

O.62, Sch.1, Pt.II, para.7(2)	10.052
O.62, Sch.1, Pt.II, para.7(3)	10.052
O.62, Sch.1, Pt.II, para.7(4)	10.052
O.62, Sch.2	10.047
O.65	12.015
O.102	4.027
O.102, r.2	12.038
O.102, r.5(2)	8.015
App.A, Form 10	1.085
App.A, Form 15	1.085
App.A, Form 84	10.103
Unfair Prejudice Rule
r.2(b)	4.029
r.4(1)	4.029
r.2(c)	4.029
r.16	4.035
r.23A	4.031
r.24	4.032
r.25	4.031
r.26	4.036
r.27	4.035
r.29	4.034
r.30	4.033, 4.037
r.31	4.035
r.32	4.036

CHAPTER 1

DIRECTORS

Authored and Updated by Dr. Stefan Lo

	PARA.
I. Effect of Winding-Up and Receiverships on Directors	1.001
II. Civil Liability of Directors	1.015
III. Criminal Liability of Directors	1.059
IV. Disqualification of Directors	1.065

<http://www.lppbookshop.com>

I. EFFECT OF WINDING-UP AND RECEIVERSHIPS ON DIRECTORS

Compulsory, Winding-Up

Powers of Directors

General

The presentation of a petition for the winding-up of the company by the court does not in itself affect the powers or position of the directors who may continue to operate the business of the company.¹ However, the directors would need to ensure that they do not engage in fraudulent trading,² and in addition, should be aware that if a winding-up order is made, any disposition of the company's property and any alteration in the status of the members of the company after the date of the petition would be void unless validated by the court.³ Where a provisional liquidator is appointed before the hearing of the petition, the directors' powers would cease.⁴ The board has some residuary powers though, such as opposing the petition on behalf of the company or in appealing against the order for the appointment of the provisional liquidator.⁵ The scope of the board's residuary powers can generally be tested by considering whether the power the board is said to have lost is one which can be said to have been assumed by the liquidator; if it has not been assumed, then the board would still retain the power.⁶ In addition, there may be some powers which can be exercised by both the provisional liquidator and the directors, such as the right of inspection of the company's accounting records under the Companies Ordinance (Cap.622), s.374(1)(b). In Re Gold Pleasure Industrial Co Ltd,⁷ the court held that there is no inconsistency for both the directors and provisional liquidators to exercise this right of inspection, so long as the directors do not exercise the right in such a way as to jeopardise or adversely affect the provisional liquidators' functions. Where a provisional liquidator had not been appointed before the winding-up order, the directors' management powers and control over the company would cease upon the making of the winding-up order whereupon the Official Receiver becomes the provisional liquidator in accordance with the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32), s.194.⁸

1.001

¹ Re Oriental Bank Corp, ex p Guillemin (1884) 28 Ch D 634; Mersey Steel and Iron Co v Naylor Benzon & Co (1882) 9 QBD 648.

² Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32), s.275.

³ Cap.32, ss.182 and 184.

⁴ Re Oriental Bank Corp, ex p Guillemin (1884) 28 Ch D 634; Fowler v Broad's Patent Night Light Co [1893] 1 Ch 724; Gosling v Gaskell [1897] AC 575; Re Mawcon Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 188, at 192, [1969] 1 WLR 78, at 82; Re Union Accident Insurance Co Ltd [1972] 1 All ER 1105, at 1113, [1972] 1 WLR 640, [1972] 1 Lloyd's Rep 297, per Plowman J.

⁵ Re Perak Pioneer Ltd (No 3) [1984] HKC 505; Re Union Accident Insurance Co Ltd [1972] 1 All ER 1105, at 1113, [1972] 1 WLR 640, [1972] 1 Lloyd's Rep 297, per Plowman J.

⁶ Re Union Accident Insurance Co Ltd [1972] 1 All ER 1105, at 1113, [1972] 1 WLR 640, [1972] 1 Lloyd's Rep 297, per Plowman J.

⁷ [2006] 4 HKC 398. On the directors' rights of inspection generally, see also Re Alvarez & Marsal Asia Ltd [2009] 4 HKLRD 727; Re Fook Lam Moon Restaurant Ltd [2011] 1 HKLRD 964; Lam Sit King v Chungshan Commercial Association Hong Kong [2011] 3 HKLRD 323.

⁸ Madrid Bank v Bayley (1866) LR 2 QB 37, at 40; Re Oriental Inland Steam Co (1874) 9 Ch App 557, at 560; Re Ebsworth & Tidy's Contract (1889) 42 Ch D 23, at 43; Fowler v Broad's Patent Night Light Co [1893] 1 Ch 724;

However, the directors could act for the company to appeal the winding-up order.⁹ A director might also be appointed as a special manager with such powers as determined by the court on application by the Official Receiver where the Official Receiver is liquidator of the company.¹⁰

Effect of Acting Outside of Powers

- 1.002 Where the directors act outside of their powers, the act will not be binding on the company.¹¹ There may be a possibility that a third party who deals with the company without knowledge of the appointment of the provisional liquidator or the winding-up could rely on the directors' ostensible authority,¹² although ostensible authority would not be applicable where notice of the order for the appointment of the provisional liquidator or for the winding-up has been advertised in accordance with Companies (Winding-Up) Rules (Cap.32H), r 36.¹³ The liquidator could, however, adopt and ratify the acts of the directors.¹⁴

Directors Engaged as Employees

- 1.003 Employees are dismissed from the date of publication of the order for winding-up, and accordingly a director employed under a service contract¹⁵ would be dismissed from his position as employee¹⁶ and may claim in the winding-up for any entitlements due in such capacity as employee.¹⁷ As to the rights of such directors to claim compensation for termination of their engagement as employees, see para. 1.008 below. The liquidator may however allow the employment of some or all the company's employees to continue if the liquidator carries on the business of the company.¹⁸

Whether Directors Cease to Hold Office

- 1.004 Although the directors may lose their powers and executive directors are dismissed as employees, it is not entirely clear whether the directors actually cease to hold office as directors. There are indications in the English Court of Appeal decision of Measures

Measure Bros Ltd v Measures [1910] 2 Ch 248; Re Farrow's Bank Ltd [1921] 2 Ch 164, at 174; Re Mawcon Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 188; [1969] 1 WLR 78; Re Union Accident Insurance Co Ltd [1972] 1 All ER 1105; [1972] 1 WLR 640; [1972] 1 Lloyd's Rep 297.

⁹ Re Diamond Fuel Co (1879) 13 Ch D 400, at 404–405; Re Union Accident Insurance Co Ltd [1972] 1 WLR 640; Re Reprographic Exports (Euromat) Ltd (1978) 122 SJ 400. Cap.32, s.216.

¹¹ Bolognesi's Case (1870) 5 Ch App 567.

¹² Cf. Re a company (No 006341 of 1992), ex p B Ltd [1994] 1 BCLC 225, at 230.

¹³ Re Mawcon Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 188; [1969] 1 WLR 78.

¹⁴ Re Mawcon Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 188; [1969] 1 WLR 78.

¹⁵ See Re Beeton & Co Ltd [1913] 2 Ch 279.

¹⁶ Re General Rolling Stock Co (1866) LR 1 Eq 346 (advertisement of the winding-up order is to be treated as notice by the liquidator of termination of the employment); Re Oriental Bank Corp. ex p Guillemin (1884) 28 Ch D 634; Golsing v Gaskell [1897] AC 575, HL; Fowler v Commercial Timber Co [1930] 2 KB 1; Re Standard Salt & Alkali Ltd [1934] SASR 168; Re Mawcon Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 188, [1969] 1 WLR 78; Re Peck Winch & Tod Ltd (1979) 130 NLJ 116.

¹⁷ Re Beeton & Co Ltd [1913] 2 Ch 279 (director who was also engaged as employee entitled to claim preferential payments due to employees under Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 s.209 (cf Cap.32 s.265)).

¹⁸ Re English Joint Stock Bank, ex p Harding (1867) 3 Eq 341; Re Herald Newspaper of Otago (1889) 7 NZLR 484; Re Associated Dominions Assurance Society Ltd (1962) 109 CLR 516; Re Oriental Bank Corp (1886) 32 Ch D 366; Reid v Explosives Ltd (1887) 19 QBD 265.

*Brothers Ltd v Measures*¹⁹ that the office of director is vacated automatically upon the winding-up, although it does not appear that the decision actually turned on that issue.²⁰ That approach however was accepted in a South African decision,²¹ and in addition, Canadian cases have held that, following the appointment of the liquidator, the directors are not under fiduciary duties so that they are free to purchase the company's property from the liquidator.²² However, in the earlier case of Madrid Bank Ltd v Bayley,²³ Blackburn J (with whom Shee J agreed) had held that on a winding-up, although the directors no longer have control over the management of the company, nothing in the companies legislation required the directors to cease to be officers of the company, and accordingly the directors in that case were required to answer interrogatories under relevant statutory provisions requiring "officers" of a body corporate to answer interrogatories in an action to which the body corporate is a party. Australian courts have, upon reviewing the various English and overseas decisions, subsequently held that the weight of authority supports the view that the directors are not automatically removed from office upon a winding-up, but simply have their powers suspended.²⁴ In Austral Brick Co Pty Ltd v Falgat Constructions Pty Ltd,²⁵ Young J stated that the Canadian cases do not proceed on the basis that the directors have ceased to hold office, and can be explained on the basis that, because the company is adequately protected by an independent liquidator on a winding-up, it is not necessary to impose on the directors all the usual fiduciary obligations when dealing with the liquidator. In McAusland v Deputy Commissioner of Taxation,²⁶ French J had also held that the legislative scheme (in relevant respects comparable to the Hong Kong legislation) requires nothing more than a cessation of the powers of the directors on a winding-up, and further that the legislation, in allowing for a stay or termination of the winding-up, would be consistent with a mere suspension of power rather than an automatic vacation

¹⁹ [1910] 2 Ch 248. See also McAteer v Mullen [2008] NI Ch 12; Park Associated Developments Ltd (in liq) v Kimerar [2013] EWHC 3617 (Ch) at [2].

²⁰ The issue before the Court of Appeal was whether the company in liquidation could by injunction enforce a restraint of trade covenant against the director, in circumstances where the employment of the director ceased upon winding-up. Buckley LJ, in dissent, had held that as the director vacated office upon the winding-up, then in accordance with the contract, the director would be restrained from competing against the company for a seven-year period following vacation from office (see especially [1910] 2 Ch 248 at 256). The majority had held against the company, but the ratio of the majority was simply that the company would be denied equitable relief because it was unable to perform its side of the bargain by continuing the employment of the director. Of the majority judges, Cozens-Hardy MR did not comment on whether the director vacated office, but Kennedy LJ did state that the director was displaced from his office. Whether the director actually ceased office was not an issue though (as noted by Joyce J in the first instance decision in Measures Brothers v Measures [1910] 1 Ch 336 at 345) and it appears that the analysis in the Court of Appeal judgments would not have depended on whether the winding-up automatically led to the office of director being vacated or simply led to the director's employment under the contract being automatically terminated.

²¹ Attorney General v Blumenthal [1961] 4 Sth Af LR 313.

²² Re Mabou Coal and Gypsum Co [1894] 27 NSR 305, which affirmed Chatam National Bank v McKeen (1895) 24 SCR 348; Holmstead v Annable (1914) 18 DLR 3.

²³ (1866) LR 2 QB 37.

²⁴ Austral Brick Co Pty Ltd v Falgat Constructions Pty Ltd (1990) 8 ACLC 1011; 2 ACSR 766; Lord Corporation Pty Ltd v Green (1991) 22 NSWLR 532 at 541–3; McAusland v Deputy Commissioner of Taxation (1994) 12 ACLC 78; 12 ACSR 432.

²⁵ Austral Brick Co Pty Ltd v Falgat Constructions Pty Ltd (1990) 8 ACLC 1011, 2 ACSR 766 at 768.

²⁶ McAusland v Deputy Commissioner of Taxation (1994) 12 ACLC 78; 12 ACSR 432 at 449. Gummow J (with whom Sheppard J agreed on this issue) decided the relevant issue on a different basis, but was willing to assume that the "suspension of powers" approach to be correct for the purposes of that case.

of office, as this militates against the unnecessary inconvenience of having to reappoint the directors should the winding-up proceedings be stayed or terminated.

Assistance in the Liquidation and Examination of Directors

Assistance in the Liquidation

1.005 Upon a provisional liquidator being appointed or upon a winding-up order being made, the directors must allow the provisional liquidator or liquidator to take custody and control of all the property of the company.²⁷ Directors or former directors, if required by the provisional liquidator or liquidator, must within 28 days of the appointment of the provisional liquidator or the date of the winding-up order (as the case may be) submit to the provisional liquidator or liquidator a verified statement of the company's affairs in accordance with Cap.32, s.190. Section 190 is amended by the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance (14 of 2016) such that, inter alia, for any director or former director who has not made a statement of affairs, the provisional liquidator or liquidator may require the director or former director to submit a "supplementary affidavit" stating that the person concurs in the statement of affairs that had been submitted by the other directors or company secretary.²⁸ The supplementary affidavit may be qualified, for example, to state that the maker of the affidavit is not in agreement with the maker of the statement in respect of some particular matter.²⁹

After a winding-up order is made, the liquidator may order officers of the company to deliver, convey, surrender or transfer any money, property or books and papers in their hands to which the company is prima facie entitled.³⁰ The directors may also need to attend on the Official Receiver, provisional liquidator or liquidator to answer questions and to give information both before and after the submission of the statement of affairs.³¹ Where required, the directors might also be summoned before the court under s.221 of Cap.32 to be examined in relation to the promotion, formation, trade, dealings, affairs or property of the company, or to produce any books and papers in their custody or power relating to the company.³² Failure to deliver the company's property and books to the liquidator or for concealing or providing false information about the company may lead to criminal liability.³³

Public Examinations

1.006 Directors might also be required to be publicly examined before the court under s.222 of Cap.32, where the Official Receiver or liquidator has made a report under s.191(2) stating that in his opinion the director has committed a fraud in the promotion or formation of the company or in relation to the company since its formation. In addition, under s.168IA, where the Official Receiver has made a report that in his opinion a ²⁷ Cap.32, s.197.

²⁸ Cap.32 s. 190(2A) (not commenced at the time of writing).

²⁹ Cap.32 s.190(2B) (not commenced at the time of writing).

³⁰ The liquidator is delegated with the court's power to require delivery of property under Cap.32, s.211; see also Cap.32, s.226(c) and Companies (Winding-Up) Rules (Cap.32H), r 67.

³¹ Companies (Winding-Up) Rules (Cap.32H), rr 39(2) and 41.

³² Section 221 of Cap.32 is discussed in more detail in Chapter 6.

³³ Under Cap.32, ss.271, 272.

prima facie case exists against a director that would render him liable to a disqualification order under Part IVA,³⁴ the court may, on application by the Official Receiver, require the director to attend before the court to be publicly examined as to the conduct of the business of the company or as to his conduct and dealings as a director.

Upon commencement of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance (14 of 2016), s.222 of Cap.32 was repealed and replaced by s.286A. Under the new s.286A(1)(b),³⁵ the court may order a public examination even if there is no report made by the Official Receiver or a liquidator under s.191(2).

Fiduciary Duties

Scope of Application of Duties: Effect of Winding-Up

As discussed above, it is not entirely clear whether directors vacate office upon a winding-up or merely have their powers suspended. However, even if the directors have not vacated office, it is clear that the directors would not be subject to any duties to act bona fide in the interests of the company or to act for proper purposes or to act with due care, skill and diligence, for the reason that the directors can no longer exercise powers on behalf of the company. In addition, the directors may purchase the company's assets from the liquidator without being subject to restrictions arising from any fiduciary duties.³⁶ But it is also clear that, whether or not the directors are treated as having vacated office, they would not be able to use information properly regarded as trade secrets belonging to the company, since such a restriction applies even after a director has left office.³⁷ So, for example, in Measures Brothers Ltd v Measures,³⁸ where, at a time when winding-up of the company was imminent, the director had made copies of lists of the company's customers for later use in his own business after the winding-up order was made, Joyce J held that the director's actions in taking the lists amounted to a breach of duty to the company and ordered the director to deliver back those lists to the company.³⁹

In non-winding-up cases, the courts have accepted that the corporate opportunity doctrine still applies where a director has resigned from the company, where the resignation may fairly be said to have been prompted or influenced by a wish to acquire for himself the opportunity sought by the company or where it was his position with the company rather than a fresh initiative that led him to the opportunity which he later acquired.⁴⁰ It is not clear how far this principle applies in the winding-up situation though. There is a New Zealand authority which indicates that a company cannot prevent a director from exploiting a corporate opportunity where the company had ³⁴ See "Disqualification of directors" at para.1.065, below.

³⁵ Not yet commenced at the time of writing.

³⁶ Re Mahou Coal and Gypsum Co [1894] 27 NSR 305, which affirmed Chatam National Bank v McKeen (1895) 24 SCR 348; Holmested v Annable (1914) 18 DLR 3; Lord Corporation Pty Ltd v Green (1991) 22 NSWLR 532.

³⁷ See Kishimoto Sangyo Co Ltd v Akihiro Oba [1996] 2 HKC 260, CA; Measure Bros Ltd v Measures [1910] 1 Ch 336; Lord Corporation Pty Ltd v Green (1991) 22 NSWLR 532.

³⁸ Measure Bros Ltd v Measures [1910] 1 Ch 336. See also Austral Brick Co Pty Ltd v Falgat Constructions Pty Ltd (1990) 8 ACLC 1011; 2 ACSR 766, at 768.

³⁹ This aspect of the decision of Joyce J at first instance was not challenged on appeal.

⁴⁰ Canadian Aero Service Ltd v O'Malley (1973) 40 DLR (3d) 371; Industrial Development Consultants Ltd v Cooley [1972] 2 All ER 162; Kishimoto Sangyo Co Ltd v Akihiro Oba [1996] 2 HKC 260, CA.

terminated the director's employment.⁴¹ On this analysis, and if the winding-up has led to the director vacating office, then it could be said that the company has terminated the director's position and thus the directors are entitled to exploit the corporate opportunity and it matters not whether the company had acted voluntarily or involuntarily in the termination.⁴² In any event, the continuing fiduciary obligations of directors who have left office do not go so far as to prevent a director from using his own accumulated knowledge, skill and experience for his own profit, nor from preventing the director from cultivating his own commercial relationships with the company's suppliers and customers,⁴³ provided that the use of the company's contacts does not involve taking away confidential customer lists or committing to memory of such information.⁴⁴

If the directors are not treated as having vacated office though, the conceptual analysis as to the scope of application of the corporate opportunity doctrine would be different from the above. Prima facie, if the directors are still in office, in principle it would appear that they would still be subject to the general duties preventing them from exploiting corporate opportunities belonging to the company, at least where the liquidator is carrying on, or may still carry on, the company's business. Ordinarily, it seems that where a corporate opportunity has come to the directors by reason of their position as directors, they are restrained from diverting corporate opportunities to themselves on the basis that they have acquired or became aware of the opportunity as representatives of the company and accordingly the opportunity belongs in equity to the company.⁴⁵ This rationale would equally be applicable in the period during winding-up where the liquidator may still pursue the corporate opportunity for the benefit of the company's creditors and shareholders, since the opportunity can be said to belong to the company. On this approach then, the director cannot exploit a corporate opportunity which came to the director by reason of and in the course of the position of director.⁴⁶

However, it is submitted that the directors would not be precluded from exploiting a business opportunity which came to the director in a "private" capacity following the commencement of winding-up or from otherwise competing with the company during the winding-up.⁴⁷ Even before winding-up, there is no absolute duty on directors preventing them from competing with the company,⁴⁸ and in the period when the company is being wound up, there is arguably no conflict of interest at all where the directors no longer exercise any powers over the company and where they are no longer responsible for the company's assets or business. Furthermore, although cases such as *Industrial Development Consultants Ltd v Cooley*⁴⁹ indicate that ordinarily a director is not permitted to exploit any opportunity which is of concern and relevance to the ⁴¹ Plateau Equipment Ltd v Marsden (1991) 5 NZCLC 67,096.

⁴² See Measure Bros Ltd v Measures [1910] 2 Ch 248. But cf Lord Corporation Pty Ltd v Green (1991) 22 NSWLR 532, at 543–544.

⁴³ Kishimoto Sangyo Co Ltd v Akihiro Oba [1996] 2 HKC 260, CA; Kao Lee and Yip v Koo Hoi Yan Donald [2003] 2 HKC 113.

⁴⁴ Measure Bros Ltd v Measures [1910] 1 Ch 336; Robb v Green [1895] 2 QB 315, CA (Eng); Sanders v Parry [1967] 2 All ER 803; [1967] 1 WLR 753; Roger Bullivant Ltd v Ellis [1987] 1 CR 464, [1987] IRLR 491, CA (Eng).

⁴⁵ See Cook v Deeks [1916] 1 AC 554.

⁴⁶ Cf Lord Corporation Pty Ltd v Green (1991) 22 NSWLR 532, at 543–544.

⁴⁷ Cf Measure Bros Ltd v Measures [1910] 2 Ch 248.

⁴⁸ London & Mashonaland Exploration Co v New Mashonaland Exploration Co [1891] WN 165; Bell v Lever Bros [1932] AC 161, at 195, HL.

⁴⁹ [1972] 2 All ER 162. See also SEA Food International Pty Ltd v Lam (1998) 16 ACLC 552.

company, notwithstanding that the director only became aware of the opportunity in a private capacity, it may be that this principle is not applicable in the winding-up context. It appears that the rationale for that principle is that the directors are under duties of good faith to act in the interests of the company and thus are under an obligation to pass on the information about the business opportunity which may be of relevance to the company.⁵⁰ However, it could be argued that this rationale is not applicable during a winding-up, since the directors are no longer under any obligations to manage the company's business and to act in the interests of the company.

Voluntary Winding-Up

Powers of Directors and Position of Directors Engaged as Employees

The passing of a resolution⁵¹ for the voluntary winding-up of the company does not in itself affect the powers of directors, however, pursuant to Cap.32, those powers would cease upon the appointment of the liquidator.⁵² The directors' powers can continue though if sanctioned, in a voluntary winding-up, by the company in general meeting or the liquidator⁵³ or in a creditor's voluntary winding-up, by the committee of inspection or the creditors if there is no such committee.⁵⁴ Where the directors have acted outside their powers, the transaction would ordinarily be invalid,⁵⁵ however, it may be that where the resolution for winding-up was neither registered nor advertised, a third party dealing with the directors could rely on the directors' ostensible authority in binding the company if the third party did not know and had no means of knowing that the resolution had been passed.⁵⁶ Where the directors have acted without authority, it is always possible for the liquidator to adopt and ratify the directors' acts.⁵⁷

It appears that although the directors' powers may cease upon the appointment of the liquidator, the directors nonetheless still remain in office.⁵⁸

As to whether executive directors are automatically dismissed from their position as employee, the law is not entirely settled. In Re Imperial Wine Co, Shireff's Case,⁵⁹ Lord Romilly MR stated that the resolution to wind up the company puts to an end the employment of the company's manager. However, in Midland Counties Bank v Atwood,⁶⁰ Warrington J considered that the Shireff's Case was not binding authority for that principle on the basis that it was obiter only and held instead that the voluntary liquidation does not in itself result in the dismissal of the company's employees. Voluntary winding-up was treated as being different from compulsory winding-up in that in the former the liquidator simply acts as an officer of the company, while in the latter, there is a change in the personality of the employer in the sense that the liquidator ⁵⁰ [1972] 2 All ER 162, at 173–174.

⁵¹ Under Cap.32, s.228.

⁵² Cap.32, s.235(2) (members' voluntary winding-up) and s.244(2) (creditors' voluntary winding-up).

⁵³ Cap.32, s.235(2).

⁵⁴ Cap.32, s.244(2).

⁵⁵ Bolognesi's Case (1870) 5 Ch App 567.

⁵⁶ Re A Company (No 006341 of 1992); ex p B Ltd [1994] 1 BCLC 225, at 230.

⁵⁷ Re Mawcon Ltd [1969] 1 All ER 188; [1969] 1 WLR 78.

⁵⁸ Midland Counties District Bank Ltd v Atwood [1905] 1 Ch 357; see also Andrew R Keay, McPherson's Law of Company Liquidation (London: Sweet and Maxwell, 2001), para.7.33.

⁵⁹ (1872) 14 Eq 417.

⁶⁰ [1905] 1 Ch 357. See also McEvoy v Incat Tasmania Pty Ltd (2003) 130 FCR 503; 46 ACSR 392 at [7].

in control of the company is an officer of the court.⁶¹ In the later case of Fowler v Commercial Timber Co Ltd,⁶² Greer LJ of the English Court of Appeal suggested though, in obiter, that where the company is insolvent, the resolution for voluntary winding-up would, just as much as a compulsory winding-up, automatically put to an end the employment of the company's managers and other employees. It has been suggested that the resolution for winding-up can be treated as resulting in the employee's dismissal in such a situation, and possibly in other situations as well, where the resolution and the surrounding circumstances indicate that the company is unable or unwilling to carry out its obligations under the employment contract.⁶³

Where there is a dismissal of the director-cum-employee, whether the director is entitled to compensation for early termination depends on the proper construction of the terms of the employment contract. Where the contract between the director and the company is constituted by the articles only, then there is an implied term that the employment is conditional on the continued existence of the company and accordingly the director is not entitled to damages for the termination following winding-up. However, where, apart altogether from the articles, the company and the director have entered into an independent agreement, such a term will not usually be implied into the contract, and the director would be entitled to claim for breach of contract if there has been early termination (such as where the period of service was for a fixed term that has not yet expired).⁶⁴

Role and Assistance in the Liquidation

1.009 Where a members' voluntary winding-up is proposed, the directors must issue a certificate of solvency in accordance with Cap.32, s.233 within the five weeks immediately preceding the date of the passing of the resolution for winding-up or on that date but before the passing of the resolution. Where a creditors' winding-up is proposed, a meeting of creditors must be arranged for the day on which there is to be held the members' general meeting (at which the resolution for winding-up is to be proposed) or for the following day and the creditors' meeting must be properly advertised in accordance with Cap.32, s.241.⁶⁵ The directors must cause a statement of the affairs of the company together with a list of the creditors and their claims to be laid before the creditors' meeting, and one of the directors must be appointed by the board to preside at that meeting.⁶⁶

⁶¹ This position is criticised in Andrew R Keay, McPherson's Law of Company Liquidation, (London: Sweet and Maxwell, 2001), p 312; But cf Robert Pennington, Pennington's Corporate Insolvency Law, 2nd edn (London: Butterworths, 1997), p 102.

⁶² [1930] 2 KB 1.

⁶³ See Re T N Farrer Ltd [1937] Ch 352; Andrew R Keay, McPherson's Law of Company Liquidation (London: Sweet and Maxwell, 2001), pp.312–313; Keith J Bennetts, "Unfair Dismissal Proceedings in Company Liquidation and Receivership" (1990) 8 C&SLJ 158, p 162.

⁶⁴ Re N T Farrer Ltd [1937] Ch 352; see also Fowler v Commercial Timber Co Ltd [1930] 2 KB 1.

⁶⁵ Section 241 was amended by the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance (14 of 2016) such that the meeting of creditors is to be held not later than 14 days after the day on which the company's meeting passing the resolution for winding up is held: new Cap.32 s.241(1)(a) (not commenced at the time of writing).

⁶⁶ Cap.32, s.241.

A copy of the resolution for winding-up must be forwarded to the Registrar within 15 days after the passing of the resolution,⁶⁷ and notice of the resolution must be advertised in the Gazette within 14 days of the resolution.⁶⁸ If there is a breach of either of these requirements, the company and responsible officers are liable to a fine.⁶⁹

The liquidator would be entitled to take control of the company's assets in accordance with the liquidator's powers and functions⁷⁰ and accordingly the directors would need to deliver up to the liquidator the property and books of the company in their custody or control. The provisions in sections 271 and 272 of Cap.32 imposing criminal liability for failure to do so or for providing false information to the liquidator are applicable, being provisions which apply to every type of winding-up.⁷¹

Fiduciary Duties

The directors' usual fiduciary duties will continue to the extent that the directors continue to have management powers, but even where the directors no longer exercise any management powers, they might still be subject to certain fiduciary duties: see the discussion above of the directors' fiduciary duties in the context of compulsory winding-up. 1.010

Receivership

General

The appointment of a receiver does not result in the directors ceasing to hold office.⁷² The directors would still be required to comply with their statutory duties, for example their statutory obligation⁷³ to prepare financial statements,⁷⁴ as well as their fiduciary duties under the general law, although those duties will be qualified by reason and to the extent of the receiver's control of the company.⁷⁵ For example, a director could not be called to account for a failure to pursue an asset which was in the possession and control of the receiver with the same diligence as the director would, where the company is not in receivership.⁷⁶ As the directors remain in office, they can do what the receiver requires them to do as such holders of office.⁷⁷ 1.011

⁶⁷ Cap.622, s.622.

⁶⁸ Cap.32, s.229(1). Upon commencement of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance (14 of 2016), the time period is changed to 15 days.

⁶⁹ For contraventions of Cap.622, s.622, "responsible persons" (as defined in Cap.622, s.3) would be liable. For contraventions of Cap.32, s.229(1), "officers in default" (as defined in Cap.32, s.351(2)) would be liable.

⁷⁰ See Cap.32, ss.199 and 251.

⁷¹ See Cap.32, ss.271 and 272.

⁷² Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, at 819, [1978] 2 All ER 896; [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng); Li Lai Fun v Centro-Sound Ltd [1986] 1 HKC 541; McDonald v Golden Dynasty Enterprises Ltd [2008] 5 HKLRD 569; and see also Hawkesbury Development Co Ltd v Landmark Finance Pty Ltd (1969) 92 WN(NSW) 199, at 209; [1969] 2 NSWLR 782, at 790.

⁷³ See Cap.622, s.379.

⁷⁴ See Gomba Holdings UK Ltd v Homan [1986] 1 WLR 1301; [1986] 3 All ER 94, [1986] BCLC 331, [1986] BCC 99.

⁷⁵ See Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 ACSR 415, at 420; Ultraframe (UK) Ltd v Fielding [2005] EWHC 1638, at [1328].

⁷⁶ Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 ACSR 415, at 421.

⁷⁷ McDonald v Golden Dynasty Enterprises Ltd [2008] 5 HKLRD 569. In that case, the court made orders, on application by the receivers, for the directors to pass board resolutions for the execution of powers of attorney giving the receivers power to take action for and on behalf of the company to identify and preserve the assets of the

The appointment of the receiver would also have an impact on the powers of the directors, which are reduced in inverse proportion to the powers of the receiver.⁷⁸ To ascertain the scope of the directors' powers, it is accordingly necessary to first identify the extent of the powers of the receiver from the court order or charge instrument under which the receiver was appointed. Where the receiver was appointed by the court to collect, get in and receive the whole of the assets of the company, it has been held that the appointment of the receiver effectively deprives the directors of all powers of management.⁷⁹ Where the receiver was appointed privately pursuant to a charge, the receiver would have power as a receiver or as a receiver and manager over the assets that are subject to the charge, in accordance with the terms of the debenture or charge instrument, and such powers can be exercised by the receiver without the concurrence of the directors.⁸⁰ Thus, the directors will generally have no role to play in relation to the charged assets.

However, the scope of the receiver's powers must be seen in the context of the receiver's functions, as those powers are in a sense ancillary to the purpose of the appointment.⁸¹ It has been said that the function of the receiver is to realise the security for the benefit of the chargee⁸² and further that it is only within the scope of the assets which are covered by the charge and only insofar as it is necessary to apply those assets in the best possible way in the interests of the chargee that the receiver has a real function.⁸³ The directors, then, would not be permitted to take any action which would interfere with the proper discharge of the receiver's function to gather in and realise the charged assets for the chargee.⁸⁴ The corollary is that, where necessary, the directors would be able to exercise their ordinary powers provided that they do not prejudice the legitimate interests of the receiver and the chargee in the realisation of the assets.⁸⁵ Thus, for example, even though a receiver is appointed to take control over the whole of the company's undertaking, the directors would still be able to exercise their powers to inspect the company's documents provided that, in doing so, they do not impede the receiver in the proper exercise of his functions and they do not impinge prejudicially company and to investigate dispositions of the company's assets during the receivership period. The receivers considered that it was necessary for the directors to take such action as it would otherwise be difficult for them to act for and on behalf of the company in the PRC due to complexities in obtaining recognition of their authority as receivers under PRC law.

⁷⁸ See, e.g. Hawkesbury Development Co Ltd v Landmark Finance Pty Ltd (1969) 92 WN(NSW) 199, at 209, [1969] 2 NSWLR 782, at 790.

⁷⁹ McDonald v Golden Dynasty Enterprises Ltd [2008] 5 HKLRD 569; see also Australian Industry Development Corp v Co-operative Farmers and Graziers Direct Meat Supply Ltd (1978) 3 ACLR 543; Moss Steamship Company Ltd v Whinney [1912] AC 254, at 260.

⁸⁰ M Wheeler & Co Ltd v Warren [1928] Ch 840; Re Scottish Properties Pty Ltd (1977) 2 ACLR 264.

⁸¹ Emsworth v Emsworth [1978] HKLR 506, CA; Li Lai Fun v Centro-Sound Ltd [1986] 1 HKC 541.

⁸² Emsworth v Emsworth [1978] HKLR 506, CA; Li Lai Fun v Centro-Sound Ltd [1986] 1 HKC 541.

⁸³ Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, at 819; [1978] 2 All ER 896; [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng); Li Lai Fun v Centro-Sound Ltd [1986] 1 HKC 541.

⁸⁴ Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, at 819; [1978] 2 All ER 896; [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng); Li Lai Fun v Centro-Sound Ltd [1986] 1 HKC 541.

⁸⁵ Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 WAR 496; 7 ACSR 415; 10 ACLC 668; Re Gold Pleasure Industrial Co Ltd [2006] 4 HKC 398 at 403. See also Australian Securities and Investments Commission v Lanepoint Enterprises Pty Ltd (2006) 60 ACSR 217 (director entitled to oppose winding-up application on behalf of company).

upon the position of the debenture holder by threatening or imperilling the assets which are subject to the charge.⁸⁶

Although the management powers of directors might be reduced upon the appointment of a receiver, the directors are still entitled to their remuneration as allowed by the articles.⁸⁷

Dealing with Assets and Management of the Company's Business

The directors cannot deal with and dispose of the charged assets without the assent of the receiver⁸⁸ (unless the receiver has abandoned the asset⁸⁹). The receiver has a function only with respect to the assets covered by the charge though, and so the directors would have powers over the other assets of the company.⁹⁰ Where the charge is only in respect of certain specific assets, the directors would maintain their management powers over the company's business, subject only to the restriction that they no longer have control over the charged assets. However, where the charged assets comprise all of the company's undertaking, the directors' management powers would generally cease. Nonetheless, even in relation to the property covered by the charge, if the receiver chooses to ignore some asset or decides that it would be unprofitable from the point of view of the chargee to pursue it, the directors would still have the power and may indeed be under a duty to exploit it, if it has value, so as to bring it to a realisation which may be fruitful for others with an interest in the asset (i.e. the shareholders and other creditors of the company).⁹¹ Such power could only be exercised, though, if there is no prejudice or detriment to the chargee.⁹²

1.012

Commencing Proceedings on Behalf of the Company

The directors have the power to take action on behalf of the company to challenge the validity of the appointment of the receiver or the validity of the charge pursuant to which the receiver was appointed.⁹³ Also, the directors could commence proceedings in the name of the company against the receiver in relation to the receiver's misconduct.⁹⁴ It has been expressly stated that the basis of the directors' powers in the latter situation

1.013

⁸⁶ Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 WAR 496; 7 ACSR 415; 10 ACLC 668; Re Gold Pleasure Industrial Co Ltd [2006] 4 HKC 398 at 403; see also Gomba Holdings UK Ltd v Homan [1986] 1 WLR 1301; Oswal v Burrup Fertilisers Pty Ltd (2013) 295 ALR 708.

⁸⁷ Re South Western of Venezuela (Barquisimeto) Railway Company [1902] 1 Ch 701.

⁸⁸ Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, at 821, [1978] 2 All ER 896, [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng).

⁸⁹ Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 WAR 496, 7 ACSR 415, at 430; 10 ACLC 668.

⁹⁰ See Li Lai Fun v Centro-Sound Ltd [1986] 1 HKC 541; Emsworth Ltd v Howard William Burdett [1978] HKLR 506, at 508, CA; Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, at 819, [1978] 2 All ER 896, [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng); Hawkesbury Development Co Ltd v Landmark Finance Pty Ltd (1969) 92 WN(NSW) 199; Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 WAR 496, 7 ACSR 415, 10 ACLC 668.

⁹¹ See Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, at 820, [1978] 2 All ER 896, [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng).

⁹² Newhart Developments Ltd v Co-operative Commercial Bank Ltd [1978] QB 814, [1978] 2 All ER 896, [1978] 1 WLR 636, CA (Eng); Re Geneva Finance Ltd (1992) 7 WAR 496, 7 ACSR 415, 10 ACLC 668.

⁹³ Hawkesbury Development Co Ltd v Landmark Finance Pty Ltd (1969) 92 WN(NSW) 199; [1969] 2 NSWLR 782; Deangrove Pty Ltd (Receivers and Managers Appointed) v Commonwealth Bank of Australia (2001) 108 FCR 77; Ernst & Young v Tynski Pty Ltd (2003) 47 ACSR 433. It appears however that an indemnity for costs would be required from the directors if the receiver or chargee so requests; see also Ernst & Young v Tynski Pty Ltd (2003) 47 ACSR 433, at para.26.

⁹⁴ Watts v Midland Bank plc [1986] BCLC 15.

- (i) On the making of the order, the Liquidator shall forthwith cause notice thereof to be published in the gazette, but there shall be no advertisement of any subsequent proceedings unless the Court otherwise directs;³⁷⁷
- (ii) The title of every document in the proceedings subsequent to making of the order shall contain the words "summary case"; and³⁷⁸
- (iii) Notices of meetings other than first meetings shall not be sent to creditors whose debts do not exceed HK$1,000 or to contributories.³⁷⁹

As for the remuneration of a liquidator in a summary case, the courts had an unfettered discretion to determine the appropriate basis of remuneration. As a matter of practice, the time cost basis would be adopted as the basis of remuneration in a summary case.³⁸⁰

³⁷⁷ CWUR, r 27A(2).

³⁷⁸ CWUR, r 27A(3).

³⁷⁹ CWUR, r 27A(5).

³⁸⁰ Re Goldlory Restaurant Ltd [2006] 3 HKLRD 331.

CHAPTER 5

MEMBERS' VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP

Originally Authored by Mr. Johnson Tan and Mr. Rex So; Revised and Updated by Mr. David A. Southern

	PARA.
I. Introduction	5.001
II. Prerequisite for Members Voluntary Winding-Up Certificate of Solvency.....	5.002
III. Procedure	5.003
IV. If Company is Found to be Insolvent	5.005
V. Stay/Rescission of Members' Voluntary Winding-Up	5.006
VI. Consequences of a Members Voluntary Winding-Up.....	5.009
VII. The Liquidators: Duties, Powers, Vacancy in Office, Removal by the Court, Removal of Liquidator by the Company and Creditors, Resignation and Vacation of Office	5.010
VIII. Section 237 of Cap.32 Regarding Arrangements (Reconstructions)	5.017
IX. Creditors' Voluntary Winding-Up	5.018
X. Resolutions for, and Commencement of, Voluntary Winding-Up	5.019
XI. Consequences of Voluntary Winding-Up	5.024
XII. The Meeting of Creditors	5.025
XIII. Liquidators	5.027
XIV. Appointment of Committee of Inspection	5.029
XV. Fixing of Liquidators' Remuneration and Cessation of Directors' Powers	5.030
XVI. Powers and Duties of Liquidator in a Creditors' Voluntary Winding-Up.....	5.031
XVII. Distribution of Property of Company	5.032
XVIII. Vacancy in Office and Removal by the Court	5.033
XIX. Completion of Creditors' Voluntary	5.034
XX. Right to Apply for Compulsory	5.035
XXI. Special Procedure for Voluntary Liquidation under Section 228A of Cap.32	5.036

I. INTRODUCTION

The current Companies Ordinance (Cap.622) made wide-sweeping changes to Hong Kong companies law. However, these changes did not affect the winding-up process, those were intended for a later phase of company law reform. The relevant provisions affecting winding-up remained alive in the old Companies Ordinance (unrepealed) and this Ordinance has been re-titled the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32). In May 2016, the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 was enacted. The Ordinance has not yet come into operation. It will be operative on a day to be appointed by the Secretary for Financial Services and the Treasury by notice published in the Gazette. The main objective of the changes is to introduce more protection for creditors and simplify the winding-up process and reduce the costs of winding-up. New court-free procedures were introduced and the meeting of the committee of inspection was simplified. Also, where the liquidator commits a misfeasance or breach of duty, the parties can apply to the court for an order to enforce liabilities despite the liquidator having a court order releasing them from their post as liquidator once the winding-up has been completed. 5.001

This chapter covers the current law in operation in relation to member's voluntary winding-up and refers to the forthcoming changes due to be introduced in the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

Where a company is solvent and its members wish to put it into liquidation, they may do so by way of a members' voluntary winding-up.

As the company is solvent, the creditors will be paid in full and therefore they have no financial interest in the outcome of the liquidation. The members will therefore have control of the conduct of the winding-up of the company. Accordingly, the members will appoint the liquidator, determine his remuneration and exercise a general power of supervision over the performance of his duties.

II. PREREQUISITE FOR MEMBERS VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP CERTIFICATE OF SOLVENCY

Before a company can be placed in members' voluntary winding-up, the directors of the company (or if there are more than two, the majority of the directors) must issue a certificate of solvency.¹ The certificate of solvency is normally issued at a directors' meeting. However, it may be issued other than at a directors' meeting if, but only if, before such certificate is issued, the directors have passed a resolution authorising the certificate to be issued.² 5.002

In the case of a private company having only one director, the sole director may issue a certificate of solvency by recording the certificate and signing the record of it in the minute book of the company.³

¹ Section 233 of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32).

² Section 233(1A) of Cap.32.

³ Section 233(6) of Cap.32.

The certificate of solvency must be in the specified form.⁴ It must state that:

- (a) The directors have made full enquiry into the company's affairs; and
- (b) They have formed the opinion that the company will be able to pay its debts in full within such period not exceeding 12 months from the commencement of the winding-up as may be specified in the certificate of solvency.⁵

The certificate of solvency must also fulfill the following requirements to be effective:

- (1) It must be issued within five weeks immediately preceding the date of the passing of the resolution for winding-up or on that date but before the passing of the resolution; and
- (2) It must be filed with the Registrar of Companies not later than the date of the filing with the Registrar a copy of the resolution for voluntary winding-up⁶ (i.e. within 15 days of the making of the resolution for voluntary winding-up).⁷

The certificate of solvency must contain a statement of the company's assets and liabilities at the latest practicable date before the issuing of the certificate.⁸

Most members' voluntary liquidations are used to wind-up inactive or dormant companies which have minimal assets and liabilities. Provided the company is solvent, issuing a certificate of solvency under such circumstances should be a straightforward matter.

More care should be exercised for active companies with significant assets and liabilities. In such circumstances, the directors of the company may wish to seek advice from a reputable firm of accountants and request such firm to provide written advice on whether the company is indeed solvent and able to discharge all its liabilities within a period of 12 months or less. They may also wish to discuss the proposed certificate of solvency with the proposed liquidator. In considering whether a certificate of insolvency may be issued, the directors should also bear in mind future or contingent liabilities under contracts, guarantees and other instruments and circumstances.

The proper issuance and filing of the certificate of solvency will result in the winding-up being a members' voluntary winding-up. Otherwise it will be a creditors' voluntary winding-up.⁹

In the matter Re Pacific Gain Technologies Ltd [2015] HKEC 1643, Harris J at para.3 stated that:

"If the company files the certificate of solvency out of time, after the passing of a special resolution to put the company to liquidation, the company will be put automatically into creditors' voluntary winding-up. A court order will [then] be required to stay the creditors' voluntary winding-up and an order that the members' voluntary winding-up procedure can be recommenced."

⁴ See Form NW1 of the Companies Registry Specified Forms.

⁵ Section 233(1) of Cap.32.

⁶ Section 233(2)(a) of Cap.32.

⁷ Section 622 of the Companies Ordinance (Cap.622).

⁸ Section 233(2)(b) of Cap.32.

⁹ Section 233(4) of Cap.32.

A director who signs a certificate of solvency without reasonable grounds for the opinion that the company will be able to pay its debts in full within the period specified in the certificate may be convicted and be liable to a fine¹⁰ and imprisonment for six months.¹¹

If the company is unable to pay or provide for its debts in full within the period of five weeks after the issuing of the certificate, the directors are presumed not to have had reasonable grounds for their belief in the solvency of the company until the contrary is shown.¹²

III. PROCEDURE

Passing of Special Resolution

A members' voluntary winding-up is deemed to commence at the time of passing by the members of the company of a resolution placing the company into voluntary liquidation.¹³

5.003

Generally, a special resolution is required.¹⁴ However, in rare circumstances where there is a period fixed for the duration of the company by the articles and this has expired or where the event on the occurrence of which the memorandum of articles provide that the company is to be dissolved has happened, an ordinary resolution will suffice.¹⁵

For a special resolution, the following requirements must be satisfied:¹⁶

- (a) Not less than 14 clear days notice¹⁷ must be given of the meeting at which a special resolution is proposed. This requirement may be waived by 95% in nominal value of those shareholders having the right to attend and vote;
- (b) Notice of the meeting must include the text of the resolution and specify the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution;¹⁸
- (c) 75% of those attending and voting must vote in favour of the special resolution;

¹⁰ The maximum punishment is a fine at level 5 (currently HK$50,000).

¹¹ Section 351 and Twelfth Schedule of Cap.32.

¹² Section 233(3) of Cap.32.

¹³ Section 230 of Cap.32.

¹⁴ Section 228(1)(b) of Cap.32.

¹⁵ Section 228(1)(a) of Cap.32.

¹⁶ See also Sections 564 of the Cap.622.

¹⁷ See Securities and Futures Commission v Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Ltd [1992] 1 HKLR 135, where it was held that the words "not less than 21 days' notice" meant at least 21 clear days excluding the day of giving the notice, the day of deemed receipt and the day of the meeting itself. Note also that under Section 571(1)(b) of Cap.622, the minimum notice period for all general meetings (regardless whether it is an ordinary resolution or a special resolution) has now been reduced from 21 days to 14 clear days (for a limited liability company) and 7 clear days (for unlimited liability company), subject to any longer period of notice required by the company's articles. See also s.571(2) of Cap.622.

¹⁸ Sections 564(4)(a) and 564(4)(b) of the Cap.622. See also Re Moorgate Mercantile Holdings Ltd [1980] 1 All ER 40, [1980] 1 WLR 227, where it was held that the substance between the notice and the terms of the resolution passed must be identical, though corrections of clerical or grammatical errors are allowed, applied in Re Hong Kong Pharmaceutical Holdings Ltd [2006] HKCU 1931 (decision under the predecessor Companies Ordinance (CO) before the new Cap.622 came into force on 3rd March 2014); see also Re Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigator Co [2006] All ER (D) 36.

- (d) Voting can occur in person or by proxy; and
- (e) Voting is initially on a show of hands although a poll vote may be demanded.¹⁹

A chairman's declaration that the resolution is carried shall, unless a poll is demanded, be conclusive evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution.²⁰

The length of notice may be abridged if it is so agreed by a majority of members having the right to attend and vote at the meeting, being a majority together representing at least 95% of the total voting rights at the meeting of all the members.²¹

Under section 548 of the Companies Ordinance (Cap.622),²² anything that may be done by a resolution passed at a general meeting or a class meeting may be done, without a meeting and without any previous notice being required, by a written resolution of the members or of that class of members of the company (as the case may be).

Under the Companies Ordinance (Cap.622), there are new provisions for proposing, passing and circulating written resolutions.²³

The date of the resolution should be the date on which the last member or representative signs the written resolution.²⁴

A copy of the special resolution must be filed with the Registrar of Companies within 15 days after the passing thereof.²⁵ If the company fails to register the special resolution within 15 days, the company and every responsible person (which includes a liquidator or provisional liquidator) commits an offence²⁶ and shall be liable to a fine and, for a continued default, to a daily default fine.²⁷

¹⁹ There are some new provisions under Cap.622 with regard to the right to demand a poll. For example, the threshold for members is reduced from 10% to 5% of total voting rights and the threshold based on one-tenth of the paid up capital is removed (s.591 of Cap.622). There are also new provisions to clarify the rights and obligations of proxies (ss.596-605 of Cap.622).

²⁰ Section 590 of Cap.622; see also Re Hadleigh Castle Gold Mines [1900] 2 Ch 419.

²¹ Section 571(3)(b) of the Cap.622.

²² This section restates sections 116B(1), 116B(3) to 116B(6), and 116B(11) of the predecessor CO.

²³ For example, Cap.622 provides that: (a) either the directors or a member of a company may propose a written resolution (s.549 of Cap.622); (b) member(s) of the company who proposed the written resolution may require the company to circulate with the resolution a statement of not more than 1,000 words on the subject matter of the resolution (s.551(2) of the Cap.622); (c) the company must circulate the written resolution if it was proposed by the directors or by members of a company representing not less than 5% or a lower percentage specified for that purpose in the company's articles (ss.550 & 552(2) of Cap.622); (d) the proposed written resolution may be circulated, and member(s) may signify their agreement to it, by electronic means (ss.553(2)(a) & 556(3)(a) of Cap.622); (e) the company must circulate the resolution to every member within 21 days after it has received the proposed written resolution, it must also send the proposed written resolution to its auditor on or before the circulation date to members (ss.553 & 555 of Cap.622); (f) the period for agreeing to the proposed written resolution is 28 days or such period as specified in the company's articles (s.558 of Cap.622); and (g) if a resolution is passed as a written resolution, the company must send a notice of that fact to every member and the auditor of the company within 15 days (s.559 of Cap.622).

²⁴ Sections 548(4) and 556 of Cap.622.

²⁵ Sections 622(1) and 622(2) of Cap.622.

²⁶ Sections 622(7) and 622(9) of the Cap.622. The Companies Ordinance (Cap.622) introduced a new formulation of "responsible person" to replace "Officer who is in default" in the predecessor CO. "Responsible person" includes an officer or a shadow director of a company as well as an officer or a shadow director of a corporate officer of the company; see s.3 of Cap.622. The threshold for committing an offence under Cap.622 has been lowered by removing the element of "knowingly and willfully" from the provision to cover, inter alia, reckless acts or omissions.

²⁷ Section 622(7) of Cap.622. The maximum punishment is a fine at level 3 (currently HK$10,000) and a daily default fine of HK$300.

Within 14 days²⁸ after the passing of the special resolution for voluntary winding-up, the company must give notice of the passing of the resolution by advertisement in the Gazette. Otherwise, the company and its officers who are in default²⁹ will become liable to a fine and, for a continued default, to a daily default fine.³⁰

Appointment of Liquidator

In addition to passing a special resolution, the company will, in practice, pass one or more of the following resolutions³¹ as appropriate:

5.004

- (a) an ordinary resolution to appoint a liquidator;³²
- (b) an ordinary resolution to fix the remuneration of the liquidator;³³
- (c) a special resolution to authorise the liquidator to exercise particular powers set out in s.199³⁴ of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32) including the following:
 - (i) to pay any class of creditors in full;
 - (ii) to make compromises or arrangements with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors, or having or alleging themselves to have any claim against the company; and
 - (iii) to compromise claims by the company against debtors, potential debtors, and contributories;³⁵

²⁸ Section 229(1) of Cap.32. This is due to be changed to 15 days when the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 comes into operation. Balancing the need for the notice to be given promptly and the practical difficulty faced by a company under the present requirement for publication in the Gazette was proposed in the Improvement of Corporate Insolvency Law Legislative Proposals Consultation Document published in April 2013 by the Financial Services and the Treasury Bureau (the "Consultation Document") to extend the time limit from 14 days to 15 days. Presumably, this is also to align the notice period with the period within which a copy of the special resolution for voluntary winding-up must be filed with the Registrar of Companies under sections 622(1) and 622(2) of Cap.622.

²⁹ The definition of an "Officer who is in default" means any officer or shadow director of the company who knowingly and willfully authorises or permits the default, refusal or contravention. See s.351(2) of Cap.32. For the purposes of section 229(1) of Cap.32, the liquidator of the company shall be deemed to be an officer of the company (s.229(2) of Cap.32). The new formulation of "Responsible person" was introduced in Cap.622 to replace "Officer who is in default" as listed in the predecessor CO referred to in n 26 does not appear to apply to the term "Officer who is in default" in Cap.32. It is submitted that the said formulation should also apply to Cap.32 for consistency.

³⁰ Section 229(2) of Cap.32. The maximum punishment is fine at level 3 (currently HK$10,000) and a daily default fine of HK$300; see s.351(1A) and the Twelfth Schedule of Cap.32.

³¹ See Smart and Booth (Eds), Hong Kong Corporate Insolvency Manual (2002), at p.16.

³² Section 235(1) of Cap.32.

³³ Section 235(1) of Cap.32.

³⁴ When the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 is in force, the liquidator will only be able to exercise limited powers without a court sanction. A special resolution to authorise the liquidator to exercise particular powers set out in s.199 and Parts 1-2 in Schedule 25 of the will require sanction of the court, and Part 3 will not require the sanction of the court (except item 8).

³⁵ These powers may be exercised if sanction is obtained in a members' voluntary winding-up by special resolution of the company in a general meeting. See s.251(1)(a) of Cap.32.

- (d) an ordinary resolution to dispense with the requirement to audit the liquidators' statement of receipt and payment; and³⁶
- (e) an ordinary/special resolution to authorize the liquidator to divide amongst the members of the company in specie or in kind the whole or any part of the assets of the company.³⁷

The appointment of the liquidator is made,³⁸ in practice, at the same meeting at which the resolution to wind-up the company voluntarily is passed.³⁹

The Liquidator must file notice of his appointment with the Registrar of Companies and also publish the same in the Gazette within 21 days of his appointment.⁴⁰ Any person in default will be liable to a fine and, for continued default, to a daily fine.⁴¹

In the event that the members of the company are unable to agree on the identity of the liquidator, the court may appoint a liquidator.⁴²

IV. IF COMPANY IS FOUND TO BE INSOLVENT

5.005

If, at any time, the liquidator is of the opinion that the company will not be able to pay its debts in full within the period specified in the certificate of solvency, he shall immediately summon a meeting of the creditors.⁴³ If the liquidator fails to do so, he shall be liable to a fine.⁴⁴

At this meeting convened by the liquidator, the liquidator shall lay before the creditors a statement of the assets and liabilities of the company.⁴⁵ The creditors may decide either to proceed as a creditors' voluntary winding-up or one or more of them may petition for the compulsory winding-up of the company. The creditors may appoint another liquidator and fix the remuneration of the liquidator so appointed. In addition, the creditors may also appoint a committee of inspection.⁴⁶

³⁶ Section 255A of Cap.32.

³⁷ Special resolution is required by Cap.622, Schedule 1, Article 105 (for public companies) and Schedule 2, Article 84 (for private companies) of the model articles made by the Financial Secretary under section 78(1) of Cap.622.

³⁸ An ordinary resolution would suffice. Section 235(1) of Cap.32.

³⁹ Section 235(1) of Cap.32.

⁴⁰ Section 253(1) of Cap.32. When the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 is in force, the notice period will be shortened to 15 days to align with: (i) the requirement of section 117(1) of the predecessor CO (now repealed) (c/f section 622(2) of the new Cap.622); and (ii) the changes to section 229 of Cap.32 in the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

⁴¹ The maximum punishment is a level 3 fine and a daily default fine of HK$300: see s.351(1A) & Twelfth Schedule of Cap.32.

⁴² Section 252 of Cap.32.

⁴³ (n 44), below.

⁴⁴ Section 237A(3) of Cap.32.

⁴⁵ Section 237A(1) of Cap.32. The Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 substitutes this section for new section which specifies that the liquidator must: (a) summon a meeting of the creditors of the company for a date not later than 28 days after the day on which the liquidator formed that opinion, (b) send notices of the meeting to the creditors at least 7 days before the date on which the meeting is to be held and (c) advertise the notice of the meeting once in the Gazette, once in an English language newspaper and a Chinese language newspaper circulating Hong Kong.

⁴⁶ Section 237A(2) of Cap.32.

V. STAY/RESCISSION OF MEMBERS' VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP

Stay of the Winding-Up Proceedings

In a members' voluntary winding-up, the court may stay the winding-up proceedings either altogether or for a limited period of time, and on such terms and conditions as the court thinks fit, upon the application of the liquidator, the Official Receiver or any creditor or contributory.⁴⁷ The company itself has no right to apply for a stay.⁴⁸

The court has a discretion whether to grant a stay of the winding-up proceedings. The burden is on the applicant to make out a sufficient case for a stay that carries conviction⁴⁹ so that it is not merely sufficient for the applicant to establish that a stay is reasonable in the circumstances.⁵⁰ The court has to be satisfied that it is right to stay the winding-up proceedings, and, if there be matters as to which the court has doubts, it should not order a stay.⁵¹ The factors that a court would take into account in exercising such discretion will include:⁵²

- (i) whether there are sufficient assets to pay the creditors and the expenses of the liquidation;
- (ii) whether the stay is in the interest of the creditors, the liquidator and the members and whether they consent to the stay;
- (iii) whether there is a genuine commercial reason for the stay; and
- (iv) whether the stay is conducive or detrimental to commercial morality and the public at large including whether there is any irregularity in the affairs of the company.

Once a permanent stay of the winding-up procedure is granted, the liquidation is for all practical purposes at an end. The liquidator may be discharged, control of the company reverts to the directors and the company may resume its business.⁵³

Rescission of Members' Voluntary Winding-Up

It has been held in Hong Kong that the members of a company may, by special resolution, rescind the earlier special resolution placing the company in Members' Voluntary Liquidation.⁵⁴

The above decision has been the subject of criticism,⁵⁵ as being contrary to dicta of Megarry J in *Re Calgary and Edmonton Land Co Ltd*⁵⁶ to the effect that a voluntary ⁴⁷ Sections 209 and 255 of Cap.32.

⁴⁸ See Re King Pacific International Holdings Ltd [2002] 3 HKLRD 474.

⁴⁹ Re Calgary and Edmonton Land Co Ltd (in liquidation) [1975] 1 WLR 355, at 358-359 cited in Re Outboard Marine Corp Asia Ltd [2003] 1 HKLRD 585, at 588, CFI.

⁵⁰ Re Outboard Marine Corp.

⁵¹ Re Lowston Ltd [1991] BCLC 570.

⁵² See Re Outboard Marine Corp; see also Re Calgary and Edmonton Land.

⁵³ Palmer's Company Law, para.15.164.

⁵⁴ See Re Keon Trading Co Ltd (unrep., HCMP 3674 of 1997, 6 Feb 1998).

⁵⁵ See Smart and Booth, op cit, at pp.11 and 12.

⁵⁶ Ibid.

liquidation may not be terminated by the members of the company passing a resolution to that effect. It has also been argued, inter alia, that if such rescission were to be allowed, there would be no necessity to apply to court to permanently stay a members' voluntary winding-up.⁵⁷

Conversion from Voluntary Winding-Up to Compulsory Winding-Up

5.008 A members' voluntary winding-up of a company shall not bar the right of any creditor or contributory to apply to have the company wound up by the court, but in the case of an application by a contributory, the court must be satisfied that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding-up.⁵⁸

In *Re Goldcone Properties Ltd (in creditors' voluntary winding-up)*⁵⁹ Ribeiro J laid down, inter alia, the following principles relevant to determining whether the court should order a compulsory winding-up where the company is already in voluntary liquidation:

- (i) The court has unfettered discretion to be exercised judicially taking into account all material factors, including whether the class remedy of liquidation would be better satisfied by the continuation of the voluntary liquidation or better served by being superseded by a compulsory liquidation;
- (ii) The court should consider whether the majority of the creditors in value supported the petition. If so, unless there are contrary reasons, the court would be inclined towards making a compulsory order;
- (iii) In weighing the views of creditors a qualitative as opposed to a purely quantitative approach should be used. In this regard, it would be relevant if the creditors opposing the petition had a personal interest in the opposition;
- (iv) Where the petitioner required the issues concerning the company's liquidation to be further investigated, the question was whether there was prima facie evidence that the matters which the petitioner required investigation were questions which rational creditors could think of that required investigation and further action and the outcome of which might be financially favorable to them; and
- (v) Whether the liquidators are acting and seen to be acting independently and impartially particularly where possible wrongdoing by the directors had to be investigated and possibly pursued in litigation.

In considering whether it should exercise its discretion to grant an order that the company be wound up by the court in circumstances where the company is already being wound up voluntarily, the court should consider whether there are transactions which require investigation or whether the circumstances call for the exercise of powers which the court has in a compulsory winding-up.

⁵⁷ Ibid.

⁵⁸ Section 257 of Cap.32.

⁵⁹ [2000] 2 HKLRD 16. This was applied in Re Fullbright Co Ltd [2009] 2 HKLRD 584.

The Official Receiver may also petition for a compulsory winding-up where a company is being wound up voluntarily. If the court is to make an order for compulsory winding-up, it must be satisfied that the voluntary winding-up cannot be continued with due regard to the interests of the creditors and contributories.⁶⁰

Where a voluntary winding-up is converted to a compulsory winding-up, the winding-up of the company shall be deemed to have commenced at the time of the passing of the resolution and all proceedings taken in the voluntary winding-up are deemed to have been validly taken unless the court, on proof of fraud or mistake, thinks fit otherwise to direct.⁶¹

VI. CONSEQUENCES OF A MEMBERS VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP

Upon the commencement of the winding-up, the company shall cease to carry on its business except so far as may be required for the beneficial winding-up thereof.⁶² 5.009

On the appointment of a liquidator, all the powers of the directors of the company shall cease except so far as sanctioned by the company in general meeting or by the liquidator.⁶³ It appears, however, that directors and employees are not automatically dismissed upon the voluntary winding-up.⁶⁴

VII. THE LIQUIDATORS: DUTIES, POWERS, VACANCY IN OFFICE, REMOVAL BY THE COURT, REMOVAL OF LIQUIDATOR BY THE COMPANY AND CREDITORS, RESIGNATION AND VACATION OF OFFICE

Duties

In the event of the members' voluntary winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidator must summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding-up, and of each succeeding year, or the first convenient date within three months from the end of the year or such longer period as the Official Receiver may allow. The liquidator must lay before the meeting an account of his acts and dealings and of the conduct of the winding-up during the preceding year.⁶⁵ Failure to comply with this provision results in a summary conviction or a fine.⁶⁶ The duty of the liquidator to call a general meeting is to ensure that he accounts to the members of the company in relation to the liquidation. 5.010

⁶⁰ Section 179(2) of Cap.32.

⁶¹ Section 184(1) of Cap.32.

⁶² Section 231 of Cap.32.

⁶³ Section 235(2) of Cap.32.

⁶⁴ See Fowler v Commercial Timber Co Ltd [1930] 2 KB 1.

⁶⁵ Section 238(1) of Cap.32.

⁶⁶ Section 238(2) of Cap.32. The maximum punishment is a fine at level 3. See s.351(1A) and Twelfth Schedule of Cap.32.

The liquidator must pay the debts of the company and must adjust the rights of contributories amongst themselves.⁶⁷

Although there is no formal requirement to do so, the liquidator will often advertise for creditors to provide the liquidator with full particulars of their debts and claims.

The liquidator or any contributory or creditor may apply to the court to determine any question in the winding-up of a company, or to exercise all or any powers which the court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the court as respects the enforcing of calls, or any other matter.⁶⁸ If the court is satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial, it may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit and may make such other order on application as it thinks just.⁶⁹ Generally, the application will be made by the liquidator. For example, the liquidator may rely on this power to apply for an order for public examination under s.222 of Cap.32⁷⁰ (which would not otherwise have been available to a liquidator in a voluntary winding-up)

The liquidator may also apply for other orders and directions, for example, those relating to the sale of assets or other operational matters of the company.

In the case of every voluntary winding-up, as soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall prepare an account of the winding-up showing how it has been conducted and how the company's property has been disposed of. He must then convene a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account and giving an explanation of the same.⁷¹ The meeting must be called by advertisement in the Gazette at least one month before holding it.⁷²

Within one week after the general meeting, the liquidator must send a copy of the account and a return as to the holding of the meeting and its date to the Registrar of Companies. If a copy is not sent or return is not made, he is liable on summary conviction to a fine and, for continued default, to a daily default fine.⁷³

However, if a quorum was not present at the meeting, the return should state that a meeting was duly summoned and that no quorum was present at the meeting.⁷⁴

Powers

5.011 In the case of a members' voluntary winding-up, the liquidator may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company, exercise any of the powers conferred on a liquidator in a winding-up by the court of:

⁶⁷ Section 251(2) of Cap.32.

⁶⁸ Section 255(1) of Cap.32.

⁶⁹ Section 255(2) of Cap.32.

⁷⁰ The Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 has: (a) removed the existing requirement under section 222 of the predecessor CO (now under the retitled Cap.32) that the Official Receiver or the liquidator must have alleged in his "further report" that fraud has been committed in order to initiate the public examination procedure; and (b) added further categories of persons that may be subject to public examination under Sections 286A to 286E.

⁷¹ Section 239(1) of Cap.32.

⁷² Section 239(2) of Cap.32.

⁷³ Section 239(3) of Cap.32. The maximum penalty is a level 3 fine and a daily default fine of HK$300. See section 351(1A) and Twelfth Schedule of Cap.32.

⁷⁴ Section 239(3) of Cap.32.

- (i) paying any classes of creditors in full;
- (ii) making compromises or arrangements with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or having or alleging themselves to have any claim against the company; and
- (iii) compromising calls, liabilities to calls, debts, liabilities and claims against contributories or alleged contributories or other debtors.⁷⁵

The liquidator may, without sanction, exercise any of the other powers given by Cap.32 to the liquidator in a winding-up by the court including the following:

- (i) bringing or defending an action or other legal proceeding in the name of the company;
- (ii) carrying on the company's business so far as may be necessary for its beneficial winding-up; and
- (iii) selling of the company's property.⁷⁶

The liquidator may also exercise the court's powers of settling a list of contributories⁷⁷ and of making calls.⁷⁸

Where several liquidators are appointed, the powers of the liquidators may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination, by not less than two of their number.⁷⁹

The liquidator may summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining its sanction by special resolution, or for any other purpose he may think fit.⁸⁰

Vacancy in Office

If in a members' voluntary winding-up, a vacancy arises by death, resignation, or otherwise in the office of the liquidator appointed by the company, the company in a general meeting may fill the vacancy, subject to any arrangement with creditors.⁸¹ A general meeting, for this purpose, may be convened by any contributory or, if there were more than one liquidator, by the remaining liquidators.⁸²

The meeting must be held in the manner provided by either: (i) Cap.32; (ii) Cap.622; (iii) the articles themselves; or (iv) in such manner as may be determined by the court on application by any contributory or by the remaining liquidators.⁸³

Removal by the Court

The court may, on cause shown, remove a liquidator and appoint another.⁸⁴

⁷⁵ Sections 199(1) and 251(1)(a) of Cap.32.

⁷⁶ Sections 199(1) and 251(1)(b) of Cap.32.

⁷⁷ Section 251(1)(c) of Cap.32.

⁷⁸ Section 251(1)(d) of Cap.32.

⁷⁹ Section 251(3) of Cap.32.

⁸⁰ Section 251(1)(e) of Cap.32.

⁸¹ Section 236(1) of Cap.32.

⁸² Section 236(2) of Cap.32.

⁸³ Section 236(3) of Cap.32.

⁸⁴ Section 252(2) of Cap.32.

5.012

5.013

The section does not specify who is entitled to make the application to court to remove a liquidator. It appears that the court may allow any applicant which it considers proper but this "does not mean that he has an interest in making the application or may be affected by its outcome. It means he has a legitimate interest in the relief sought"⁸⁵ so that in Deloitte & Touche v Johnson,⁸⁶ the House of Lords held that a debtor of a company in insolvent liquidation could not apply to court for removal of the liquidator on grounds of conflict of interest.

In deciding whether there is sufficient cause to remove a liquidator, the burden is on the applicant to show cause why the liquidator should be removed.⁸⁷ The court has wide discretion in the matter and it may be appropriate to remove a liquidator even though nothing can be said against him either personally or in his conduct of the liquidation.⁸⁸ In Re Keypak Homecare Ltd,⁸⁹ the court removed a liquidator on the basis that he had failed to display sufficient vigour in carrying out his duties as liquidator and had displayed a relaxed and complacent attitude to the possibility of wrongdoing on the part of the directors.

Removal of Liquidator by the Company and Creditors

- 5.014 In a members' voluntary winding-up, the company may by special resolution remove a liquidator from office at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose such resolution has been duly given to creditors and the liquidator.⁹⁰ Such meeting may be convened by any contributory.⁹¹ Any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court for an order that the liquidator shall not be so removed.⁹²

Resignation

- 5.015 There are no limits to the circumstances in which a liquidator in a members' voluntary winding-up may resign from office.⁹³ However, it has been suggested that consistent with an accountant's general duty to act professionally and with integrity, resignations would only be acceptable where there is another joint liquidator able to continue to ⁸⁵ See Deloitte & Touche AG v Johnson [2000] 1 BCLC 485, at p.491.

⁸⁶ Ibid.

⁸⁷ Re Keypak Homecare Ltd [1987] BCLC 409, at p.415 cited in M & T International Ltd v Winspower Ltd (in liquidation) HCMP621/2006.

⁸⁸ Re Keypak Homecare Ltd [1987] BCLC 409 at p.417.

⁸⁹ Ibid.

⁹⁰ Section 235A(1) of Cap.32.

⁹¹ Section 235A(3) of Cap.32.

⁹² Section 235A(2) of Cap.32. Sections 196(1) and 252(2) of the Cap.32 also provide for the court's power to remove a liquidator in a court winding-up and a voluntary winding-up respectively. Besides removal by the court, Section 235A of this Cap.32 further provides that in a members' voluntary winding-up, the company may by special resolution remove the liquidator from office at a general meeting. However, there is no express provision in the predecessor CO (now Cap.32 for the removal of liquidator by creditors under a creditors' voluntary winding-up.

Note that Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 will introduce a new provision under Section 224A so that a liquidator in a creditors' voluntary winding-up (except a liquidator appointed by the court or by the direction of the court) may be removed by a creditors' meeting specially convened for such purpose, with detailed requirements, procedures and formalities to be stipulated in the Companies (Winding-Up) Rules (Cap.32H) ("CWUR"). Moreover, under section 205, liquidators in a creditors' voluntary winding-up appointed by the court or by direction of the court can only be removed by the court, and that any vacancy in that office can only be filled by sanction of the court under Section 245.

⁹³ Cf the position under s.171(5) of the English Insolvency Act 1986 and r 4.108(4) of the Insolvency Rules 1986.

discharge his duties or if there is a conflict of interests or change in personal circumstances which would make it impracticable to further discharge his duties as a liquidator.⁹⁴ Unlike winding-up by the court,⁹⁵ there is currently no procedure laid down in statute for resignation of a liquidator in a voluntary winding-up. However, this is set to change after the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 comes into force. The reforms will reflect the Consultation Document on Legislative Proposals for the Improvement of Corporate Insolvency Law published in April 2013 by the Financial Services and the Treasury Bureau (the "Consultation Document") such that a procedure for resignation of a liquidator appointed in a voluntary winding-up is enacted. For instance, it was proposed that a liquidator in a members' voluntary winding-up must call a meeting of the company for the purpose of receiving his resignation, and he should file a notice of resignation with the Registrar of Companies.⁹⁶

Vacation of Office

A liquidator must vacate his office if a Receiving Order in bankruptcy is made against the liquidator and he shall be deemed to be removed for the purpose of the application of either: (i) Cap.32; (ii) Cap.622; or (iii) the Companies (Winding-Up) Rules ("CWUR") (Cap.32H).⁹⁷

5.016

VIII. SECTION 237 OF CAP.32 REGARDING ARRANGEMENTS (RECONSTRUCTIONS)

The liquidator of a company in or proposed to be in voluntary winding-up may, with the requisite sanction, transfer or sell the whole or part of its business or property to another company. The liquidator may accept shares, policies or "other like interests" in the transferee company, in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, for distribution amongst the members of the transferor company.⁹⁸

5.017

The liquidator may also, with requisite sanction, enter into an arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or "other like interests", or in addition to them, participate in profits of or receive any other benefit from the transferee company.⁹⁹

The sanction required is a special resolution which may be passed before or concurrently with a resolution for voluntary winding-up or for appointing liquidators. However, if an order is made within a year for the winding-up of the company by the court, the special resolution is not valid unless sanctioned by the court.¹⁰⁰

⁹⁴ Smart and Booth, op cit, at p.17.

⁹⁵ Section 196(1) of the Cap.32 and Rule 154 of the CWUR.

⁹⁶ See section 154 of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016.

⁹⁷ Rule 155 of CWUR (Cap.32H). Other forms of vacation of office are due to be introduced by The Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 under section 262B (d) and (e). The liquidator is found by the court under the Mental Health Ordinance (Cap.136) to be incapable, by reason of mental incapacity, of managing and administering his property and affairs or he is for the time being subject to a guardianship order.

⁹⁸ Section 237(1) of Cap.32.

⁹⁹ Section 237(1) of Cap.32.

¹⁰⁰ Sections 237(1) and 237(5) of Cap.32.

The special resolution may confer either a general authority on the liquidator or a particular authority in respect of any particular arrangement.¹⁰¹

Any arrangement or sale in pursuance of s.237 of Cap.32 is binding on the members of the transferor company.¹⁰²

Where any member of the transferor company, whether he voted in favour of the special resolution or not, expresses his dissent from it in writing addressed to the liquidator, and left at the registered office within seven days after the passing of the resolution, he may require the liquidator to either abstain from carrying the resolution into effect, or to purchase the member's interest at a price to be determined by agreement or, failing which by arbitration.¹⁰³

For the purposes of arbitration, the provisions of the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act 1845 (UK) with respect to settlement of dispute by arbitration are incorporated into this Cap.32.¹⁰⁴

If the liquidator chooses to purchase the member's interest, the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.¹⁰⁵

IX. CREDITORS' VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP

Introduction

5.018 Part V of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32) deals with the subject of voluntary winding-up, and consists of ss.228 to 257. This discussion will address the subject of creditors' voluntary winding-up.

By the operation of s.233(4) of Cap.32, a winding-up where a certificate of solvency is issued and delivered is referred to as a "members' voluntary winding-up" and a winding-up where such a certificate has not been issued and delivered is referred to as a "creditors' voluntary winding-up". Accordingly, a creditors' voluntary winding-up is any voluntary winding-up where no certificate of solvency has been issued (i.e., generally it is where an insolvent - rather than a solvent - company is being wound up, but voluntarily rather than by the court).

The provisions of sections 228 to 233 and 249 to 257 of Cap.32 apply to both a members' and a creditors' voluntary winding-up, whilst sections 240 to 248 of Cap.32 apply only to a creditors' voluntary winding-up (and as such, sections 234 to 239A apply only to a members' voluntary winding-up, save where they are specifically applied to a creditors' voluntary winding-up). Accordingly, we concentrate on these provisions in this Part, together with the relevant rules of the Companies (Winding-Up) Rules.¹⁰⁶

¹⁰¹ Section 237(1) of Cap.32.

¹⁰² Section 237(2) of Cap.32.

¹⁰³ Section 237(3) of Cap.32.

¹⁰⁴ See s.234 of the Companies Act 1929 (UK) (for equivalent, see s.111 of Insolvency Act 1986) on which s.237 of Cap.32 is based.

¹⁰⁵ Section 237(4) of Cap.32.

¹⁰⁶ It should be noted, however, that many other parts of Cap.32 may be relevant to a creditors' voluntary winding-up. The provisions of the Cap.32 with respect to winding-up apply, except where otherwise stated, to the winding-up of a company in any mode. See s.169(2) of Cap.32. Further, the provisions of sections 263-287, 289-290, and

X. RESOLUTIONS FOR, AND COMMENCEMENT OF, VOLUNTARY WINDING-UP

General

The circumstances in which a company may be wound up voluntarily are set out in s.228 of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32). 5.019

Section 228(1) of Cap.32 sets out four specific circumstances in which a company may be wound up voluntarily. Generally, a special resolution of the company is required in order to wind-up a company voluntarily (under either paragraphs (b) or (c) of subsection (1)). However, in two unusual circumstances an ordinary resolution under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) will suffice - those are: (i) where the period fixed for the duration of the company by its articles expires; and (ii) where the event, on the occurrence of which the memorandum or articles provide that the company be dissolved, occurs.

Further, paragraph (d) provides a special procedure for winding-up where the directors of the company have formed the opinion that the company cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and it is not reasonably practicable to commence the winding-up under another section of Cap.32. In those circumstances the winding-up might be commenced without any resolution of the company. This special procedure (under s.228A of Cap.32) is dealt with later in this chapter.

Creditors' voluntary liquidations are usually commenced under s.228(1)(c) of Cap.32¹⁰⁷ by the members passing a special resolution to the effect that the company cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is, therefore, advisable to wind-up the company.¹⁰⁸

Set out later in this chapter are the procedures involved in placing a company in creditors' voluntary winding-up under s.228(1)(c) of Cap.32.

Directors' Meeting

A meeting of the members of the company must be called so that the special resolution might be passed under s.228(1)(c) of Cap.32 to place the company into liquidation. Accordingly, the first step is for a meeting of the board of directors to be called, and for the directors to meet to: 5.020

- (i) authorise the convening of the meetings of the members and of the creditors and the resolutions to be put to the meetings on behalf of the board;

293-296 of Cap.32 are specifically stated to be applicable to every mode of winding-up, which means, naturally, that they apply to a creditors' voluntary winding-up.

¹⁰⁷ The Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) (Amendment) Ordinance 2016 will repeal this section, and this will be subject to section 61 of the Transitional and saving provision. See (n 108) below.

¹⁰⁸ Section 228(1) of Cap.32. In Re Shop Clothing Ltd (t/a Theme) [1999] 2 HKC 191, Le Pichon J (as she then was) suggested that for a creditors' voluntary winding-up the appropriate resolution is in the terms of para (c) of s.228(1). Le Pichon J also stated: "the resolution proposed [in this case] is one pertaining to s.228(1)(b) (a members' voluntary winding-up) rather than s.228(1)(c) (a creditors' voluntary winding-up)". However, it is clear that a s.228(1)(b) resolution is not necessarily one pertaining to a members' voluntary winding-up; a creditors' voluntary winding-up might also be commenced under sub-s (b), as well as - as is admittedly more usual - under sub-s (c). See also n 108, below.

- (viii) it followed that the court, in arriving at its conclusion, should first determine what the contractual rights and reasonable expectations of policyholders were before the scheme was promulgated and then compare those with the likely result of the rights and expectations of policyholders if the scheme was put into effect.

CHAPTER 9

SETTING ASIDE OF PREFERENCES AND TRADING ISSUES

Authored and updated by Mr. Jose-Antonio Maurellet, SC, Ms. Teresa Wu, and previously by the late Mr. Harry Liu

	PARA.
I. Introduction	9.001
II. Summary	9.005
III. Requirements	9.006
IV. Avoidance of Disposition of Property, etc after Commencement of Winding-Up	9.027
V. Disposition of the Property of the Company	9.030
VI. Transfer of Shares or Alteration in Status	9.048
VII. Application for Validation Order	9.049
VIII. Discretion of the Court	9.055

I. INTRODUCTION

Clawing Back, Pre and Post Petition

One of the principles underlying insolvency law is to ensure the pari passu doctrine, so that all unsecured creditors are treated equally. 9.001

This chapter deals with the payments made prior to the filing of the winding-up petition (unfair preferences) and those made post petition (unvalidated transactions). Whilst the operating principles which apply in these two scenarios vary; it will be seen that the law strives to strike a balance between ensuring that unsecured creditors are treated equally whilst at the same time preventing the claw back of assets where it would be inequitable to do so. It is the operation of this uneasy exercise which sometimes causes a degree of confusion when ascertaining whether some transfers should be avoided.

Introduction

The current law is borrowed from the provisions set out in the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6). The relevant statutory provisions are ss.50, 51, 51A and 51B of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6). These are modeled on ss.340, 341, 342 and 435 of the UK Insolvency Act 1986. 9.002

The law in so far as it concerns unfair preferences in the corporate insolvency context is problematic. The source of the problem lies largely in there being no enacted legislation for unfair preferences in the corporate context. Rather, the legislature has simply adopted the provisions contained in the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) and deemed these to be part of s.266B of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32).¹ This has caused some difficulties as a result of the wholesale importation of sections of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6). This is so in particular, where the analogy between a personal and corporate debtor breaks down. As will be seen below there are specific difficulties, in defining an "Associate". Many subsections in s.51B of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) deal with "blood" relatives of a personal debtor. This obviously has no equivalent for a corporate debtor.

The law on the matter has changed for winding-up proceedings which have commenced after 1 April 1998. Whilst it will no doubt be the case that the "old law" (for winding-up proceedings commencing before 1 April 1998) will be progressively less relevant, since it would be increasingly improbable that an action for unfair preference would still not have been dealt with by now, nevertheless, for the sake of completeness, it will be briefly be touched upon here.

Old Law

The "old law" is conveniently set out in the decision of Deputy High Court Judge S. Kwan (as she then was) in *Re Hoi Sing Construction Company Ltd.*² 9.003

¹ Section 266B (1)(a) of the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32) states that "a reference in s.266 or s.266A of this Ordinance to a fraudulent preference shall be deemed to be a reference to an unfair preference as provided for in s.50 of the Bankruptcy Ordinance".

² [2001] 2 HKC 325 at 328-330.

“The statutory provisions ...

43. Section 266(1) of the Companies Ordinance (now renamed the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32)) is as follows:

‘Any conveyance, mortgage, delivery of goods, payment, execution or other act relating to property made or done by or against a company within six months before the commencement of its winding-up which, had it been made or done by or against an individual within six months before the presentation of a bankruptcy petition on which he is adjudged bankrupt, would be deemed in his bankruptcy a fraudulent preference, shall in the event of the company being wound up be deemed a fraudulent preference of its creditors and be invalid accordingly ...’

44. As the commencement of the winding-up in this case was before the Bankruptcy (Amendment) Ordinance, No. 76 of 1996, came into operation on 1 April 1998, the old section 49(1) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) is applicable. This section, which has been repealed, provided as follows:

‘Every conveyance or transfer of property, or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor or of any person in trust for any creditor, with a view to giving such creditor, or any surety or guarantor for the debt due to such creditor, a preference over the other creditors, shall, if the person making, taking, paying or suffering the same is adjudged bankrupt on a bankruptcy petition presented within six months ... after the date of making, taking, paying or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee in the bankruptcy’.

The case law ...

46. The relevant propositions of law extracted from the cases may be set out as follows:

- (1) The debtor’s state of mind is the paramount consideration. The intention or view to prefer, as the immediate cause of the debtor’s conduct, is the cardinal point round which the whole question turns. This is a question of fact to be derived from a review of all the circumstances of the case (Peat v Gresham Trust Ltd [1934] AC 252 at 262; Banque Nationale de Paris v Sam Wah Hing Garment Factory Ltd [1985] 2 HKC 499 at 506; Halsbury’s Laws of England, 4th edn, Vol 3, para.918).
- (2) A limited company cannot have a view except so far as the views of the agents by which it acts. In this context, the state of mind of those in control of the company has to be examined as it is only through such persons that any view can be attributed to the debtor company (Peat v Gresham Trust Ltd, supra. at 261).
- (3) The onus is on the person alleging a fraudulent preference to prove to the satisfaction of the court that the payment impugned was made by the debtor “with a view of” preferring the payee over his other creditors. In other words, he must prove the debtor’s intention to prefer. This burden does not shift, even where it is shown that a voluntary payment has been made which in fact gives a creditor preference (In Re Cutts [1956] 1 WLR 728 at 733; BNP v Sam Wah Hing Garment Factory Ltd, supra at 506D).

- (4) It is competent for the court to draw the inference of intention to prefer from all the facts of the case, particularly when there is no direct evidence of intention. But the inference should not be drawn, having regard to the situation of the onus of proof, unless such inference is the true and proper inference from the facts proved. Thus, it will not be drawn, if the inference from the facts is equivocal and, in particular, it will not be drawn from the mere circumstance that the creditor paid was in fact ‘preferred’, in the sense that he was paid when other creditors were not (In Re Cutts, supra at 733, 739).
- (5) The intention to prefer, which must be proved, is the principal or dominant intention. It is recognised that there may be more than one intention involved. There may also be a valid distinction for present purposes between a view or intention to prefer and the reasons for forming and executing that intention, i.e., motive (In Re Cutts, supra at 734, 740, 750).
- (6) The time at which the intention is adjudged is the time of payment. The section is not looking to future events in this respect (In Re Matthews Ltd [1982] 1 Ch 257 at 264B to D).
- (7) Fraudulent preference does not necessarily involve an element of dishonesty. Nevertheless, it must be remembered that the inference to be drawn is of something which has about it, at the least, a taint of dishonesty, and, in extreme cases, much more than a mere taint of dishonesty. The court is not in the habit of drawing inferences which involve dishonesty or something approaching dishonesty unless there are solid grounds for drawing them (BNP v Sam Wah Hing Garment Factory Ltd, supra. at 506B; In Re Kushler Ltd [1943] 1 Ch 248 at 252; Re Wing Hong Woo Co Ltd [2000] 4 HKC 186 at 201A to C).
- (8) The word ‘preference’ imports in it the voluntary act of a person who can do either the one thing or the other as he prefers. In as much as preference implies selection and selection implies freedom of choice, a payment must in order to constitute a preference be voluntarily made, and that a payment made under pressure, e.g., in the shape of proceedings actual or threatened by the creditor concerned, or fear of such proceedings, is not for this purpose a voluntary payment (Butcher v Stead (1875) LR 7 HL 839 at 846; Sharp v Jackson [1899] AC 419 at 423, 425, 427; In re Cutts, supra at 740; BNP v Sam Wah Hing Garment Factory Ltd, supra at 507H to I; Halsbury’s Laws of England, 4th edn, Vol 3, para.914)”.

Old Law v Current law

9.004 It is fundamental to understand that the “old law” has very little relevance now; and hence considerable caution should be exercised before placing any reliance on precedents based on the “old law”.

In Re MC Bacon Ltd,³ Millett J (as he then was) held that:

“... [the Old law] has been replaced and its language has been entirely recast. Every word of significance, whether in the form of statutory definition or in its judicial exposition, has been jettisoned. ‘View’, ‘dominant’, ‘intention’ and even ‘to prefer’ have all been discarded. These are replaced by ‘influenced’, ‘desire’ and ‘to produce in relation to that person the effect mentioned in s(4)(b). I therefore emphatically protest against the citation of cases decided under the old law. They cannot be of any assistance when the language of the statute has been so completely and deliberately changed. It may be that many of the cases which will come before the courts in future will be decided in the same way that they would have been decided under the old law. That may be so, but the grounds of decision will be different. What the court has to do is to interpret the language of the statute and apply it. It will no longer inquire whether there was ‘a dominant intention to prefer’ the creditor, but whether the company’s decision was ‘influenced by a desire to produce the effect mentioned in sub-s (4)(b)’. This is a completely different test”.

His Lordship considered that there were:

“... at least two radical departures from the old law. It is no longer necessary to establish a dominant intention to prefer. It is sufficient that the decision was influenced by the requisite desire. That is the first change. The second is that it is no longer sufficient to establish an intention to prefer. There must be a desire to produce the effect mentioned in the subsection”.

In Re Stanley Hau Po Man,⁴ Lam J adopted what Millett J had to say in Re MC Bacon Ltd and held that:⁵

“His Lordship highlighted some differences between the old law and the new law and explained the requirements under the new law. In contrasting the distinction between the concept of desire under the new law and that of intention under the old law, Millett J made the following points:

- (a) Intention is objective, desire is subjective. A man can choose the lesser of two evils without desiring either (p.87G).
- (b) The relevant desire is a desire to produce the effect of putting a creditor/surety/guarantor into a position which, in the event of the company

³ [1990] BCLC 325, at 335.

⁴ [2004] 3 HKC 461. Note that while the Court of Appeal reversed part of the decision, the reasoning of his Lordship was not challenged by the Court. Both Re MC Bacon Ltd and Re Stanley Hau Po Man were applied by Kwan J in The Official Receiver v James Conrad Louey (unrep., HCMP 2770/2003), 2006 WL 3378766 (CFI), [2006] HKEC 2233; Re Phantom Records Ltd (unrep., 7 December 2006).

⁵ [1990] BCC 78.

going into insolvent liquidation, will be better than the position he would otherwise have been in (p.87H).

- (c) A man is not to be taken as desiring all the necessary consequences of his actions (p.87H).
- (d) “Some consequences may be of advantage to him and be desired by him; others may not affect him and be matters of indifference to him and while still others may be positively disadvantageous to him and not be desired by him, but be regarded by him as the unavoidable price of obtaining the desired advantages”.
- (e) A transaction will not be set aside unless the debtor positively wished to improve the creditor’s position in the event of his/ its own insolvent liquidation (p.88A).
- (f) Mere presence of the requisite desire is not sufficient. The desire must have influenced the decision to enter into the transaction. That requirement is satisfied if it was one of the factors which operated on the minds of those who made the decision. It need not be the only factor nor a decisive one (p.88B to C)”.

THE PROPOSED NEW LAW: COMPANIES (WINDING-UP AND MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS) (AMENDMENT) ORDINANCE 2016

The said Ordinance has been gazette on 3 June 2016.

At the time of publication (December 2016), no effective date has yet been confirmed.

It is very important that the Amended Ordinance will make some radical changes. These are too numerous to list out in this Edition and will be comprehensively reviewed in the next edition of this work. Readers are advised to read the Amended Ordinance after the new law comes into effect.

II. SUMMARY

These are the basic elements which must be in existence in order to constitute an unfair preference:

- (a) a preference within the meaning of s.50(3) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) was given by the bankrupt at the relevant time; this is a matter of fact. There must therefore be an antecedent debt as well as a transaction giving rise to preferential effect;
- (b) the bankrupt was influenced by the requisite desire as defined in s.50(4) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) when he gave the preference; where the company gives a factual preference to a connected party, this gives rise to certain presumptions; and

9.005

- (c) the bankrupt was insolvent at the time of the transaction or he became insolvent in consequence of that transaction.⁶

If these requirements are met, then the Court will make such order as is necessary in order to restore the parties back to where they would be had the transaction giving rise to an “unfair preference” never taken place.⁷ As will be explained below, the Court has wide discretion to make such order as appropriate. This discretion is subject to caveats, essentially that the Court should not make such orders in so far as these would injure the interests of ‘innocent’ third parties.⁸

Given the fact sensitive nature (ie was the company influenced by a desire to prefer, was the company insolvent at the time of the transaction, etc) of applications to set aside transactions on the grounds of unfair preference, it will be a rare case where such proceedings can be struck out. See Re Cheung Siu Kin (per Poon J., 10th April 2013)

III. REQUIREMENTS

Antecedent Debt

- 9.006 This requirement is laid down in s.50(3)(a) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6). A debtor can only be preferred if he or she “is one of the debtor’s creditors or a surety or guarantor for any of his debts or other liabilities”.

Therefore, the starting point is that there must be a pre existing debtor/lender or debtor/guarantor relationship (which arose before the “relevant time”). Hence, if at the “relevant time” a company purchases goods or services and pays for these, there can be no unfair preference. This is so because the liability to pay arises at the same time as goods or services are given to the company. That relationship must be a direct one. In one case, where a billiard saloon was operating from premises leased from its directors and the company paid the rent directly to the landlord, the Court held there could be no unfair preference as there was no pre-existing borrower/lender relationship.⁹

Preferential Effect

Improving the Position

- 9.007 Morritt J in relation to the English equivalent of s.50(3)(b) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) in *Re Ledingham-Smith*¹⁰ had this to say:

“The phrase ‘will be better’ in relation to the event of the individual’s bankruptcy used in section 340(3)(b) envisages a bankruptcy after the doing of the thing in question. It also predicates that the position will be better, not may be”.

⁶ Section 51(2) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6).

⁷ Section 50(2) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6).

⁸ Section 51A(2) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6).

⁹ See Re Beacon Leisure [1992] BCLC 565. Note that there, Mr. Wright QC left open the possibility that the directors had been preferred (567h).

¹⁰ [1993] BCLC 635.

The effect of the preference is thus measured as if the liquidation occurred immediately after the doing of the thing rather than when the liquidation actually occurs. This means that the creditor’s position is improved by reference to a hypothetical liquidation which would arise immediately after the transaction rather than the actual liquidation when it occurs.

On the facts of that case, the court held that there was no preference because at the time when the payment was made, it could not be said that the payee would inevitably be benefited by the payment since further service were to be provided by the payee after the payment. There was no evidence to show that when such payment was made, it would definitely be in excess of payment for services to be rendered in the immediate future. The evidence was that if the payment had not been made, the subsequent services would not have been rendered.

Third Party Funds

9.008 When a company is in financial difficulties, it sometimes happens that the people behind the company (often shareholders) will use their own funds to reduce the company’s indebtedness. These monies paid for and on behalf of the company would in the ordinary course be construed as unsecured loans to the company. Such advances have a neutral effect on the company’s overall financial position. On the one hand, one debt is extinguished, on the other there is an increase in the company’s liabilities. There is at least one strong argument why s.266B of Cap.32 should not be triggered. Payments by these backers cannot be equated with the company doing “anything by itself or suffers anything to be done”. These payments have, strictly speaking, nothing to do with the company.

In addition, it is arguable that nothing which has happened, offends the spirit behind the legislation, which is intended to ensure that the other creditors are not worse off.¹¹

Secured and Partly Secured Creditors

9.009 It goes without saying that a secured creditor (to the extent of his security) cannot be preferred since he cannot be said to be worse off when the company goes into liquidation. If monies are repaid at the “relevant time” to a partly secured creditor, the preferential effect will be measured as being the amount of payment made minus the value of the security at the time of the payment (hence being equivalent to the unsecured amount). Hence the applicant will normally need to adduce evidence of the value of the security at the time of the transaction.

Guaranteed Debts of the Company

9.010 In a liquidation, a guarantor becomes effectively a contingent creditor. This is so, as the creditor generally has the right to sue either or both guarantor and creditor company.

¹¹ In James v Commonwealth Bank of Australia [1995] 13 ACLC 1604, Young J at 1607 held that: “if one can see that the position of the general creditors after the transaction was no worse than it was before the transaction then the transaction does not have the effect of giving a preference to one creditor over the others”. Note however that Young J was dealing there with s.122(1) of the Bankruptcy Act 1966 which focuses on “the effect of giving that creditor a preference, priority or advantage over other creditors” whereas under Hong Kong law, the focus is simply on whether the creditor is better off than if the transaction had not been entered into. In other words, in Australia the focus is on the effect on other creditors whereas in Hong Kong, one looks at the improvement.

When a company repays at the “relevant time”, a debt which is guaranteed (by a third party), this might well improve both the creditor and the guarantor’s position.¹² Whilst the guarantor might claim against the company if he has an indemnity, he will only recover a dividend upon the liquidation as an unsecured creditor; hence he is preferred to the extent that the debt guaranteed by him is paid by the company. In short, to the extent that the debt guaranteed by the guarantor has been repaid; this will reduce the guarantor’s loss on a liquidation of the company.

The applicant could in principle pursue unfair preference claims against both the creditor (say A) and the guarantor (say B) for the amounts repaid.¹³ This is so as both could be said to have been put in a better position; however in practice it may well be that the applicant would have difficulties in establishing that the company desired to prefer both rather than one. As will be seen below, it is often difficult to ascertain (as there is often no direct evidence) whether the company desired to prefer A and B or whether it simply desired to prefer A with the incidental but necessary effect that it would benefit B.¹⁴

Common Preferences

- 9.011 In the Cork Report,¹⁵ three specific examples are given as to what would constitute an act of preference: (i) payment to a creditor of his debts (in whole or in part); (ii) providing security for indebtedness which arose before the ‘relevant time’; and (iii) return of goods which had been delivered but not been paid for.

Payments

- 9.012 Payments are the most common and straightforward form of improving a creditor’s position vis-à-vis another. This clearly “has the effect of putting that person into a position” which would be better in the even of the company being declared insolvent. Obviously, when the payment is in part, the preference will extend to the extent of the payment. It is to be noted that the legislation does not require the act of preference to be narrowed to cash payments. Therefore, a transfer of an asset of the company to satisfy the payment of a debt would also be caught.¹⁶

Security for Indebtedness Arising Prior to the Relevant Time

- 9.013 When a company grants security for a previously unsecured loan, it does something which improves the unsecured creditor’s position by giving him priority over the other unsecured creditors.¹⁷

¹² This would be on the assumption that the debt is secured, or if it is partially secured, the preferential effect would be restricted to the unsecured part.

¹³ The creditor would in those circumstances be well advised to join the guarantor as a party, so that should he have to repay the Company to the extent of the preference, he could recoup it against the guarantor. Note that the Court has the power under ss.51A(1)(e)–51A(1)(f) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) to revive the obligations of the guarantor to the creditor, to the extent that these had originally been extinguished as a result of the preferential payment; upon the Court ordering the creditor to repay the applicant.

¹⁴ Re Agriplant Services Ltd [1997] 2 BCLC 599 illustrates the difficulties involved in ascertaining whom the company desired to prefer.

¹⁵ Para 1208 of the Cork Report.

¹⁶ In Weisgard v Pilkington [1995] BCLC 1108 at 1113c, Judge Maddocks held that the transfer of leases owned by the Company to some of its directors in repayment of unsecured loans was an act of preference.

¹⁷ For example in Re MC Bacon [1990] BCLC 324 the granting of a debenture to secure a previously unsecured debt was regarded as an act of preference. In Re Mistral Finance (in liquidation) [2001] BCLC 27 at 33 per Peter Smith

Return of Goods

This deals with the return of goods supplied on credit. This proposition is a common-sensical one: assuming that the title to the goods has passed to the purchasing company; then the only recourse of the vendor/creditor is a claim in personam for monies due and owing. The vendor/creditor will only receive a dividend in the liquidation on a pari passu basis. However by having the goods supplied to it returned, it obviously becomes better off. By allowing the vendor/creditor to act as if the transaction had never been entered into, the company would be effectively releasing the vendor/creditor from its strict contractual obligations. 9.014

Court Orders

Section 50(6) of the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6) provides that: 9.015

“the fact that something has been done in pursuance of the order of a court, does not, without more, prevent the doing or suffering of that thing from constituting the giving of an unfair preference”.

This provision is no doubt targeting at transactions disguised in Court Orders which are designed to prefer a creditor. This might be done by having a Court “sanction” it, for example by way of a consent order which is endorsed by the Court.¹⁸ However, it goes without saying that if the Court order was obtained after a contested hearing, it may be that the requirement of “desire to prefer” could not be met.

Series of Dealings between the Parties

One can envisage a situation whereby a trading company would owe a certain amount of money to a supplier/creditor at the start of the “relevant time”. During this pre-liquidation period there could be repayments for trade debts owed to the supplier/creditor and at the same time, the latter would supply the trading company with goods. If the trading company was paying for the goods freshly supplied, there would obviously be no preference issue since there would be no “antecedent debt”.¹⁹ However a problem might arise where the trading company during the “relevant time” settles debts for goods previously supplied, in order to ensure future deliveries on credit. It could be argued that there is an element of unfair preference, if one isolates that repayment as an independent transaction. It could be said that the company paid for antecedent debts and as a matter of strict law got nothing for it. 9.016

The problem is compounded for the supplier/creditor if it is repaid for “antecedent debts” on more than one occasion and supplies fresh goods to the company. That supplier/creditor could be potentially liable to repay all of the sums it received as QC, where there had been a first mortgage for the purchase of a yacht but it was void for failure of registration, and thus a second one was created during the “relevant time”. That was held to be an unfair preference.

¹⁸ For example, a Bankrupt could try to transfer valuable property to his wife by way of a consent order in a artificial divorce proceeding where the property would be transferred as part of the ancillary relief. Another example would be where a company is sued by a “friendly” creditor and makes a consent order so as to use this as an excuse to pay that creditor to the detriment of the general body of creditors.

¹⁹ See paragraphs on antecedent debt in para.9.006.

settlement of antecedent debts. In reality, it may be that, had the supplier/creditor not been paid for its previous supplies, the company would be worse off since it would not have supplied the company which in turn might have suffered great losses as a result.

In Australia, the Courts have devised a principle whereby, the Court could, when assessing whether a creditor had been preferred; look at the broad picture of the trading relationship between the supplier/creditor and the company; rather than look at it on a transaction by transaction basis. This principle operates in such a way that if the other creditors are not worse off, because the supplier/creditor has supplied goods of equal or superior value to the amounts paid by the company in settlement of old debts so as to induce the creditor supplier to continue supplying it, the Court will consider that there would be no preference.²⁰

It is unlikely that the Hong Kong courts will feel the need to develop a similar principle. It must be noted that in Australia:

“... the effect of a payment on the other creditors of a debtor is determined objectively. If the payment has the effect of giving a creditor a preference over the other creditors, it does not matter that neither the creditor nor the debtor intended to give the creditor preferential treatment”.²¹

The Australian legislation looks to the effect of the transaction and not to the intent, or state of mind, of the debtor.²² As such, where the company settles old debts in order to induce the creditor supplier to supply it with fresh goods, that transaction would normally be caught by the Australian legislation; even where the other creditors in fact benefited from a series of transactions at the “relevant time” because the value of goods supplied exceed the amount settled for past deliveries. In Hong Kong however, the state of mind of the company when making payments is of crucial importance. If there is evidence that the purpose of the payment was to induce the supplier/creditor to continue to supply the company, then clearly, there could be no desire to prefer the creditor.²³

One could argue that this device employed by the Courts in Australia was designed to mitigate the harshness of a legislation which only focused on the effect of transactions during the “relevant time”. By looking at some ongoing transactions on a global rather than an individual basis, the Australian Courts are able to rule in such a way that is ‘fairer’ to those supplier/creditors.²⁴

It must be noted nevertheless that the outcome in Australia and in Hong Kong could still be different in some instances. Where the company settles old bills in order to induce the creditor supplier to continue to supply it with goods or services but the value of the goods or services supplied is less than the payments in settlement of old bills, then in Australia there would be a preference to the extent of the difference in value

²⁰ See the decision of the High Court of Australia in Airservices v Ferrier [1996] 137 ALR 609.

²¹ Australia in Airservices v Ferrier [1996] 137 ALR 609 at 622, lines 20–30.

²² S Richards & Co Ltd v Lloyd [1933] 49 CLR 49 at 62.

²³ See paragraphs 9.014–9.017.

²⁴ Whilst there has been support from some quarters in changing our legislation so that it looks at effect only along the lines of the Australian model; the present instance is a good example of why that change might swing the pendulum too far against supplier/creditors.

between the two.²⁵ In Hong Kong, there would probably be no preference, as the company might not be described as having a desire to prefer that supplier/creditor.

Influenced by a Desire to Prefer

General

The law is conveniently set out by Millet J (as he then was) in Re MC Bacon.²⁶

9.017

“A man is taken to intend the necessary consequences of his actions, so that an intention to grant a security to a creditor necessarily involves an intention to prefer that creditor in the event of insolvency. The need to establish that such intention was dominant was essential under the old law to prevent perfectly proper transactions from being struck down. With the abolition of that requirement intention could not remain the relevant test. Desire has been substituted. That is a very different matter. Intention is objective, desire is subjective. A man can choose the lesser of two evils without desiring either. It is not, however, sufficient to establish a desire to make the payment or grant the security which it is sought to avoid. There must have been a desire to produce the effect mentioned in the subsection, that is to say, to improve the creditor’s position in the event of an insolvent liquidation. A man is not to be taken as desiring all the necessary consequences of his actions. Some consequences may be of advantage to him and be desired by him; others may not affect him and be matters of indifference to him; while still others may be positively disadvantageous to him and not be desired by him, but be regarded by him as the unavoidable price of obtaining the desired advantages. It will still be possible to provide assistance to a company in financial difficulties provided that the company is actuated only by proper commercial considerations. Under the new regime a transaction will not be set aside as a voidable preference unless the company positively wished to improve the creditor’s position in the event of its own insolvent liquidation”.

The applicable principles have been considered above.²⁷

The applicant does not have to produce direct evidence (and more often that not simply cannot) of the requisite desire; its existence may be inferred from the circumstances of the case.²⁸ However it will be insufficient to simply point to the fact that there was a preference in favour of the creditor and hence ask the Court to infer that, ipso facto, there must have been a desire to prefer that creditor. For the application to succeed, more evidence is required.

It is thus clear that as a matter of Hong Kong law, if the company is doing an act which has the effect of preferring a creditor, but it has done so as a result of the creditor ²⁵ Australia in Airservices v Ferrier [1996] 137 ALR 609 at 623. For there to be a preference in Australia, the transaction must: “have the effect of giving the creditor a preference over the other creditors, the payment must ultimately result in a decrease in the net value of the assets that are available to meet the competing demands of the other creditors”.

²⁶ [1990] BCLC 324 at 335–336. Applied in The Official Receiver v James Conrad Louey (unrep., HCMP 2770/2003) at [87] and cited with approval in Re Sweetmart Garment Works Ltd [2008] 2 HKLRD 92.

²⁷ See para.9.004.

²⁸ Re MC Bacon [1990] BCLC 324. Applied in The Official Receiver v James Conrad Louey (unrep., HCMP 2770/2003) at [87].

exercising pressure (commercial or otherwise) on it then that is not a payment which can be recovered as being a preferential payment.²⁹

Whether the company was influenced by a desire to prefer a particular creditor is a matter of fact to be determined in each individual case having regard to the totality of the evidence and by drawing an appropriate inference. In Re Sweetmart Garment Works Ltd [2008] 2 HKLRD 92, Barma J held that the company was influenced by a desire to prefer a bank creditor. In the ordinary case, it will not be likely that the Court will come to such a conclusion. On the other hand, in Re Leric International Ltd,³⁰ where there was no evidence to suggest the mortgage in question was not entered into at arm's length or was not governed by proper commercial considerations, there was thus no evidence to establish or infer the desire to produce the effect of putting the moneylender in a better position. The more typical case is where the company prefers either related parties (i.e. related to the company or its directors or shareholders) in which case the Court will more readily draw the inference the preference was so influenced.

Who is being Influenced

9.018

Whether a bankrupt had the "relevant desire" is a relatively narrow issue to consider. However when one deals with the 'relevant desire' of a company, the question arises as to who are the natural persons whose desire is equated with that of the company. That is a question which will have to be answered on the facts of the case, looking at all the relevant facts. And depending on the size of the company, the corporate structure, the persons who made the individual decisions, etc the answer may well vary from case to case.³¹ The Court will, in effect, attribute the desire of such individuals to the company as is just in the circumstances of each case. Whilst there can be no hard and fast rule, in smaller companies the desire will often be attributed to those who control them, whereas in larger companies, the desire will often be attributed to that of the board.

²⁹ Sec n 34.

³⁰ [2009] 2 HKLRD 238.

³¹ Meridian Global Funds Management Asia Ltd v Securities Commission [1995] 2 AC 500, where Lord Hoffman held that: "the company's primary rules of attribution together with the general principles of agency, vicarious liability and so forth are usually sufficient to determine its rights and obligations. In exceptional cases, however, they will not provide an answer. This will be the case when, a rule of law, either expressly or by implication, excludes attribution on the basis of the general principles of agency or vicarious liability" (at 507 b-c). Referring to the dicta in Lord Hoffman's judgment in Meridian, Moore-Bick LJ pointed out the "need to distinguish between several quite distinct sets of rules" in MAN Nutzfahrzeuge AG v Freightliner Ltd [2005] EWHC 2347 (Comm), [2005] All ER (D) 357 (Oct), (Approved judgment) that: "[t]he first, to which Lord Hoffmann adverted briefly in the Meridian case, are the rules which relate to vicarious liability under which a person may be held liable for the acts and omissions of those he engages to act on his behalf. Liability in such cases depends on the wrongful act or omission of the agent or employee himself for which his principal or employer is held responsible. It does not depend on the attribution to the employer of another's state of mind. The second set of rules concerns the attribution to one person (natural or juridical) of the state of mind of another whom he has appointed to act as his agent. It is with that question that cases such as In re Hampshire Land Co, Belmont Finance v Williams and El Ajou v Dollar Land Holdings, 1994 WL 1061696 (Ch D), [1995] 2 All ER 213, (1995) 69 P & CRD 25, 1-03-1995 Times 1061, 696 (insofar as it turned on the relationship between principal and agent) are concerned. A third set of rules which governs the attribution of the acts and omission of natural persons to juridical persons such as companies was the subject of discussion in the Meridian case. These rules do not involve so much the attribution of one person's state of mind to another as the identification of the natural person or persons who are to be regarded as representing the juridical person for the purposes of the substantive rule in question".

'A' Desire not 'the' Desire

Kwan J observed in The Official Receiver v James Conrad Louey:³²

9.019

"[a]s for influence, this requirement is satisfied if it was one of the factors which operated on the minds of those made the decision. It need not have been the only factor or even the decisive one. It is not necessary to prove that if the requisite desire had not been present, the company would not have entered into the transaction (Re MC Bacon Ltd, at 336c to d)".

Therefore, it seems that as long as the desire is one of the operating factors that influences the mind of the decision maker, it suffices for the purpose of showing the existence of an unfair preference.

Proper Commercial Considerations

In *Re MC Bacon Ltd*³³ Millett J (as he then was) held it would still be possible under the 'new law' to uphold a transaction made by a company in financial difficulties "provided that the company is actuated only by proper commercial considerations" (p.336A).³⁴ That was so, because under the "new law", "a transaction will not be set aside as a voidable preference unless the company positively wished to improve the creditor's position in the event of its own insolvent liquidation".

9.020

The same point was made by Mummery J in *Re Fairway Magazines Ltd*³⁵ where the Court was dealing with a company which had granted a debenture in order to raise monies to allow it to continue its operations while negotiations were in progress to sell that business.

It should be borne in mind that the lynchpin is whether the transaction in question was influenced by a desire on the part of the debtor to improve the position of the creditor. Whilst proper commercial considerations for a transaction might provide an evidential basis for undermining an inference of the existence of such a desire, it is by no means the only possible way to rule out the existence of the requisite desire.³⁶

In this connection, it is noteworthy in paragraphs 1247 to 1258 of the Report of the Cork Committee on Insolvency Law and Practice, (leading to the English Insolvency Act 1986) that the Australian model focusing solely on effect of payment was rejected by the majority. Having said that, it is of course open to the court to examine the objective effects of the transactions to see whether it is likely or unlikely that the bankrupt was influenced by these effects when he gave the preference. However, as observed by Millett J, a man is not to be taken as desiring all the necessary consequences of his actions.³⁷

³² (unrep., HCMP 2770/2003) at [88].

³³ [1990] BCLC 324.

³⁴ Followed in Wills v Corfe Joinery [1998] 2 BCLC 75 at 77, per Lloyd J.

³⁵ [1993] BCLC 643 at 649.

³⁶ For example, in Re Stanley Hsu Po Man, Lam J suggested that a payment made under duress would also undermine the inference of such a desire.

³⁷ Re MC Bacon [1990] BCLC 324 at 335.

Three Way Preferences

9.021 Another difficulty when ascertaining the relevant desire will be to ascertain who the company desired to prefer in situations where the creditor's debts was also guaranteed by a third party (often a director or shareholder of the company).

As the section is only triggered if it can be established that there was a desire to prefer the respondent, it is of fundamental importance to seek the recourse against the "right" party (or parties). For example, if the applicant chooses to proceed against the creditor only, but it later transpires that in fact the company had desired to prefer a director/shareholder who had guaranteed the debt, it may well be that the application against the creditor would fail, with costs to be paid by the applicant. Hence, it will sometimes be prudent to proceed against both. It must be remembered that merely because the creditor was factually preferred; it does not always follow that there was a desire to prefer him. A man (or a company) is not taken to be taken as desiring all the necessary consequences of his action. Whilst by desiring to prefer the guarantor by paying off a guaranteed debt, the necessary consequence was to prefer the creditor, it does not follow that there was a desire to prefer to the creditor. That might be the incidental consequence only. It is also possible that the company desired to prefer both guarantor and creditor, although in practice it is less likely to be the case that the company had any desire to prefer the creditor, especially when it is an independent financial institution.

Given that in the vast majority of cases, there is no actual contemporaneous evidence of what the desire was, this compounds the practical difficulties for the applicant to show that there had been such a relevant desire which operated in the company's mind.

Any unfair preference action could be targeted at either or both: (i) the creditor; and (ii) the guarantor. Both are factually preferred as a result of payments by the company. An action against the creditor (often a financial institution) has the advantage of it often having deep pockets so as to prevent there being an empty judgment.

There is authority to support the following proposition: that when: A being a director of B, and guarantor of B's debts vis-à-vis C, the Bank; when A directs pre liquidation repayment to C; that both C and A are liable to repay the Company under the law of unfair preference. This is so, the reasoning goes, because A intended to benefit C in order to benefit himself: see Jonathan Parker J in Re Agriplant Services.³⁸ The following passage is of particular relevance and assistance:

"I further agree that (as I observed earlier) before an order can be made against CAF [the creditor] the court must be satisfied that in making the payment the company, that is to say in practice Mr Sagar, was influenced by a desire to improve the position of CAF on an insolvent liquidation of the company. But at that point I part with Mr Vickers. The evidence in the instant case establishes, and I find, that in making the payment to CAF, the company, that is to say Mr Sagar, was influenced by a desire to improve the position both of himself and of CAF on an insolvent liquidation of the company. At the time the payment was made, Mr Sagar was well aware that an insolvent liquidation of the company was inevitable and that it was only days away. In procuring the company to make the payment his desire was to reduce the amount of the current arrears under the leasing agreements, which would have the effect of reducing his own liability for the current arrears under his guarantee and also with a view to paving the way for a takeover of some or all of the agreements by LVE, thereby providing Mr Sagar with some measure of protection against the accrual of further liability in the future under his guarantee, either for future payments by way of rent or for any shortfall on the repossession and sale of equipment subject to the leasing agreements. Given the inevitability and the imminence of an insolvent liquidation of the company, it was only by improving the position of CAF on an insolvent liquidation of the company that Mr Sagar's own position under his guarantee could itself be improved. Mr Sagar wanted (desired) to reduce the company's debt to CAF; that is to say, to produce in relation to CAF the effect described in s.239(4)(b) for just that reason". [emphasis added]

³⁸ 1997 2 BCLC 599.

Some caution must be exercised before relying on this case. It could be said that Agriplant is a decision which was made on its own peculiar facts. It could be open to argue that Mr Sagar (the director) desired to improve his own position and that the incidental effect was to benefit CAF (the creditor). On the other hand, it does appear that Jonathan Parker J did apply the right test and referred to Re MC Bacon. Nevertheless, it is clear that the Court considered it necessary to find that the company had a desire to prefer the creditor in order for the claim against it to succeed. It will always be a matter of fact to be decided as to whether the company in fact did have a desire to prefer the particular respondent in the application. Whilst in Agriplant, the Court came to the view that the company had the desire to prefer both guarantor and creditor, and that by desiring to prefer the guarantor it also improved the creditor's position and had the desire to prefer the creditor, this need not be the fact in each case.

PresumptionsAssociate

9.022 The starting point is that s.76 of the Bankruptcy (Amendment) Ordinance is extended to companies. It adds a new s.266B(1) to the Companies (Winding-Up and Miscellaneous Provisions) Ordinance (Cap.32) which provides that where the winding-up of a company commences on or after [the date of the commencement of this ordinance] a reference to s.266 or s.266A of this Cap.32 to a fraudulent preference shall be deemed to be a reference to an unfair preference in the Bankruptcy Ordinance (Cap.6). Similarly, if the debtor is an associate of the creditor the reference to six months is deemed to be a reference to two years.

There are at least two important reasons to identify whether a potential respondent is treated as an Associate for the purpose of the legislation. First, by reason of s.266B of Cap.32,³⁹ the "relevant time" extends from the usual six months to two years prior to the winding-up. The number of transactions caught thus increases significantly. Second, ³⁹ Section 266B(1)(b) of Cap.32.