

Depfa A.C.S. Bank (2010) (on claims to recover benefits under void contracts on the ground of failure of basis); Gibb v Maidstone and Tunbridge Wells NHS Trust (2010) (on enrichment by the release of an obligation); Benedetti v Sawiris (2010) (on free acceptance and enrichment by the performance of services); R. (Child Poverty Action Group) v Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (2011) (on the recovery of ultra vires payments by a public authority and statute as a justifying ground); Royal Bank of Scotland Plc v Chandra (2011) (on undue influence); and Costello v MacDonald (2011) (on contract as a justifying ground).

The past five years have also seen the publication of some outstanding scholarly works and we have sought to incorporate the insights of their authors into the discussion as far as has been possible. There have been many articles, acknowledged in the text at appropriate places; longer works of particular note are James Edelman and Elise Bant, Unjust Enrichment in Australia (2006); Michael Rush, The Defence of Passing On (2006); David Fox, Property Rights in Money (2008); Dominic O'Sullivan, Steven Elliott and Rafal Zakrzewski, The Law of Rescission (2008); Elise Bant, The Change of Position Defence (2009); Tariq Baloch, Unjust Enrichment and Contract (2009); Birke Häcker, Consequences of Impaired Consent Transfers (2009); and Rebecca Williams, Unjust Enrichment and Public Law (2010). We have also learnt much from new editions of three fine books: Keith Mason, John Carter, and Greg Tolhurst, Mason & Carter's Restitution Law in Australia, 2nd edn (2008); Andrew Burrows, The Law of Restitution, 3rd edn (2010); and Peter Maddaugh and John McCamus, The Law of Restitution, looseleaf edn (2011).

Charles Mitchell exercised a general editorial oversight over the whole of this edition, and responsibility for particular chapters was distributed in the following way: Charles Mitchell—chapters 1–2, 4–5, 6 (with Stephen Watterson), 7, 10–11 (with Paul Mitchell), 18–38, and 40; Paul Mitchell—chapters 3 (with Stephen Watterson), 10–11 (with Charles Mitchell), and 12–17; and Stephen Watterson—chapters 3 (with Paul Mitchell), 6 (with Charles Mitchell), 8–9, and 39.

We are grateful to Greg Smith and Michelle Afford at Sweet & Maxwell for their calm professionalism and hard work on the project.

We are grateful to Gareth Jones for trusting us to take the book forward into this new edition. It has been a privilege to travel down the path which he and Robert Goff have laid down, and onwards into new territory.

Above all, we are grateful to our families for their encouragement and support, and in particular to Charlotte Mitchell, Susan Chan, and Amy Goymour.
