

Contents

Foreword	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Table of GATT/WTO Reports and Rulings	xxi
1 Introduction: Globalisation as the Context	1
1.1 Globalisation and Culture	1
1.2 Globalisation and Trade	4
1.3 Raising the Issue: Globalisation, Culture and Trade	6
1.3.1 The Conflicting Conceptions about Trade and Culture	6
1.3.2 Three ‘Duals’—Dual Nature, Dual Legislators and Dual Systems	8
1.4 The Structure of the Book	10
2 Culture and Cultures in Comparative Perspectives: Towards a Synthesis	15
2.1 Introduction	15
2.2 Humanist: Culture as ‘The Best of Everything’	17
2.3 An Anthropological View: We Are Our Culture	18
2.4 Culture as Identity: Centering on Identity Crisis	20
2.4.1 On Identity and Cultural Identity	20
2.4.2 The Collectivity of Identity: Linking Culture with Nation Building	22
2.4.3 Culture and Identity Crisis	24
2.5 Culture as Commerce: The Perspective of Cultural Economic Interests	25
2.5.1 The US as the Advocate of the Commerce Argument	26
2.5.2 An Appraisal of the Root of the Issue	28
2.6 Culture as Human Rights: Revisiting Cultural Rights	32
2.6.1 The Hallmarks of Universalism and Cultural Relativism	32
2.6.1.1 Universalism	33
2.6.1.2 Cultural Relativism	34
2.6.2 A Critique of Universalism and Cultural Relativism	35
2.6.3 Reconciling Human Rights with Cultural Diversity	36
2.6.3.1 The Necessity to Reconcile Human Rights with Cultural Diversity	36
2.6.3.2 The Reconcilability of Human Rights with Cultural Norms	37
2.6.3.3 The Strategies to Reconcile Human Rights with Cultural Norms	38
2.6.4 The Margin of Appreciation Doctrine in Reconciling Universalism and Cultural Relativism	39

2.7	Culture as Resource: A Sustainability Perspective	43
2.7.1	Culture as Resource	43
2.7.2	Culture as Resource and Sustainable Development	44
2.8	Chapter Recap and Further Reflections	46
2.8.1	From Humanist to Anthropological Notions of Culture	47
2.8.2	Culture-as-Identity versus Culture-as-Commerce	47
2.8.3	Culture as Human Rights and Culture as Resource	48
2.8.4	Towards an Integrated Concept of Culture?	49
3	Domestic Cultural Policy and Measures: The Case of the Audiovisual Sector	51
3.1	Introduction	51
3.2	An Overview of Cultural Policies and Measures	53
3.2.1	Two Polar Views on Cultural Policymaking	54
3.2.2	Justifying Government Intervention in Cultural Matters	56
3.2.2.1	The Duality of Cultural Products	57
3.2.2.2	The Dual Mission of Cultural Policies and Measures	58
3.2.2.3	Public Goods and Externalities Theory	59
3.2.3	The Changing Landscape of Technology and its Impact on Culture Policymaking	62
3.3	Foreign Ownership Restriction	64
3.3.1	Domestic Legislations on Foreign Ownership Restriction	65
3.3.2	Disputes Arising from Foreign Ownership Restrictions	67
3.3.2.1	The Polygram Case	68
3.3.2.2	Borders Case	68
3.4	Local Content Regulations	70
3.4.1	Import Quotas	70
3.4.2	Screen Quotas	71
3.5	Subsidies and Tax Concessions	74
3.5.1	Subsidies and Tax Concessions in Several Countries	74
3.5.2	The Effectiveness of Subsidies and Tax Concessions	75
3.6	Other Cultural Policies and Measures	76
3.6.1	Government Censorship or Content Review	76
3.6.2	Copyright Protection Mechanism and Culture Policymaking	77
3.6.3	Film Co-Production Arrangement	79
3.7	Protective Policies versus Efficient Regulation?	80
3.7.1	From the Perspective of Cultural Specificity	81
3.7.2	From the Perspective of Trade Obligations	82
3.7.3	An Effectiveness Perspective	83
3.8	Conclusion	85
4	UNESCO and Cultural Diversity: Theories and Approaches	87
4.1	Introduction	87

4.2	Historicism, Anthropology and UNESCO'S Conception of Culture	88
4.2.1	Historicism	88
4.2.2	The Anthropological Notion of Culture	90
4.3	Cultural Diversity: A Core Concept of UNESCO	93
4.4	UNESCO'S Undertakings on Culture and Cultural Diversity: An Overview	95
4.5	Culture and Development	97
4.5.1	Sustainable Development: Pairing Cultural Diversity with Biodiversity	98
4.5.2	The Role of Culture in Development	100
4.6	Culture and Globalisation	101
4.7	The UNESCO Convention Cultural Diversity	105
4.7.1	The Background of the Convention and Dynamics of the UNESCO Negotiation	105
4.7.1.1	Two Rationales for Negotiating and Adopting the UNESCO Convention	106
4.7.1.2	The Negotiation Dynamics of the UNESCO Convention	107
4.7.2	The Scope and Subject Matter of the Convention	110
4.7.3	The Imbalance between the Parties' Rights and Obligations	112
4.7.4	Dispute Settlement Mechanism	114
4.7.5	A Preliminary Assessment of the Convention	115
4.8	Conclusion	117
5	The Treatment of Culture in the GATT/WTO (I): Theoretical and Legislative Framework	119
5.1	Introduction	119
5.2	Comparative Advantage Theory and its Application to Cultural Products	121
5.2.1	The Theory of 'Comparative Advantage' Underlying Free Trade Regimes	121
5.2.2	'Comparative Advantage' Applied to Cultural Products	123
5.3	An Institutional Evolution and a Shift in Telos	125
5.3.1	A Historical Narrative: From GATT to WTO	125
5.3.2	The Transformation of the Telos	128
5.4	Trade in Cultural Goods: GATT Article IV and its Legacy	129
5.4.1	The Origin and Background of Article IV	130
5.4.2	The Scope of Article IV: Is an Evolutionary Interpretation Feasible?	131
5.4.3	The Legacy Value of Article IV	133
5.5	Trade in Cultural Services: An Observation on the Audiovisual Sector	134

5.5.1	Understanding the Schism: A Tale of Two Histories	134
5.5.2	A Compromise: Agreement to Disagree	135
5.5.3	The Treatment of the Audiovisual Service under the GATS	137
5.5.4	Doha Services Negotiation: Culture Has Not Been a Focal Point	138
5.6	General Exception Clauses	139
5.6.1	Public Morals Exception	140
5.6.2	Securing Compliance with Laws or Regulations	142
5.6.3	National Treasures of Artistic, Historic or Archaeological Value	145
5.6.4	The Chapeau of General Exceptions: An Emerging Jurisprudence?	146
5.7	Trade Remedy Measures Which May Involve Cultural Products	148
5.7.1	Anti-dumping	148
5.7.2	Subsidies	150
5.7.3	Safeguard Mechanism (or the Escape Clause)	152
5.8	The Treatment of Culture in Emerging Areas	153
5.8.1	Investment	154
5.8.2	Telecommunication and Audiovisual Services	155
5.8.3	Intellectual Property Rights Protection and Culture Diversity	155
5.8.4	Geographical Indications (GIs) and Culture Protection	157
5.9	Concluding Remarks	159
6	The Treatment of Culture under the GATT/WTO (II): Case Study and Identification of Problems	161
6.1	Introduction	161
6.2	A Brief Account of GATT/WTO Dispute Settlement	162
6.3	Canada—Periodicals	164
6.3.1	The Case Background and a Procedural Posture	164
6.3.2	Lessons from Canada—Periodicals	166
6.4	China—Publications and Audiovisual Products	168
6.4.1	Case Background and China's Audiovisual Sectors	168
6.4.2	A Procedural Posture and the Summary of Case Decisions	170
6.5	How Likely is a Party to Invoke UNESCO Instruments as a General Cultural Defence?	175
6.6	Applying the 'Public Morals' Exception to Cultural Products	177
6.6.1	The Availability of GATT Article XX(a) as China's Defense	177
6.6.1.1	The Parties' Arguments and DSB's Findings Based on Different Approaches	177

6.6.1.2	A Commentary on the Availability Issue	179
6.6.2	Applying Article XX(a) to China's Measures	180
6.6.2.1	The Concept of 'Public Morals'	180
6.6.2.2	The Parties' Arguments on the 'Necessity' Test	182
6.6.2.3	The Analytical Approach to the 'Necessity' Test under Article XX(a)	183
6.6.2.4	The Key Elements of the 'Necessity' Test	183
6.7	Distinguishing Cultural Goods from Cultural Services	185
6.7.1	Identifying the Issue and its Associated Difficulties	186
6.7.2	The Practice of WTO Tribunals	188
6.7.3	The Overlap of the GATT and the GATS in Application to Cultural Products	191
6.8	Factoring Cultural Elements into Deciding the 'Likeness' of Cultural Products	193
6.8.1	GATT/WTO's General Jurisprudence on 'Like Products'	194
6.8.2	'Like Products' Analysis in Canada—Periodicals	196
6.8.3	'Like Products' Analysis in China—Publications and     Audiovisual Products	198
6.8.3.1	Reading Materials	198
6.8.3.2	Sound Recordings Intended for Electronic Distribution	200
6.8.3.3	A Commentary: Factoring Cultural Elements into Deciding the 'Likeness' via the Traditional Route Establishing 'Like Products'	202
6.8.4	The 'Aim and Effect' Approach: Another Possibility of Factoring Cultural Elements into Deciding 'Likeness'?	205
6.9	Concluding Remarks	210
7	Culture under Regional Agreements: The Perspectives from the EC/EU and NAFTA	213
7.1	Introduction	213
7.2	The European Community/European Union	214
7.2.1	Culture in the EC/EU: A Unique Situation	215
7.2.2	Culture Clause in the EC Treaty: Article 151	217
7.2.3	Culture in the EC Directives: From TVWF to AVMS	220
7.2.3.1	TVWF	220
7.2.3.2	AVMS: An Improvement to Promote Cultural Diversity?	224
7.2.4	The ECJ and Cultural Diversity	227
7.2.5	A Preliminary Remark on the Cultural Protection in the EC/EU	231
7.3	NAFTA	232
7.3.1	Cultural Exception in NAFTA and Associated Problems	233

7.3.2	CMT Case: An Unwillingness to Resort to the NAFTA Cultural Exception?	235
7.3.3	UPS Case: A Promising Sign to Use Cultural Exception?	237
7.4	The Interface between Regional and Global Trade Agreements: The Issue of Forum Shopping, Among Others	239
7.5	Further Observations	241
8	Reform Proposals for the Culture and Trade Quandary	245
8.1	Introduction	245
8.2	A Recap of the Interaction between Trade and Culture	247
8.2.1	On the Specificity of Cultural Products	247
8.2.2	On the Dynamics and Openness of Culture	248
8.2.3	On Cultural Diversity and Trade Liberalisation	250
8.3	Designing WTO-Compatible Domestic Policy Measures	251
8.3.1	The Challenges in Designing Domestic Cultural Policy Measures	252
8.3.2	A Guiding Principle: Distinguishing Cultural Protection from Cultural Protectionism	254
8.3.3	Designing WTO-Compatible Domestic Cultural Policy Measures	257
8.4	Searching for Solutions within the Trade System	259
8.4.1	Exempting Cultural Products from General Trade Rules	260
8.4.2	Requesting Waiver for Cultural Policy Measures	263
8.4.3	Other Options	266
8.4.4	Towards a Jurisprudence of ‘Jus Gentium of International Trade’?	267
8.5	The Relationship between the UNESCO Convention and WTO Agreements	270
8.5.1	A Background Note: Norm Integration in International Law	270
8.5.2	Norm Integration versus Authority Integration: The Case of the WTO and UNESCO	271
8.5.3	The Relationship between the UNESCO Convention and the WTO Rules	274
8.5.3.1	An Overview of the Relationship Prescribed in the UNESCO Convention	274
8.5.3.2	‘Mutual Supportiveness’ in Article 20(1)	275
8.5.3.3	When the Issue Gets Tough: Article 20(2)	277
8.6	Connecting WTO Rules with the UNESCO Convention: The Perspective of Dispute Settlement	278
8.6.1	Identifying the Legal Basis for Linking WTO Rules with the UNESCO Convention	279
8.6.2	Connecting WTO Rules with the UNESCO Convention under VCLT Article 31(1)	280

8.6.3 The Relevance of the UNESCO Convention under VCLT Article 31(3)(c): An Observation on Customary International Law	283
8.6.4 A Procedural Link to Connect the WTO Rules and the UNESCO Convention?	287
8.7 The Margin of Appreciation Doctrine: Ripe for Extrapolation?	289
8.7.1 The Application of Margin of Appreciation Doctrine	289
8.7.2 Extrapolating the Margin of Appreciation Doctrine to the Area of Trade	291
8.8 Conclusion	294
9 Concluding Remarks	297
Bibliography	303
Index	329

<http://www.pbookshop.com>