

Summary of Contents

List of Contributors	v
Editors' Preface	xv
List of Abbreviations	xix
CHAPTER 1
Cross-Currents in Modern Chinese Labour Law
Alan C. Neal	1
CHAPTER 2
In Search of Chinese "Labour Law"
Dong Yan	21
CHAPTER 3
The Evolution and Development of China's Labour Law 1994
Junling Jia & Qian Wei	47
CHAPTER 4
Reconsideration of the Subject-Matter of Labour Law and the Reconstruction of Labour Law
Kai Chang	63
CHAPTER 5
Three Stages of Development for Gender Equality Law in the Chinese Workplace
Jingyi Ye & Tian Yan	73
CHAPTER 6
The Re-employment of Retirees: "Labour Relationship" or "Service Relationship"?
Yanjun Feng, Na Li & Yixuan Wu	85

Summary of Contents

CHAPTER 7 Institutional Reconstruction and Goal-Correction in Relation to Open-Ended Labour Contracts Baohua Dong	99
CHAPTER 8 The Strategy of Labour Law to Combat the Tendency towards Legal Evasion Through Outsourcing Quanxing Wang	117
CHAPTER 9 Occupational Health and Safety Rights and Legal Protection at Work Jie Guo	133
CHAPTER 10 The Significance of, and Innovation in, China's Social Insurance Law Jia Lin	147
CHAPTER 11 Free Movement of Workers and Unification of the Social Insurance System Wenjiang He	159
APPENDIX I Law of the People's Republic of China on the Protection of Rights and Interests of Women 1992	171
APPENDIX II Labour Law of the People's Republic of China 1994	183
APPENDIX III Trade Union Law 1992 (as amended 2001)	201
APPENDIX IV Employment Promotion Law 2007	213
APPENDIX V Labour Contract Law 2007	227
APPENDIX VI Labour Disputes (Mediation and Arbitration) Law 2007	249
APPENDIX VII Social Insurance Law 2010	261
APPENDIX VIII Legislative Index 1949-2013	281

Table of Contents

List of Contributors	v
Editors' Preface	xv
List of Abbreviations	xix
CHAPTER 1
Cross-Currents in Modern Chinese Labour Law Alan C. Neal	1
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Early History	5
1.3 Post-1994 Labour Law Development	7
1.4 Reform and Redirection	10
1.5 Emerging Challenges for Developing Modern PRC Labour Law	14
CHAPTER 2
In Search of Chinese "Labour Law" Dong Yan	21
2.1 The Conception of Chinese Labour Laws	21
2.2 Labour Law-Making Bodies	24
2.2.1 The Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party (CC-CCP)	26
2.2.2 The National People's Congress and Standing Committee	30
2.2.3 The State Council	34
2.2.4 Ministries	36
2.2.5 International Law as a Source of Law in China	37
2.2.6 Judicial Interpretation	38
2.3 Hierarchy of Chinese Labour Laws	40
2.4 General Layout of Chinese Labour Laws	42
2.5 The Changing Face of Chinese Labour Laws	43
2.5.1 Pre-1958 Labour Laws	43

Table of Contents

2.5.2	Post-1958 Employment Rules	44
2.5.3	Post-1978 Labour Laws	45
CHAPTER 3
The Evolution and Development of China's Labour Law 1994
Junling Jia & Qian Wei		47
3.1	Historical Background	47
3.1.1	An Outline of Chinese Labour Legislation before 1949	47
3.1.2	Labour Legislation in the People's Republic of China (1949-1993)	48
3.1.3	Foundations of the Labour Law 1994	49
3.1.4	Drafting the 1994 Labour Law	49
3.2	Theoretical Debates	52
3.2.1	Scope of Application	53
3.2.2	Equality in Employment and Employment Promotion	53
3.2.3	Dual Employment (Second/Side Jobs)	54
3.2.4	Re-employment Funds	55
3.2.5	The Labour Contract and Legislative Form of the Labour Relationship	55
3.2.6	Termination of the Labour Contract	56
3.2.7	Working Time	57
3.2.8	Rewards and Penalties in Employment Rules	58
3.3	Development of China's Labour Laws	59
3.3.1	Labour Contract Law	60
3.3.2	Employment Promotion Law	60
3.3.3	Labour Disputes Mediation and Arbitration Law	61
3.3.4	Social Insurance Law	61
3.4	Conclusion: Perspectives on the Revision of the 1994 Labour Law	61
CHAPTER 4
Reconsideration of the Subject-Matter of Labour Law and the Reconstruction of Labour Law
Kai Chang		63
4.1	Introduction	63
4.2	The Subject-Matter of Labour Law	64
4.3	The "Core" of Labour Law	66
4.4	The Internal Structure and Character of the Subject-Matter of Labour Law	68
4.4.1	Individual Labour Relationship: With Dependency	68
4.4.2	Collective Labour Relationship: A Relationship on an Equal Footing	68
4.4.3	Social Labour Relationship: Tripartite Conciliation	69
4.5	Transformation of Labour Relations and the Reconstruction of Labour Law	70

CHAPTER 5
Three Stages of Development for Gender Equality Law in the Chinese Workplace
Jingyi Ye & Tian Yan	73
5.1 Introduction	73
5.2 The Stage of Revolution (1949-1978)	74
5.3 The Stage of Transformation (1978-2000)	78
5.4 The Stage of Mobilisation (2000-Present)	81
5.5 Conclusion	84
CHAPTER 6
The Re-employment of Retirees: “Labour Relationship” or “Service Relationship”?
Yanjun Feng, Na Li & Yixuan Wu	85
6.1 Introduction: Key Issues	85
6.2 The Social Insurance Standards Theory	87
6.2.1 Background to the “Social Insurance Standards Theory”	87
6.2.2 Legal Determination of the Retiree Re-employment Relationship following Retirement without the Enjoyment of Endowment Insurance Benefits	89
6.2.3 Judicial Interpretation (III) Confirms the Status of the “Social Insurance Standards Theory”	90
6.3 Comment	92
6.3.1 Is It Possible to Achieve both Labour Rights and Social Insurance Benefits?	92
6.3.2 Does the Phenomenon of Retirees’ Re-employment Have the Characteristic of “Dependence”?	94
6.3.3 How Can the Relationships between Re-employment after Retirement and the Retirement System, as well as the Social Insurance System, Be Harmonised?	95
6.3.4 Will Re-employment after Retirement Increase the Employment Pressure on Workers of Working Age?	96
CHAPTER 7
Institutional Reconstruction and Goal-Correction in Relation to Open-Ended Labour Contracts
Baohua Dong	99
7.1 Reconstruction of the Open-Ended Labour Contract through Legislation	99
7.1.1 Emphasis upon the Unilateral Compulsory Mechanism during the Process of Forming the Labour Contract	100
7.1.2 Emphasising Legal Restrictions on Dismissals	102
7.2 Reviewing the Goal of Open-Ended Labour Contracts	103
7.2.1 Changes in the Formal Wording of the Legal Documents	104

Table of Contents

7.2.2	Changing Official Statements from the NPC	106
7.2.3	Change of Attitude on the Parts of the Drafters in the NPC	106
7.3	Observing the Relationship between Institutional Reconstruction and Adjustment of Goals from a Practical Perspective	108
7.4	Reading the Relationship between the Reconstruction of the System and Adjustment of Goals from a Historical Perspective	109
7.5	Reviewing the Relationship between Institutional Reconstruction and Correction of Goals from an Academic Perspective	113
7.6	Impact on the Economy and Society of Reconstruction of the Institution and Alteration of Goals	114
7.7	Some Reflections on Reconstructing Open-Ended Labour Contracts	115
CHAPTER 8
The Strategy of Labour Law to Combat the Tendency towards Legal Evasion Through Outsourcing
	Quanxing Wang	117
8.1	Labour Outsourcing: An Effective Mechanism for Avoiding Responsibilities provided for by Labour Laws	117
8.1.1	The Lower Risks and Costs of Outsourcing Work by Comparison with Direct Employment	118
8.1.2	It Is More Convenient for the Client than the Contractor to Evade the Liability Established by Labour Laws	118
8.1.3	Outsourcing Work Instead of Contracting Business Internally Can Be a Means to Avoid Responsibility as an Employer	120
8.2	Issues within the Current Legislation regarding Outsourced Employment	121
8.2.1	Issues Surrounding the Current Administrative Regulations	121
8.2.2	Issues Associated with the Construction Law 1977	121
8.2.3	Issues regarding Judicial Interpretation and the Regulation on Work-Related Injuries	122
8.2.4	Issues in Relation to the Provisions of the Labour Contract Law	123
8.2.5	Negative Impact of This Legislative Loophole for Preventing Outsourced Work	123
8.3	Analysis of the Labour Relationship in Outsourcing Work	124
8.3.1	Analysis of the Labour Relationship in Multiple-Level Outsourced Work	124
8.3.2	The Legal Status of Contractors Who Are Individuals	125
8.3.2.1	“Individual-Contractor” (Contractors Who Are Individuals)	125
8.3.2.2	The “Economically Dependent Worker”	126
8.4	Suggestions against Outsourcing Work for Evasion of Liability	127
8.4.1	The Theory behind the Liability of the Client	127
8.4.1.1	Contract Law Theory as Regards Third Parties	127
8.4.1.2	The Trend towards Liability for Maintaining the Working Environment in Labour Law	128

Table of Contents

8.4.1.3	Possible Encouragement from the “CSR” Movement	128
8.4.2	The Institutional Mechanism for Clients to Share Labour Law Liability	129
8.4.2.1	The Joint Liability of Clients	129
8.4.2.2	Application of Articles 93 and 94 of the Labour Contract Law	130
8.4.2.3	The Individual-Contractor Should Be Brought within the Scope of Application of Labour Law	131
 CHAPTER 9
	Occupational Health and Safety Rights and Legal Protection at Work
	Jie Guo	133
9.1	The Right of Workers to Occupational Health and Safety	133
9.2	The Focus upon Occupational Health and Safety for Workers in Chinese Legislation	138
9.3	Shortcomings in China’s Occupational Health and Safety Legal Institutions and Ongoing Developments	140
9.3.1	The Lack of a Comprehensive Legal Modification Mechanism	140
9.3.2	The Low Coverage of Occupational Health and Safety Protection Laws	142
9.3.3	The Content of the Legal System Is Not Systematic or Complete	142
9.3.4	Tort Liability within the Context of Occupational Injury Compensation and Civil Liability Compensation	143
9.4	Comment	144
 CHAPTER 10
	The Significance of, and Innovation in, China’s Social Insurance Law
	Jia Lin	147
10.1	Introduction	147
10.2	The Importance of a Social Insurance Law	148
10.2.1	Facilitating the Regulation of Social Insurance Relationships	148
10.2.2	Realising the Social Security Rights of Individuals	149
10.2.3	Facilitating the Realisation of Social Fairness	149
10.2.4	Promoting Internal Consumption, Economic Development and Transformation	150
10.3	Innovation in the Social Insurance Law	151
10.4	Further Renewal of the Legal Instruments for Social Insurance	156
 CHAPTER 11
	Free Movement of Workers and Unification of the Social Insurance System
	Wenjiong He	159
11.1	Introduction	159
11.2	Promoting Labour Mobility through Reform of the Social Insurance

Table of Contents

System	159
11.3 Barriers to Labour Mobility and Defects with the Existing Social Insurance System	162
11.3.1 Institutional Gaps between Different Groups	162
11.3.2 Difficulties in Transferring Social Insurance Accounts	163
11.3.3 Risk of Losing Benefits Arising Out of Labour Mobility	164
11.4 Reconsideration of the Design of the Social Insurance Scheme	165
11.4.1 Scope of Social Insurance Protection: Wage-Earning Workers, All Workers, or the Entirety of Citizens?	165
11.4.2 Social Insurance Protection: Basic Protection or Full Protection?	166
11.4.3 Social Insurance System: Categorising Eligible Groups or Unified Independent Running	166
11.4.4 The Goal of Social Insurance Policy: Reducing or Enlarging Income Gaps? Promoting or Blocking Labour Mobility?	167
11.5 Furthering Social Insurance Reform while Maintaining the Free Movement of Labour	167
11.5.1 Basic Thinking	167
11.5.2 Reform of the Social Pension Insurance Scheme	168
11.5.3 Reform of the Medical Insurance System	168
11.5.4 Transferability of Social Insurance Accounts across Regions or Systems	169
APPENDIX I Law of the People's Republic of China on the Protection of Rights and Interests of Women 1992	171
APPENDIX II Labour Law of the People's Republic of China 1994	183
APPENDIX III Trade Union Law 1992 (as amended 2001)	201
APPENDIX IV Employment Promotion Law 2007	213
APPENDIX V Labour Contract Law 2007	227
APPENDIX VI Labour Disputes (Mediation and Arbitration) Law 2007	249
APPENDIX VII Social Insurance Law 2010	261
APPENDIX VIII Legislative Index 1949-2013	281