

Thanks must also go to my publishers, Wolters Kluwer, CCH, in Hong Kong, especially to Chloe Lau and David Chang who have provided guidance and positive suggestions throughout.

Finally, I must give my deepest thanks to my wife, Lynn, who has provided me with encouragement and backing through many long hours of preparation and writing to produce this book. Without her unquavering support my task would have been so much more challenging and much less exciting.

Table of Contents

| | Page |
|--|------|
| About Wolters Kluwer Hong Kong Limited..... | iii |
| About the Author..... | v |
| Preface..... | vii |
| Acknowledgements..... | ix |
| | |
| Chapter 1: Introduction – Change is not an Option..... | 1 |
| Chapter 2: The Ever-Increasing Reshaping of Economies..... | 11 |
| Chapter 3: The Gains from a Successful BPR Project..... | 23 |
| Chapter 4: BPR – The Human Dimension..... | 39 |
| Chapter 5: BPR – The Enterprise Awareness..... | 51 |
| Chapter 6: BPR – The Financial Implications..... | 65 |
| Chapter 7: Phases, Stages and Gateways..... | 89 |
| Chapter 8: Managing the Disruption..... | 131 |
| Chapter 9: Turning Sub-Optimal Outcomes Around..... | 155 |
| Chapter 10: Matching Outcomes to Strategic Objectives..... | 185 |
| Chapter 11: What the Future Holds..... | 205 |
| | |
| Appendices..... | 225 |
| Index..... | 353 |