

propelled my work. From the very bottom of my heart, I love you and thank you ever so much.

And from Deepak: in no particular order I would like to express my profound gratitude to the following colleagues (and, more importantly, friends) for their guidance, patience and encouragement: Anthony Boswood, Michael Crane, Murray Rosen, Timothy Dutton, Guy Philipps, Mark Simpson, Neil Kitchener, Vince Plant and Rob Smith. It is a privilege to work with individuals such as these, both at Fountain Court and elsewhere. I also owe many thanks to my mother, Vinod and Tammy for their constant support. Although I dedicate my small share in this book to both my son Hari and my wife, it is to Lowri that I owe the greatest debt of all, not least for allowing me to steal some of our precious time to go on frolics such as these.

We submitted our manuscript at the end of June 2008 and, subject to a few amendments made at proof stage, we have endeavoured to state the law, or rather our understanding of it, as at that date.
