritorial jurisdiction | 36 |
| Conclusion | 44 |
| 3. Accountability to whom? | 46 |
| Why accountability to affected populations? | 46 |
| Bases for accountability | 48 |
| Domestic law | 48 |
| International law | 51 |
| What circumstances may give rise to corporate legal responsibility? | 53 |
| To whom does a corporation owe legal duty? | 54 |
| What duties would corporations owe to the identified individuals? | 56 |
| Summary | 58 |

| | |
|--|----|
| Grievance mechanisms | 59 |
| Grievance panels, compliance investigative units, and other institutional grievance mechanisms | 59 |
| Project-specific grievance mechanisms | 63 |
| Office of ombudsman | 65 |
| Conclusion | 67 |

PART II: LESSONS FROM OTHER SECTORS

| | |
|---|-----|
| 4. The privatization continuum | 71 |
| The Different Faces of Privatization | 72 |
| Privatization: Between policy and law | 75 |
| The boundaries of privatization | 76 |
| Institutional analysis | 77 |
| Right-based analysis | 80 |
| The decision-making process on privatization | 80 |
| The regulation of privatized functions and activities | 82 |
| Toward a public law of privatization | 84 |
| 5. Private prisons and the democratic deficit | 86 |
| Regulating private prisons: Legislative responses | 90 |
| Privatization, cost, democracy, and inequality | 90 |
| Private prisons, transparency, and accountability | 94 |
| The limits of privatization: Scope for a new administrative law? | 100 |
| Judicial responses: The outer limits of privatization and prisons | 100 |
| A need for new approaches to administrative law | 103 |
| Conclusion | 104 |
| 6. Regulatory choices in the privatization of infrastructure | 107 |
| Why do governments privatize? | 108 |
| Four reasons to privatize | 109 |
| The decision to regulate and the choice of regulatory framework | 111 |
| Principal-agent problems in the decision to privatize | 113 |
| How governments privatize | 115 |
| The judiciary | 116 |
| Alternative dispute resolution and enforcement mechanisms | 118 |
| Peculiarities of military and security services contracts | 119 |
| Whether governments should privatize | 121 |
| Should governments privatize military and security services? | 122 |
| Should governments regulate PMSCs? | 125 |

| | |
|---|------------|
| Similarities between infrastructure and military and security services contracts | 128 |
| Conclusion: Some policy implications | 131 |
| 7. Human rights and self-regulation in the apparel industry | 133 |
| The global apparel industry and security industry | 136 |
| The nature of production and regulation in the apparel industry | 136 |
| Alternative forms of regulation in the apparel industry | 141 |
| The Fair Labor Association | 142 |
| The Worker Rights Consortium | 144 |
| Assessment | 145 |
| Self-regulation in the private security industry | 148 |
| Conclusion | 153 |
| PART III: LIMITS | |
| 8. Police informants | 159 |
| Introduction: Informants and Outsourcing | 159 |
| Confidentiality regulations and law-breaking | 163 |
| German confidentiality rules in comparative perspective | 166 |
| Confidentiality regulations and their limits on organizational insiders: A social science analogy | 169 |
| How effectively do confidentiality regulations limit the undercover use of organizational insiders? | 173 |
| Police informants or undercover agents? | 173 |
| ‘Hot’ versus ‘cold’ informants | 175 |
| German leeway to recruit organizational insiders | 176 |
| Latitude afforded to organizational insiders | 178 |
| How effectively do preconditions for confidentiality promises restrict informants manoeuvre room? | 178 |
| Conclusion | 179 |
| 9. Intelligence services | 184 |
| Outsourcing intelligence | 186 |
| Collection | 187 |
| Analysis | 193 |
| Accountability | 195 |
| Secrecy | 195 |
| Incentives | 197 |
| ‘Inherently governmental’ functions | 199 |
| Conclusion | 203 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 10. Peacekeeping | 205 |
| The role of PMSCs in multilateral peacekeeping operations | 207 |
| PMSC personnel in international law | 209 |
| International responsibility for misconduct | 209 |
| Attribution of PMSC conduct to the UN | 210 |
| Attribution of PMSC conduct to the contributing state | 214 |
| Responsibility on the basis of the principle of due diligence | 215 |
| PMSCs on the frontlines? | 218 |
| Conclusion | 220 |
| 11. Conclusion: Private security, public order | 222 |
| Governance | 223 |
| Limits | 225 |
| Whose security, whose order? | 226 |
| Index | 227 |