

Contents

Preface	xiii
1 Introduction	1
1.1 The Bi-polar World of Finance	1
1.2 Demarcation of the Product Group	5
1.3 Positioning and Use of Mezzanine Finance	7
1.4 The Risk–Return Conundrum	10
1.5 Providers of Mezzanine Finance	18
1.6 The Market for Mezzanine Products	18
2 The Mezzanine Product Group	25
2.1 Categorization of the Mezzanine Product Group	25
2.1.1 Subordinated debt with step-up rates	26
2.1.2 Subordinated debt with PIK interest	29
2.1.3 Subordinated debt with profit participation	33
2.1.4 Subordinated debt with warrants	40
2.1.5 Convertible loans	51
2.1.6 Preferred shares	58
2.1.7 The wider space of hybrid instruments	64
2.2 Case Study: The Kratos Company – Merger Finance	67
2.2.1 Kratos Inc. – A closer look	69
2.2.2 Case guidance	72
2.2.3 Datasets	73
3 The Implicit Cost of Mezzanine Products	77
3.1 Measuring Risk	77
3.1.1 Risk and return expectations	77
3.1.2 How do you measure risk?	78
3.1.3 What risks do we compensate for?	79
3.2 Types of Risk	80
3.2.1 Diversification as a rule reduces or eliminates firm-typical risk	81
3.2.2 Modern financial theory is eyeing a certain type of investor	81

3.2.3	Measuring market risk: the CAPM (capital asset pricing model) theory	82
3.2.4	The capital asset pricing model	82
3.3	Equity Risk Versus the Risk of Borrowing: Default Risk and the Cost of Debt	87
3.3.1	What are the drivers behind default risk?	87
3.3.2	The risk-free rate	88
3.4	Putting It All Together	90
3.5	How Much Risk is There in a Mezzanine Product?	92
3.6	Cost Versus Return Dynamics for Mezzanine Products	94
4	The ‘Pricing’ Question and Further Financial Dynamics of Convertible Loans and Preferred Convertible Shares	97
4.1	Pricing Grid for Mezzanine Products	97
4.2	Financial Dynamics of Convertibility in Convertible Loans and Preferred Convertible Shares	99
4.2.1	Convertible bonds	99
4.2.2	Convertible preferred stock (CPS)	107
4.2.3	Valuation and pricing of (embedded) options	110
4.3	Case Study: JJ Bars & Restaurants – Mezzanine for Expansion	121
4.3.1	Europewide Capital Partners	122
4.3.2	The Dutch and European restaurant industry	122
4.3.3	Industry segments	123
4.3.4	JJ Bars & Restaurants	123
4.3.5	Datasets	128
4.3.6	Questions: JJ Bars & Restaurants	138
5	The Mezzanine Product Group and the Financial Industry	139
5.1	The Basel Committee and Framework	140
5.2	The Evolution of the Basel Rules (Basel I and II)	140
5.2.1	The first pillar	141
5.2.2	The second pillar	142
5.2.3	The third pillar	142
5.2.4	Capital definitions under Basel II	142
5.3	Objectives of Basel III and the Central Themes	144
5.3.1	Capital definitions under Basel III	145
5.4	Impact on the Use of Mezzanine Products in the Financial Sector	163
5.5	Regulation in the Insurance Sector Impacting the Use of Mezzanine Products	163
5.5.1	Solvency II	164
5.5.2	Regulated capital under Solvency II	165
5.6	CoCo Bonds – Contingent Convertible Bonds	171
5.6.1	Outlook for the product	176
5.7	Annex I – Summary Basel III	177
5.8	Annex II – Basel III – Specific Features	178
5.9	Case Study Positions: Mezzanine Financing for Financial Institutions	182
5.10	Case Study 1: Financing the Future of Bank Alhanbra	182
5.10.1	Case guidance	183
5.11	Case Study 2: Growing the Brazilian Market	184
5.11.1	Case guidance	186

5.12 Case Study 3: Financing a South African FI which is Part of a Larger Conglomerate Prior to an IPO	186
5.12.1 Case guidance	187
6 Mezzanine and Project Finance	189
6.1 Types of Projects	192
6.2 Financing Aspects	193
6.3 Securitizing Project Loans	195
6.4 Case Study 1: Developing a Toll Road in Poland (A2)	196
6.4.1 Other financial peculiarities	202
6.4.2 Case guidance	203
6.5 Case Study 2: Building and Operating a Wind Park	203
6.5.1 Security	209
7 Real Estate Projects and Mezzanine Finance	211
7.1 Wider Application	212
7.2 Other Applications and Return Issues	214
7.3 Case Study: Financing a Real Estate Company in the CEE Region	220
7.3.1 Projections	223
7.3.2 Points for consideration	223
8 Mezzanine and the Private Equity Space	225
8.1 Drivers of Return	228
8.2 LBO Structure	232
8.2.1 Senior debt	234
8.2.2 Second lien	235
8.2.3 Mezzanine/HY loans	236
8.2.4 PIK notes	246
8.2.5 Equity	246
8.3 Tax Implications	247
8.4 Alternative Transactions Using Similar Financing Structures	247
8.5 Summary of Different Compartments in the LBO Structure	249
8.6 Summary of Types of Securities in the Leverage Structure of an LBO	251
8.7 Case Study: Buying Orangina – a Typical LBO with Some Interesting Questions Ahead!	251
8.7.1 Getting the deal done!	253
8.7.2 Valuation, pricing and deal mechanics	255
8.7.3 Case guidance	255
8.7.4 Datasets	256
8.7.5 How did it all end?	259
9 Mezzanine Products and the World of the Rating Agencies and Accountancy Boards	261
9.1 Rating Agencies and the Debt–Equity Continuum	261
9.1.1 Permanence and deferral characteristics	271
9.1.2 Simplified continuum for banks' (FIs') and insurers' hybrid capital security	272

9.2	Case Study: Fitch's Approach to Rating Hybrid for Corporates	272
9.2.1	At initiation and thereafter when fundamentals are acceptable; coupon payments are occurring as expected	273
9.2.2	As fundamentals decline and the probability of some form of loss absorption increases	275
9.2.3	When loss absorption features are activated	275
9.2.4	When normal payments are resumed (and the instrument resumes debt-like performance)	276
9.3	Mezzanine Debt, Rating Agencies, the Regulator and Financial Institutions After 2008	284
9.3.1	The impact of Basel III	285
9.3.2	Phasing out of hybrid capital due to regulatory changes	286
9.3.3	Notching down and structuring	287
9.3.4	Capacity limits in the balance sheets of financial institutions and insurers	289
9.3.5	Basel III and Solvency II	289
9.4	Appendix 1: Equity–Content Maximization and Structuring Criteria at Moody's	293
9.5	Appendix 2: S&P's and Moody's Key Structuring Considerations	294
9.6	The Intricacies of the Accounting World	295
9.6.1	Classification and measurement	296
9.6.2	Impairment methodology	297
9.6.3	Hedge accounting	297
9.6.4	Substance over form	299
9.6.5	Examples of equity instruments	301
9.6.6	IFRS 9 requirements in relation to hybrid instruments	307
9.6.7	Hybrid financial liabilities	308
9.6.8	Preferred shares	309
9.7	Demarcation Lines and Product Modeling	309
9.7.1	Contractual obligation to deliver cash or other financial assets	309
10	Term Sheets, Inter-creditor Agreements and Debt Restructuring	313
10.1	Groups of Covenants	313
10.2	Review of Key Covenants for Mezzanine Products	316
10.3	Other Covenants	318
10.4	Case Studies: The Good, the Bad and the Ugly	319
10.4.1	Good covenants	319
10.4.2	Bad covenants	320
10.4.3	Ugly covenants	320
10.5	A Comparison of Debt Asset Classes	321
10.5.1	Covenants which relate specifically to liquidity events in private market transactions	321
10.5.2	Mezzanine providers and inter-creditor agreements	323
10.5.3	Lien subordination and inter-creditor agreements	326
10.5.4	A quick reminder of the distinction between lien and payment subordination	326

10.6 Case Study: LyondellBasell and Lyondell Chemical Company	339
10.6.1 Specifics of the Lyondell DIP facility	344
10.6.2 Resistance against the proposed DIP facility	345
10.6.3 The outcome	346
10.6.4 Datasets	347
10.6.5 Case guidance	352
11 Outlook	353
11.1 Introduction	353
11.2 The Not-Too-Distant Past	354
11.3 New Kids on the Block	355
11.4 The Unitranche Product	356
11.5 Reorganization of Insolvency Laws in Europe	359
11.6 Islamic Finance: Sukuks and Non-Risk-Free Bond Look-Alikes	360
11.7 Origination Sources for Mezzanine	361
11.8 The Role of Governmental Organizations	362
11.9 The Refinancing Wall: Opportunities and Challenges	363
11.10 Performance of Mezzanine Products	363
Appendix 1 Overview of Term Sheets and/or Model Contracts for the Mezzanine Product Group	367
Appendix 2 First Lien/Second Lien Inter-creditor Agreement	415
Glossary	479
Case Guidance/Solutions	489
Index	505

<http://www.pbookshop.com>