

Contents

List of Figures	xi
Preface	xiii
1 An Evolving Decision-Making Paradigm	1
The Traditional Paradigm	3
The Real World	5
Rethinking Decision Making	8
The Cognitive Challenge	15
Adjusting to the New Paradigm	16
Conclusion: It Isn't Easy Getting It Right	18
2 Decisions and Decision Making	21
Different Perspectives on Decision Making	25
Rational, Irrational, Nonrational Decisions	38
Dealing with Unknowns	42
3 The Social Context of Decision Making	47
The Social Context	49
The Social Space of Decision Making	51

Allison's Multiple Perspectives on Decision Making	52
The Link Between Stakeholder and Decision-Maker	55
The Implementation Challenge	56
Accommodating External Forces	57
Conclusion	58
4 The Organizational Dimension	61
Organizational Structure	62
Organizational Process	69
People in Organizations	71
Organizational Culture	72
Conclusion	85
5 The Moral Dimension	87
Broad Categories of Moral Failings	89
Moral Hazard	101
Principal-Agent Dilemma	107
Morality, Ethics, and Legality: They Are Different	109
Last Word	111
6 People as Decision-Makers	115
Factors That Affect How Individuals Make Decisions	116
A Unique Perspective on Personality and Decision Making: Elliott Jaques, Human Capability, and Time Span of Discretion	135
Conclusion	138
7 The Wisdom—and Foolishness—of Crowds	141
Individual Versus Group Decision-Participation Spectrum	141
Making Decisions in Groups	148
Degrees of Consensus	150
Defining Consensus	150

Reaching a Decision	159
The Wisdom and Foolishness of Crowds	162
Honeybee Decision Making	173
8 The Biology of Decision Making	177
Brain Basics	178
The Lazy Brain	179
Visual Illusions: What You See Isn't What You Get	186
Examples of Visual Illusions	189
Brain Deception Beyond Visual Illusions	197
The Maturing Brain	200
Conclusion	207
9 Toward an Empirically Rooted Understanding of Decision Making	211
In the Beginning: Toward an Empirical View	213
Evidence of Unconscious Deliberation in Decision Making: Three Empirical Approaches	214
The Contribution of Empirical Research: Where Do We Stand?	228
Empirical Research on Decision Making in the Neurosciences	232
The Contribution of Neuropsychology Research: Where Do We Stand?	241
The Need for Research on Decisions of Consequence	242
10 Seven Lessons	247
Seven Lessons for Highly Effective Decision-Makers	248
Last Word	258
References	261
Acknowledgments	267
The Author	269
Index	271

<http://www.pbookshop.com>